BOOKKEEPER SAYS FERGUSON STATED CARLETON AGREED TO ASSUME BLAME

Witness Recalls Head of Failing Company Told Him Dying Man Ordered Invoices Padded.

HOPED TO UNTANGLE BOOKS IF HE LIVED

Government in Mail Fraud Trial Seeks to Show Defendants Knew What They Were Doing.

"In case I die, blame it all on me. If I live, I'll work it out."

These words, attributed to the late Murray Carleton, in his directions to Forrest Ferguson for falsifying the accounts of the Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co., were read today to the jury in Federal Judge [illegible] court, which is trying Ferguson and Alfred Baggot, president and secretary of the company, on charges of using the mails to defraud and conspiracy.

The quotation, which is in line with the plea of the Ferguson-Baggot defense that Carleton was to blame for the irregularities, was placed in the evidence not by the defense, but by the Government.

The defense waived the usual objections, and even asked that it be read to the jury a second time.

Joseph Malecek, auditor-cashier of the company, wrote the quotation in a personal memorandum, recording a conversation which he had with Ferguson early in 1925, during the process of falsifying, by which $2,250,000 credit was obtained from banks and a loss of $1,000,000 to the banks was caused.

Malecek Read- Memorandum.

Malecek, who is principal witness for the Government, identified his original memorandum, which was written on a single sheet of scratch paper, was dated March 7, 1925, and was signed with his initial, "M." As the writing was minute, he read from an enlarged photostatic copy. The memorandum was:

After I protested the action of M. C. (Carleton) and F. F. (Ferguson) about raising inventory, F. F. said to A. F. B. (Baggot) and myself this morning that Mr. Carleton insists on raising inventory to show 2 to 1 ratio. He saw him at his home this a. m., and M. C. stated that he assumes all responsibility for these figures, and if he dies, F. F. can blame him. F. F. said that is not a nice thing to say. If he lives, M. C. says he will work it out. He further says that he will tell Simpson (New York expert accountant) the large charges against the Carleton Dry Goods Co. are O. K. and done with his approval. F. F. was told by A. F. B. that M. C. wants package delivered to him and F. F. took the charges to him. This was on 3-4-'25.

The package referred to, it was explained, was that of invoices making up the details of fictitious sales which were used to pad the accounts.

It appeared that the Government, in introducing this memorandum, sought to show that, while Carleton had directed the fraudulent acts, Ferguson and Baggot understood their nature, and, as adult and responsible business men, necessarily became responsible in the eyes of the law for these acts. Carleton was ill at the time, and died of cancer more than a year after.

Malecek, in his testimony yesterday afternoon, repeated in more detail today, for the benefit of the jurors and even the lawyers, who were bewildered by the intricate deals and the big figures cited, said he acted on Ferguson's orders, Ferguson having quoted Carleton to him as the primary authority. Baggot had a subordinate part, he said, in carrying out the plan.

He told of "washing out" hundreds of thousands of dollars of the company's liabilities and adding similar amounts of fictitious assets as a means of deceiving expert accountants and obtaining the favorable financial statement of Feb. [illegible], 1925, by means of which the loans from banks were obtained.

In this morning's examination Malecek was taken back by United States District Attorney Stattler, over the matters which he related in outline yesterday, and was required to detail each transaction, identifying the exhibits which belonged to each. Malecek, who is in the employ of the liquidating organization, showed the most

BOOTLEGGER PAID HIGH, BUT IN MOONSHINE MONEY

Bought Liquor in Detroit With Counterfeit Currency and Sold It in St. Louis, Federal Investigators Say — Two Arrests.

Investigation by Secret Service agents of the Treasury Department has disclosed that men, who they say are allied with the Shelton gang, have been buying high-priced liquor in Detroit with counterfeit currency and transporting the wet goods by automobile to the St. Louis district where it was sold for real money.

Having gathered evidence which they consider sufficient, the agents arrested Charles Harris, a Shelton follower, in Detroit, Saturday, and late yesterday they arrested Frank McCartney, 30 years old, as he was moving his family from a rooming house at 1708 South Vandeventer avenue. Other arrests are expected.

McCartney denied he knew Harris, or had participated in any joint bootlegging-counterfeiting enterprises. He indicated he would resist extradition to Detroit.

Stephen A. Connell, in charge of the Secret Service Bureau here, said Harris and McCartney are alleged to be the men who have passed more than $15,000 in counterfeit $20 notes in Detroit, exchanging for liquor, which was then sent over the highways to St. Louis. Coming from Detroit, where Canadian whisky is available in quantity, it sold well and high here.

The largest deal in which the two men are said to have figured involved $5000. In a later deal $1860 worth of liquor was purchased, the seller receiving $80 in real money and the rest in counterfeits. The buyer assumed, evidently, that the seller was engaged in violating one law and could not consistently "squawk" when defrauded by another lawbreaker.

Connell says that Harris is the man who rode through East St. Louis two months ago in an automobile owned by Carl Shelton, leader of the Shelton gang, and passed a counterfeit $20 bill in a shop there. The license number of the car was noted and traced to Shelton, resulting in his arrest in St. Louis several weeks ago. Shelton was questioned about the counterfeit bill, but was released when he proved he had been in jail at Springfield, Ill., when the counterfeit was passed.

By the Associated Press.

WINONA, Minn., Jan. 27.—Four men have been indicted by the Federal grand jury in connection with the $35,000 mail robbery in South St. Paul April 17, 1924. They are:

Frank W. Sommer, former Chief of Police of St. Paul; Dan Hogan, St. Paul restaurant and hotel man; George E. Bland, former agent for the Chicago-Great Western Railroad at South St. Paul, and Ruben B. Hogan is under arrest at St. Paul and warrants are out for Bland and Lilley. Sommer will surrender when wanted.

Sommer denied he had any connection with the robbery, declaring, "These charges have been brought on by the word of a convicted felon, while I stand on my record of service to the Government and the city of St. Paul."

East in Grip of Cold Wave.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The entire Northeast today was in the grip of the most severe cold wave of the winter. Temperatures tumbled to zero and sub-zero marks in all states east of the Mississippi River, except in the extreme South. At Greenville, Me., it was 16 below, although unofficial instruments in Northern Vermont registered a sub-zero mark of 20. Boston reported five below. A temperature of 30 below at Twin Bridges, N. Y., was the lowest mark in New York State. In New York City it was 1 below at 6 a. m., but the mercury later began to rise.

SHERIFFS AND POLICE ARRESTED IN DRY RAID

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Officers Are Among 32 Prisoners in Conspiracy Round-Up.

By the Associated Press.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 27.—Sheriff Paul C. Bryan of Broward County, his five deputies, seven Fort Lauderdale policemen and many other persons have been arrested here in a series of raids conducted under the direction of R. E. Tuttle, prohibition administrator for this district.

The prisoners are charged with various offenses under the prohibition law, including conspiracy, and were arrested on capiases drawn on indictments returned at the December session of the Federal grand jury at Jacksonville.

Thirty-two arrests had been made by noon and officers said many more would be taken into custody before night. In addition to the under cover men who had been operating "speak easies" in Fort Lauderdale, 15 raiding crews were scattered through the swamps nearby watching for operators of stills. Four stills had been raided by noon and 12 operators arrested.

Coast guardsmen, immigration border patrolmen, customs agents and internal revenue investigating men assisted the prohibition officers who had been filtering into Fort Lauderdale for the past week.

Tuttle said the conspiracy was exposed by an agent, whom he declined to name, who was the biggest distiller of the lot. He had been in the traffic for two months and a half, and either had bought from or sold to practically every liquor dealer of consequence in Broward County. Several weeks ago, Tuttle announced, the under cover agent burned his own still and told a story of vandals in order that he might make purchases from other manufacturers for evidence.

INDUSTRIAL OUTPUT SLUMPS TO LOW LEVEL IN DECEMBER

Greatest Recession in Auto Production; Employment and Payrolls Also Decrease.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Industrial production slumped in December to the lowest level in more than a year, the Federal Reserve Board reports. Manufacturing industries accounted for the decline, the automobile production showing the greatest recession. Only 16[illegible],000 passenger cars and trucks were manufactured in December compared to 425,000 in August. The decline was larger than usual.

Factory employment and payrolls also declined, reflecting decreases in nearly all industries except cotton goods, clothing, foundries and machine shops and printing and publishing.

The value of building contracts awarded was larger than a year ago, but for the first three weeks of the month contracts were in smaller volume than last year.

LANDIS CLEARS AND REINSTATES COBB AND SPEAKER

RETURN TO RESERVE LISTS OF CLUBS

No Decent System of Justice Could Find Detroit and Cleveland Stars Guilty, He Rules.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker today were found not guilty of baseball crookedness. The two famous stars were cleared of all suspicions of dishonesty in a decision by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Baseball Commissioner.

Commissioner Landis ruled that the dismissed managers of the Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Americans did not "fix" a game in 1919 for a betting coup, as charged by Hubert "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher. Consequently, Commissioner Landis restored Cobb and Speaker to the reserve lists of their clubs, making them eligible to play baseball again if they choose.

Ban Johnson, president on "leave" of the American League, had handed Landis the letters purchased from Leonard which tended to implicate Cobb, Speaker and "Smoky Joe" Wood, a former Boston and Cleveland American pitcher. Landis made persistent efforts to have Leonard face the players he accused, but Leonard refused.

Cobb, Speaker and Wood all vigorously denied Leonard's charges, made after Cobb had dismissed him from the Detroit Club.

"Not Guilty of Fixing."

"This is the Cobb-Speaker case," said the decision by Commissioner Landis. "These players have not been, nor are they now, found guilty of fixing a ball game. By no decent system of justice could such finding be made. Therefore, they were not placed on the ineligible list.

"As they desire to rescind their withdrawal from baseball, the releases which the Detroit and Cleveland clubs granted at their requests, in the circumstances detailed above, are canceled and these players' names are restored to the reserve lists of those clubs."

Neither Cobb nor Speaker was present when Leonard's Comissioner's secretary to Commissioner Landis passed out the typewritten sheets of the commissioner's decision. Nor were they represented by counsel.

Charges Alone Harmful.

The decision pointed out that the mere announcement of charges of this character placed against Cobb and Speaker, whatever the personality or motives of the accuser, or the scarcity or even absence of evidence supporting the charges, would be harmful to the accused players, experience having shown that a vindication by baseball authority based upon a manifest insufficiency or even a total failure of supporting proof, had been labeled a "whitewash."

"When they insisted they had no doubt of their ability to answer the charges," the decision pointed out, "they were concerned about the possible effect upon themselves and others in whom they were deeply interested. They appeared to be particularly disturbed by the [illegible] situation of Joe Wood.

"These considerations, as Cobb and Speaker represented the matter to me, brought about their desire to quit baseball, despite their appreciation of the fact that such action might be misconstrued. In [illegible], there were, as Leonard's attendance could not be enforced, the commissioner consented that the hearing be put over indefinitely, and it was understood that would be the end of the matter, unless conditions thereafter should so change as to require a different course.

"It was pointed out at the time that a number of people knew or had heard of the Leonard charges and of the Cobb and Wood letters, also the likelihood of suspicion and rumor resulting from a retirement in these circumstances of two players of such prominence was fully discussed. And it was definitely understood that in the interests of all concerned, might thereafter require a public statement setting forth the charges and the answers.

American League Informed.

"The American League directors were informed of the status of the players and that Cobb and Speaker desired to leave baseball for the reason stated. Accordingly the Detroit and Cleveland clubs granted releases and the American League directors rescinded their resolution

'GOOD MIXER' GETS CITY'S GOOD $5000 FOR LOBBYING

Henry W. Blodgett Paid That Amount and All Expenses for Representing St. Louis at Legislature.

HIS WORK TO LAST ONLY ABOUT 70 DAYS

Bills Giving Estimate Board Control Over Museum and Zoo Funds Among Measures He Will Urge.

By appointment of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, Henry W. Blodgett, lawyer, former State Senator and former United States District Attorney, is being paid $5000 out of the city treasury to act as the city's lobbyist during the present session of the Legislature at Jefferson City.

He was recommended for the job by Comptroller Nolte, one of the three members of the Board of Estimate, the other members being Mayor Miller and President Neun of the Board of Aldermen. The Board of Estimate has authority under the city charter to employ outside experts or legal advisors.

When Comptroller Nolte was asked why it was necessary to go outside the City Counselor's office to get the city's interests before the Legislature, he replied:

"Harry Blodgett is better qualified for the work, by experience and acquaintance, than anybody else I can think of. There is no one in the City Counselor's office as well qualified for the work."

Blodgett a "Good Mixer."

In addition to the prestige and knowledge gained as a member of the Legislature, Blodgett is a "good mixer" and is widely acquainted, Nolte said.

Besides being paid $5000 for his services during the present session, which is expected to last about 70 days, Blodgett will have all expenses paid. This is the third session he has attended as official lobbyist for the city. For the previous sessions he received $3000 and expenses.

When his appointment was made recently, Blodgett said he was thinking of hiring an assistant. He was told the assistant would have to be paid out of the $5000. Blodgett has not hired an assistant, so far as is known at City Hall.

Blodgett's expense accounts for the last session totaled $777.40, including transportation, hotel bills and incidentals. He has not submitted any accounts so far this year.

Origin of the Custom.

The custom of sending a lobbyist to the Legislature at public expense originated in 1921 during the administration of former Mayor Kiel, when Henry A. Rosskopf, now a Circuit Judge, got the job. He had an assistant, Robert Glenn, former newspaper man.

The lobbyist's duties are to attend sessions of the House and Senate and committee meetings, to note bills affecting the city's interests, to send copies of all bills affecting the city's interests to the Board of Estimate, to come to St. Louis to confer with the board on [illegible], to receive instructions and to return to Jefferson City to oppose or favor legislation in accordance with instructions.

For example, Blodgett will oppose a bill to add 200 men to the St. Louis police force, at an additional expense of about $[illegible] a year. Mayor Miller and Comptroller

GIVES NAMES IN ASSAILING MORALS OF GLADSTONE

LILY LANGTRY ONE WHOM HE MENTIONS

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The information upon which he based intimations of immorality in the life of the late William E. Gladstone, was given him by various persons as a historical fact, Capt. Peter Wright testified today at his libel action against Lord Gladstone, 73-year-old son of England's "Grand Old Man," who has come to the defense of his father's name.

Before a courtroom crowded with many fashionable figures in London's social world, Wright said the information he had received linked the elder Gladstone's name with that of the celebrated English actress, Lily Langtry, "the Jersey Lily." Other information given him was that Olga Novikoff, a beautiful Russian girl, had been sent by the Czarist Government in the seventies to attempt to fascinate the great statesman and, he was told, had succeeded.

Informant Is Dead.

He also testified he had been informed by a West End physician, now dead, that women patients had complained to him that the elder Gladstone had tried to make their acquaintance on the streets.

Wright is suing Lord Gladstone because of a letter in which the latter accused him of making lying statements regarding the morals of the elder Gladstone in a book, "Portraits and Criticisms."

There are three women on the jury. Lord Gladstone sat only a few feet from the witness box.

Wright, a free lance writer, in a book entitled "Portraits and Criticisms," alluded to the elder Gladstone as follows: "Mr. Gladstone, who founded the great tradition since observed by so many of his followers and successors with such pious fidelity, in public to speak the language of the highest and strictest principles and in private to pursue and possess every sort of woman."

Viscount Gladstone, the son, upon reading this, sent a letter to Wright saying: "Your garbage about Mr. Gladstone has come to my knowledge. You are a liar because you slander a dead man. You are a coward. And because you think the public will accept inventions from such as you, you are a fool."

Gladstone also sent a letter to the Membership Committee of the Bath Club calling for Wright's expulsion. He wrote: "The club becomes uninhabitable so long as it is polluted by his presence. An officer in his majesty's army, he has accepted my designation of a liar and a coward as applied to him." Wright was expelled from the club, but in a subsequent court action was awarded £125 damages (about $625) and costs.

The libel action is based on Gladstone's letter to the Bath Club committee. Gladstone's defense is that the words he used were not libelous and did not injure the plaintiff's character, and that the words were published on a privileged occasion and without desire to injure the plaintiff. The defendant also pleaded that he had truly stated the facts.

EX-KAISER WILHELM, 68, TODAY

Celebrates Birthday at Doorn With Members of Family.

By the Associated Press.

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 27.—Former Emperor William of Germany today quietly celebrated his sixty-eighth birthday with several members of his family, including the former Crown Prince, who came here for the day.

Divine services were held in the dining room of the castle which was decorated with great quantities of flowers sent by friends. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of congratulation were received by the former Kaiser. Apparently an increasing interest is being taken in the former Emperor's birthday as many more visitors called to sign the castle's register than in previous years. The Duke of Braunschweig and the Princess of Hessen also were at the castle. Prince Heinrich and the wife of the Crown Prince were expected but were unable to make the trip from Germany because of illness.

HIS FIRM FAILS

Brokerage Firm's Liabilities Exceed $200,000—Equity of $30,000 in Mining Property Chief Asset.

RECEIVERSHIP SUIT AGAINST CONCERN

Minority Stockholder Attempts to Block Efforts of Head of Company at Liquidation.

Customers will lose at least $175,000 in the collapse of F. W. Baumhoff & Co., a stock and bond brokerage firm in the Security Building, conducted by former Postmaster Frederick W. Baumhoff. This was ascertained by the Post-Dispatch today, following the filing yesterday of suit for a receiver.

The company's transactions, about 15 of which resulted in complaints to the Better Business Bureau, during a period of three years, undoubtedly will become the subject of grand jury inquiry.

As was told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch last Tuesday, the firm's liabilities exceed $200,000, with a minimum of assets, the principal one being an equity of about $30,000 in undeveloped Arizona mining property of the Verde-Jerome Copper Mining Co., which the Baumhoff concern has promoted.

Purpose of Receivership Suit.

The receivership suit, filed by Henry C. Wahlmann of 3257A California avenue, a minority stockholder in the concern, was an attempt to block a proposal of Baumhoff and two of his sons to liquidate the concern and satisfy its creditors with unsecured long term promissory notes of the former Postmaster, who is 68 years old.

F. W. Baumhoff Jr., treasurer of the firm, and his brother, Eugene, a salesman, have called a meeting of their 50 creditors for tomorrow to be held at the home of their father, 3203 Russell boulevard, where the elder Baumhoff is recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident. The plan they have devised is for Baumhoff to sign long-term promissory notes in the hope of paying them off while working as a stock and bond salesman on commissions. He believes he can make $25,000 a year and apply all of his income but $200 a month to the payment of these obligations.

At the office of the Better Business Bureau it was learned that clients had been complaining against the Baumhoff concern for about three years and that Manager Harry W. Riehl since last January had been asking the State Commissioner of Finance to consider a revocation of the company's permit to sell stocks. Riehl was planning a determined fight to prevent the issuance of a 1927 permit when the firm's collapse was disclosed by the Post-Dispatch.

About 15 Complaints.

Complaints to the bureau numbered about 15 and were of much the same tenor. A West End clergyman last July deposited $1700 in bonds with the firm with instructions to exchange them for other securities, which were never delivered. After frequent requests, he took his complaint to the bureau and according to Riehl, is still waiting.

As far back as 1923, Mrs. Emily Kirchoff, 3449 Utah place, paid for $3800 in securities which were not delivered. A year later, Riehl said, when threatened by the bureau, Baumhoff delivered her securities in Riehl's office, explaining that financial difficulties of the firm had caused the delay.

In another case, a woman accepted a note for $1000 signed by Baumhoff for the company and as an individual, and payable in 1923 as settlement for undelivered securities.

In his receivership suit, Wahlmann asked that the Baumhoffs, father and sons, be restrained from exercising their powers as officers of the concern and from transferring any of the assets. He accused them of gross mismanagement and asserted they had made the company "a family institution, giving the offices and control of the corporation to relatives of the chief stockholder and paying them

EXPLOSION KILLS 7 AT BASKETBALL GAME

20 Injured When Acetylene Gas Wrecks Hall at Turner, Idaho.

By the Associated Press.

TURNER, Idaho, Jan. 27.—Seven persons are dead and about 20 injured as the result of an explosion of acetylene gas which wrecked a Mormon chapel and recreation hall here last night during a basketball game.

More than 200 persons had assembled in the one-story frame building for a game between the Turner and Central, Idaho, teams. Shortly after play started the lighting system failed and, witnesses said, someone struck a match. An explosion followed, wrecking the rear wall.

As the players and spectators started for the exit at the front of the building, a portion of the ceiling fell. Before the hall could be cleared the front wall collapsed. Most of the dead and many of the injured were found near the front exit.

The body of James McCann, the janitor, was found in the basement where he had gone to inspect the lighting system tanks. The bodies of his two sons and his brother, Brigham McCann, were near the exit. Mrs. James McCann and another child were severely cut and bruised. The child died today.

Two more bodies were identified as those of Elmer Anderson and Ira Lowe, both members of the Central team. Mrs. Lowe and Mrs. Anderson, who had accompanied their husbands to the game, were injured.

The more seriously injured were given first aid in a school house here, while some were taken to Grace, Idaho.

Some of the injured said they were blown from the building. Others near the door found little difficulty in escaping.

BILL TO CREATE BUDGET SYSTEM IN STATE SENATE

Senator McCawley in Presenting Measure Severely Criticises Waste in Expending Public Funds.

REVENUE SUFFICIENT NOW, HE ASSERTS

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 27.—A severe indictment of the unbusiness-like methods of operation of the State government with a consequent waste of public funds was delivered in the Senate today by Senator McCawley of Carthage, in introducing the departmental consolidation bill of the Association for Economy in Public Expenditures. He said that if intelligent consideration was given to "stopping up the rat holes" there would be no occasion for the additional taxes which the State administration is seeking to have authorized.

"Missouri does not actually need any more revenue," Senator McCawley said, "and if this Legislature should authorize the nuisance taxes which we were asked by the Governor in his message to authorize it would not be fair playing with the people of the State. I am quite confident that the Legislature will not adopt this proposed penny-catching device, but it may be expected that all the pressure of the administration will be brought to bear upon us to pass the Governor's bills.

"An intelligent and careful survey of State governmental methods has been made by the Association for Economy in Public Expenditures, and, notwithstanding the criticism we have heard of that association, I am confident that its report gives a very fair picture of the reckless waste with which the people's money is being spent.

"Every session of the Legislature for many years we have added to the expenses of the State by the creation of new bureaus and new officers to do something that some group of people thought ought to be done. Frequently those very things were being done by the State to the full measure of proper state responsibility. But we have added these new bureaus, until at the present time we find two or three or four sets of officials doing virtually the same thing, and all drawing salaries and expenses.

"I am sure that every Senator believes that every proper function of government should be exercised by the State and that each should be supported to the full extent that it can be supported, and also I am certain that we do not believe there should be overlapping departments merely to provide salaries for unnecessary employes.

"This measure has been prepared with great care and after an exhaustive study of every feature of the State Government. It goes as far to correct the evils of our present system, as legislation can correct them."

Substance of Bill.

The bill seeks to create a budget commissioner to have supervision over State finances and to consolidate the more than 50 executive departments into nine major departments.

No attempt is made in the bill to fix salaries, that being left for decision by the Senate and House Committees and to be included in the form of a committee amendment if the advocates of the bill are successful in overcoming the influence of the lobbying job holders, who fear it would legislate them out of jobs, and the influence of the state administration which has been thrown against it, and are able to obtain favorable reports from the committees.

The department of agriculture would consist of four divisions: State fair, markets, animal industry, and agricultural activities.

The department of conservation and development would consist of the division of geology and mines of four citizens and the Governor ex-officio president.

Department of Taxation.

The department of taxation, revenue and disbursement would consist of three divisions, budget, property, purchases and printing, and tax collection. The director of taxation, revenue and disbursement ex-officio would be chairman of the tax commission.

The department of health would consist of three divisions, vital statistics, sanitation and registration and examination, with an advisory board of health consisting of seven persons appointed by the Governor.

The department of labor and industry would consist of two divisions, industrial inspection and labor activities. The workmen's compensation commission as now constituted would be transferred to this department.

The Department of Trade and Commerce would consist of three divisions, banking, grain and warehouse inspection, and insurance. The director of trade and commerce would serve as secretary of the Public Service Commission but have no authority or direction of the work of the commission beyond supervision of clerical work under direction of the commission as now constituted.

The Department of Public Welfare would consist of four divisions, correction, institutions charities, and state aid, with an advisory board of public welfare of five members appointed by the Governor and an advisory board of charities of five members appointed by the Governor.

FINGERPRINTS FOUND ON COUNTERFEIT BILLS

Fingerprints on $10,000 of counterfeit $20 bills which fell into the hands of Secret Service agents, following the arrest of Lee Miller, St. Louisan, at Kansas City, Dec. 14, are expected to lead to the printer who made the bogus notes, and his arrest will follow shortly, Secret Service men say.

Statements made by Miller and other persons arrested for passing the $20 counterfeits indicate that they originated in a print shop here.

Government agents, working back on Miller's trail, found five packages of counterfeit money containing $2000 each in a mattress in a hotel room which had been occupied by Miller in Wichita, Kan. An additional $9000 of the bogus money was discovered buried near a house at Leeds, Mo., which Miller formerly had rented.

The bills taken from the Wichita hotel never had been circulated and were in fresh packages. Through a chemical process fingerprints were developed from these banknotes, giving the Government agents a clew which they think will result in the arrest of the St. Louis counterfeiter.

Numerous persons have been arrested here recently for passing $20 counterfeits. In most instances they proved to be innocent dupes of the counterfeiters.

BROTHERS GO TO TRIAL IN $125,250 MAIL SWINDLE

Walter and Luther Sanderson Will Face Jury in Springfield, Ill., in Moran Fraud Hearing.

FOUR OTHERS NAMED ARE STILL AT LARGE

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 27.—A jury is being selected today before Federal Judge Fitz Henry to try two alleged members of "Chappie" Moran's gang of confidence men, who swindled six Illinoisans out of $125,250 in "con" games during two years beginning in 1923.

The defendants, indicted for using the mails to defraud, are Walter and Luther Sanderson, brothers, of Litchfield, Ill. Jointly indicted with them were James Brady, Tony Serpo, a "Mr. Cashton" and a "Col. C. K. Patterson." Brady was arrested, but forfeited his bond and disappeared; the others never have been apprehended.

One Man Lost $14,500.

The complaining witness is Lava B. Trotter of Jacksonville, who lost $14,500 in the swindle. Other Illinoisans who lost in similar swindles are: James Metcalf, Alton, $50,000; Conrad Greisser, Springfield, $16,000; Louis Broverman, Pana, $20,300; William G. Frank, Okawville, $35,000, and Louis Buescher, Danvers, $11,500.

The Government has issued subpenas for Metcalf and Frank in the Trotter case, expecting them to tell how they were victimized by the same men who took Trotter's money. Metcalf is here, but Frank—Mayor, banker and hotel owner of Okawville—is said to be in Texas on business and unable to come here.

Postoffice inspectors say several of the victims have been reluctant to testify that they were "taken in."

Another Trial in St. Louis.

Trial of the Frank swindle case, with the Sandersons, Moran and others as defendants, is to be held in Federal Court at St. Louis.

In the Trotter case, the Government expects to prove that the Sanderson brothers worked on Trotter's farm and, after gaining his confidence, introduced him to "Col. Patterson" at Peoria, a capitalist, who bought farms and other things. The "Colonel" referred them to his secretary, alleged to have been Brady, and the latter switched them from the idea of selling a farm to the idea of buying "Gold Nugget" stock, which, he said, could be bought low and sold high. Trotter "bit," paid $14,450 for stock and went to Chicago to sell it at considerable profit. Too late he discovered that the stock was worthless, and his "friends" had disappeared.

Four counts of the indictment against the Sandersons charge them with mailing Trotter's drafts for the $14,450, and mailing two letters to Trotter's daughter, now Mrs. Margaret Darush, in an attempt to allay her suspicions of her father's "friends."

"Favorably" Letter Said.

One letter dated in Chicago Nov. 21, 1923, while the "deal" was in progress, and signed "Walt," was as follows:

"Friend Margaret: Am writing you as per contract. Ha! Ha! We arrived here last night about 7 o'clock. All feeling fine. Mr. Trotter says he is feeling as good as if he was home. So don't be uneasy and we will all be back before long. Everything looks favorable."

Another "Ha! Ha!" was appended as a postscript.

Another letter followed the next day.

"Just a line. Your father wanted me to write and tell you everything was fine. Will see the main guns so don't be uneasy till our return. We'll keep you posted."

This letter was signed "W. B. Nelson," the "Walt" who had written before. The Government alleges he is Walter Sanderson, once known as the "Boy Evangelist of Illinois."

Harold J. Bandy of Granite City, defense lawyer, will fight to keep the letters out of evidence on the ground that they are irrelevant.

Declares Ferguson Said Carleton Would Take Blame minute acquaintance with the records.

Speaking of Ferguson's I. O. U. slips as "debit memoranda," Malecek told also of debit memoranda of the Alligator Clothing Co., which were carried as cash in the assets of Ferguson-McKinney. He identified checks showing payments of $349,000 to the Alligator company.

Paid Dividends Despite Loss.

Malecek testified that payment of dividends continued after he had made his report to Ferguson, showing the precarious financial condition of the company, and the loss of nearly $800,000 in 10 months. Checks for the payment of three dividends to Ferguson, on the preferred stock owned by him, and for a total of $5873, were shown, dated from January to August, 1925.

He testified again that Ferguson owed the company $115,677 at the time of the financial statement of Feb. 28, 1925, and said Ferguson increased this indebtedness to $188,570 before Nov. 2, when the

During that time, he said, Ferguson received his salary, in addition to the dividends and advances of the company's funds.

He identified several sheets, prepared by him, which showed the true condition of the company, as compared with the inflated showing made for purposes of credit. These sheets showed that, instead of a surplus of $301,018 as of Feb. 28, 1925, the concern had a deficit of $1,449,156.

The true figures, Malecek said, he had reached by deducting false entries of sales to the Alligator Clothing Co., the Carleton Dry Goods Co. and other concerns. In making these corrections, he said, he lowered the padded inventory by $569,824.

$1,000,000 Slump in Two Years.

He said the records showed loss of more than $1,000,000 in two years, the gross sales dropping from the $7,000,000 rank to below $6,000,000. The net loss through sales as of Feb. 23, 1924, he gave as $289,357, and the net loss between that date and Feb. 28, 1925, was $1,149,748.

He told of the directors' meeting of Jan. 13, 1925, at which Ferguson, Baggot and Carleton were re-elected to their positions. Carleton was present and moved the payment of the regular seven per cent on preferred stock, payable quarterly, and this was voted.

Tells of "Kiting" $1,251,000.

The last matter about which Malecek was questioned in his direct examination was the so-called "giff" of $1,251,000 by Carleton to Ferguson-McKinney. This, it developed, was a "kiting" of money across Twelfth street, from the Carleton Dry Goods Co. to Ferguson-McKinney, the money being returned after the financial statement had been made up with its help. Of the total $842,000 was a contribution from the Carleton Dry Goods Co. funds, and $409,000 was Carleton's remittance for the purpose of meeting obligations of the Alligator Clothing Co.

Malecek testified that a total of $1,286,000 was returned to the associated companies, after the statement had been made up. The added $125,000, he said, was "charged to taxes."

Cross-examination of Malecek by Ferguson's counsel, Edward W. Foristel, this afternoon was directed toward emphasizing Carleton's part in the company's affairs.

The lawyer, questioning Malecek, and with Malecek's assent, spoke of Carleton as dominating the Ferguson-McKinney Co., having charge of the finances and negotiating all loans.

"He would come in every morning," Malecek said, "and check up the bank balances, maturities on merchandise and notes, and bills payable."

Had Confidence in Carleton.

In response to further questions, Malecek said he had come to have implicit confidence in Carleton's integrity, and believed he could do whatever he committed himself to; Carleton consulted no one as to the company's policies, he said. Malecek was questioned about a $5000 bonus received by him in 1925, and said that, at the time, he did not know of the company's precarious condition, or he would not have accepted the money.

He said that late in 1924 or early in 1925, before the February inventory, Carleton asked to see the ledger and asked Malecek whether his instructions had been carried out, and Malecek replied that they had. Carleton asked if there were any "tickets" against the Alligator company, and the cashier replied that the Alligator obligations were carried on a memorandum, as the practice had been.

Malecek said he had considered Carleton one of the wealthiest men in St. Louis, and able to finance any undertaking.

Ferguson's lawyer sought to bring out that the money taken by Ferguson from the Ferguson-McKinney Co., on I. O. U. slips, was used by Ferguson to buy out small stockholders. Malecek did not know as to this. He did know that Ferguson suggested to Carleton the closing down of the company, saying he, Ferguson, would retire to his model farm enterprise, Falls River Farms, in Louisiana.

Malecek testified yesterday that, on the instructions of Ferguson, he prepared a false statement for the balance sheet of Feb. 28, 1925. He said Ferguson told him Carleton had ordered that the Carleton Dry Goods Co. be charged with a half-million dollars as an account payable.

"Mr. Ferguson gave instructions," he said, "as to the numbers of shirts and overalls to be entered as sold to the Carleton Dry Goods Co. The amount was $565,625. The sale never was actually made, but it was shown on the books at the time of the accountants' examination."

Malecek identified the sales sheets of the purported dealings with the Carleton Dry Goods Co., made out Feb. 6, 10 and 11, 1925, and the corresponding entries in the books.

Malecek related that an inventory, prepared by him at Ferguson's direction, and showing $1,550,924 of assets, was padded to the extent of $569,824; and that a showing of accounts payable, as $71,216.79, was only a fraction of the actual amount of such accounts, and omitted the purchases of spring merchandise. Figures as to the dividends, shown as $17,500, were also incorrect, he said.

SAYS HE WAS MAKING WHISKY FOR SICK WIFE WHEN ARRESTED

Judge Refuses Guilty Plea; Woman Died While He Was in Jail.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 27.—A plea of guilty of violation of the national prohibition act was changed to "not guilty" by Federal Judge Fitz Henry in the Federal Court here today. John Papas of Madison followed his plea of guilty with the story of his offense. He told the court of the illness of his wife, for whom the doctor prescribed whisky.

Papas did not have the money to buy the liquor so a still was borrowed from a neighbor and started by Mrs. Papas. Then the Federal agents swooped down on the Papas home and he was taken to jail. While he was in jail Mrs. Papas died.

Judge Fitz Henry refused to take the plea of guilty and set the case for trial at the June term of court.

amounts of money in excess of the value of their services." He charged that they failed to order stockholders meetings either in 1926 or 1927 and that he was denied access to the books and records.

Suit Precipitates Collapse.

The financial straits of the concern were admitted Tuesday, the day after Wahlmann sued the elder Baumhoff on a demand note for $2075.62 executed in 1919 and never paid. At that time he stated that he owned $4500 of the company's capital stock, which had paid no dividends since it was organized in 1921.

Baumhoff was Postmaster from 1898 to 1903, and since has been connected with various investment houses. His firm sold about 100,000 shares in the speculative Verde Jerome Copper Mining Co. at 50 cents a share, but the Better Business Bureau has received no complaints of misrepresentation in the sale of the mining shares.

JUDGE ROSECAN CHANGES SYSTEM

Police Magistrate Will Not, However, Comment on Criticism by Alderman Neu.

Police Judge Rosecan today changed the order of the docket in his court to take up first the cases of prisoners who had been unable to give bond, following the criticism of Alderman John Neu yesterday, who pointed out that the city ordinance as to the order of business was being violated.

The Judge, whose lateness in opening court each morning came in for criticism from Alderman Neu, was on the bench at 9:25 a. m. He would have been there 15 minutes sooner had not a Post-Dispatch reporter delayed him in chambers to ask questions suggested by Alderman Neu's charges.

The reporter wanted to know what Judge Rosecan did in chambers each morning which so delayed him in opening court. To this Judge Rosecan replied, "I can look the world squarely in the eye." He would not discuss Alderman Neu's comments on the latter's announcement of his decision to ask tomorrow for an Aldermanic inquiry into the conduct of Rosecan's court.

The customary procedure of Judge Rosecan is to hear traffic cases first, then the cases of prisoners who have been unable to furnish bond, and last the more serious peace disturbance cases. Alderman Neu pointed out that such a program is contrary to the ordinance which seeks to protect those detained in the holdover through inability to pay a bondsman. Sometimes these prisoners are held until late in the day and then released after a hearing establishes their innocence.

This morning Judge Rosecan opened court with the words: "Mr. Marshal, will you please find seats for the Post-Dispatch reporters." He then astonished a throng of traffic offenders by calling the cases of prisoners held overnight and taking the docket seriatim, thus requiring more prosperous offenders to wait until these were finished.

Persons familiar with Judge Rosecan's conferences in chambers before court opens, say that many of his visitors request nothing more than a chance to save some time. Instead of waiting for their turn on the docket, minor traffic offenders sometimes ask the Judge and Prosecutor Hackman who usually is present, to let them plead guilty and pay the usual fine, which in most cases is the costs—$3. The Judge agrees to this, his clerk takes their money, and when their case is reached notes the fact of guilty on the docket. They thus escape waiting several hours. Another class of visitors always clamoring to see Judge Rosecan is that seeking continuances. Sickness, business demands and all sorts of excuses are pleaded to the Judge in chambers.

The politicians who hang about the Municipal Courts Building say that a Police Judge cannot be expected to turn a deaf ear to such requests for favors. The two Police Courts have long been regarded as stepping stones to the Circuit bench. Men appointed to them no infrequently, in the past, have performed political favors in order to build up a following. Among the former Police Judges who now are Circuit Judges are Anthony F. Ittner, George E. Mix and Granville Hogan.

ler Nolte say the city cannot afford the extra expense.

When it was proposed at the last session to increase the salary of St. Louis patrolmen to $200, Blodgett told the Legislators the city could not pay that much. The salary was finally fixed at $180. Kansas City policemen are now trying for a $200 salary, and Blodgett will oppose the increase, on the theory that if Kansas City police get $200 St. Louis police will have a good argument for getting the same.

Legislation which Blodgett will advocate includes Mayor Miller's bills to give the Board of Estimate control over the tax revenue of the Art Museum, Public Library and Zoo; and a bill requiring trust companies to pay a tax return on stock in holding companies. It is estimated this last bill, if passed, would add $500,000 a year to the city's revenue.

Also favored by the Board of Estimate—and, therefore, by Blodgett—is a limited home rule bill giving the Board of Aldermen discretionary power over police appropriations.

Among the bills defeated in the Legislature in 1925 were some which, if passed, would have added more than $1,000,000 annually to the city's payrolls, according to Comptroller Nolte. He credits Blodgett with a part in defeating such legislation.

...RRIS AT HOME ...FTER ACQUITTAL GREETED BY 6500

...OWS RABBIT'S FOOT ...E CARRIED AT TRIAL

...y Secretly Put It in His Pocket—Jury That Freed Him Preceded Vote With Prayer.

By F. A. BEHYMER.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 27.—The Rev. J. Frank Norris, acquitted day before yesterday at Austin of the murder of G. E. Chipps, came home last night and was hailed at his church by thousands of his people with hallelujahs and amens. It was only at his insistence that the rejoicing was not expressed by handclapping and cheering.

It was prayer meeting night at the First Baptist Church but prayers gave way to thanksgiving. It was the continuation of an impromptu celebration held the night before when the news of the acquittal was received and sent out over the Norris radio broadcasting station.

Norris and his family left Austin at 11:30 a. m., arrived at Dallas at 5 p. m. and from there came by interurban, reaching here at 6:40 p. m. Several hundred persons met them at the car and escorted them to the church. Norris held an impromptu reception in his office while the huge church, built like a theater, was filling.

There were 6500 persons on the main floor and in the balconies when the two pianos, one at each side of the great stage, struck up "Pass Me Not, Oh Gentle Savior." The curtains were swept back and the choir of 500, brought into view, took up the song. Pianos and singers swung into "I'm Bound for the Promised Land."

Billy Sunday's Wire Applauded.

The radio was rigged up, a secretary came with a sheaf of congratulatory telegrams in his hand and began reading them, the audience applauding especially when one from Billy Sunday, rejoicing with Norris in his acquittal and saying that his own audience at Mobile, Ala., had cheered the announcement. One was from a man who said he had prayed all night for the preacher's acquittal. Most of them were from Texas, but some from other states and Canada.

One of the telegrams of congratulation was filed before the verdict was rendered, which prompted the announcer to say that telegrams announcing the acquittal were written by Miss Jane Hartwell, Norris' secretary, five hours before the verdict was brought in.

In the midst of the reading Norris walked out on the platform. Choir and audience rose. A wave of handclapping, which would soon have been punctuated by Texas yells, was stopped by the pianos crashing into "When ... Came Into My Heart," and ... and audience took up the ... followed by "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Norris sat with bowed head. The announcer read more telegrams until Norris arose, stepped to his side and motioned for him to cease.

Deprecates Applause.

"I will read you a selection from the scriptures," he said at ... and he read from the twenty-...th chapter of Acts.

"This is not my plan or wish," he said with a gesture toward the audience. "If there is in it any... that smacks celebration, you ...e misunderstood my feelings. ...ask that there be no demonstration, no handclapping."

He announced that next Sunday he would preach "The Potter's Wheel" and at night deliver without bitterness a message to the people of the city.

He spoke then as if it at a regular prayer meeting.

He told of the kindness that had been shown him at Austin ...applause started. He checked ... with upraised hand and ...ase."

His soul, he said, burned with ...ings he wanted to say about the colossal diabolical conspiracy" ...t had failed. A wave of amens and hallelujahs swept up ... him.

Got Rabbit's Foot at Trial.

Amens gave way to laughter when he took a rabbit's foot from ... pocket and wagged it aloft. "I ... going into court the first day ... the trial when a boy pressed ... my side and offered it to me ...ing it had served him well. I ...anked him, but told him to keep it. Later I found it in my overcoat pocket. I shall have it mounted and keep it always."

... changed mood he said, "I have ... a thousand years in six months." Sweeping the assemblage with his eye he exclaimed: "What an army you are. Ye are my joy and crown."

He raised his hand in a gesture of dismissal, the pianos started "Onward Christian Soldiers." Norris stepped to a lower platform and for half an hour shook hands with people who crowded about him.

Prayer in Jury Room.

It was a celebration for which a scene in the courthouse at Austin Tuesday night was a fitting prelude.

The jury had gone to its room to consider its verdict—12 Texas peers who had sworn before they were accepted as jurors that they would not be any harder on a preacher than on anybody else in a killing case, among them Brother King, blacksmith and member of the sect of Nazarenes.

"Brethren, let us pray," said "Brother King. They knelt or stood according to their custom and Brother King prayed after which W. D. Miller, who had been chosen foreman, said: "All who believe the defendant not guilty raise our right hands."

Twelve right hands were raised.

calling for a hearing, with the same understanding that this ended the matter unless subsequent developments should necessitate a hearing and publication.

"Shortly thereafter gossip and rumor got busy, as usually transpires when these two kindly, sympathetic agencies are at work. They left in their wake a variety of progeny infinitely more harmful to the individuals concerned than the truth could possibly be. Many press associations and scores of newspapers were persistently demanding the facts. Therefore, Cobb, Speaker and Wood were called to Chicago and the situation laid before them. They all realized that untrue, distorted and garbled accounts were being inundated and agreed that a hearing had become desirable, even with Leonard persisting in staying away.

"Accordingly a final effort was made to have him attend, but again he refused. The hearing was held and the commissioner at once issued the record for publication in accordance with his definite understanding with Cobb, Speaker and Wood."

Navin, Happy, Will Put Cobb Back on Reserve List.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 27.—"I am very happy," Frank Navin, acting president of the American League and owner of the Detroit baseball club, said today when he learned that Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker had been cleared of charges involving a "fixed" game by Judge K. M. Landis.

"It was an unfortunate affair," he said. "I always said to anyone who asked me that I thought Cobb an honest ball player, who always did his best to win. I held the same view about Speaker. I rather expected and always hoped for the acquittal. If the decision so reads, we will take Cobb back on our reserve list."

Tris Says He Will Play "Like Speaker of Old."

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 27.—Tris Speaker today said he was pleased with the decision of Commissioner Landis clearing him of the Dutch Leonard charges and expected to be in harness next season to prove to the baseball world "that he is the Tris Speaker of old."

Any likelihood that Speaker would return to his old position in the Cleveland center field, but minus the role of manager, was virtually dispelled in a statement issued by E. S. Barnard, president of the Cleveland club. Barnard said he and everyone who knows Speaker were jubilant over the Landis decision; that the Cleveland club never wanted him to resign as manager, and that his old job would be waiting for him had he not retired. "It would be unfair and unwise to ask Speaker to play center field with the Indians," Barnard said, "but we wish him well and know that he will be well placed."

Barnard said that had Speaker decided to fight the Leonard charges openly before relinquishing his managerial position the support of the entire club would have been behind him.

"He never was requested by the Cleveland club to retire. He did so voluntarily," Barnard said.

"Of course, after he resigned, it was necessary for the club to conduct its business. Jack McAllister was appointed manager and the contract with McAllister is binding. It is impossible to restore Speaker as manager of the Indians. The position would have been waiting for him, however, had he decided to fight before he retired."

SLAYER SAYS VICTIM IS BURIED IN 11 GRAVES

Bigamist W. H. Coffey Elaborates Story of Dismembering Body of Wife No. 2.

By the Associated Press.

MAUSTON, Wis., Jan. 27.—Eleven graves were used by William N. Coffey, confessed slayer of his second bigamous wife, to bury her dismembered body, he told authorities today.

Coffey, who has another wife, previously said he had accidentally killed wife No. 2 with a baseball bat Oct. 9 in a camp on the Mississippi and had thrown her body into the river.

Later he said he had dismembered her body and buried it in eleven graves near Platteville, Wis.

District Attorney R. M. Orchard of Grant County, in which Coffey said the killing occurred, arrived today to aid in the investigation. Orchard said a murder warrant would not be issued until Coffey's story had been verified.

The second confession was obtained after the discovery of a pick and shovel and a grass mat bearing stains in the basement of Coffey's home at Madison, where his wife and three children lived.

MRS. HORNSBY GOT $26,800 ON NOTES, SAYS BOOKMAKER

F. L. Moore, Suing Ball Player for $70,075, Declares He Holds His Paper for Loans to Wife.

In a suit for $70,075 filed here today against Rogers Hornsby, former manager of the world champion Cardinals, Frank L. Moore, horse race betting commissioner of Newport, Ky., sets forth that $26,800 of the amount represented money advanced by him to Mrs. Hornsby on her husband's notes.

Eleven separate items are listed in Moore's petition, but he does not state the purposes for which he says he advanced the various sums, running from $850 to $18,000 to Hornsby.

In a statement published by the Post-Dispatch last Saturday, announcing his plan to sue, Moore declared that he had bet $70,000 on horse races for Hornsby in January and February of last year. Part of the claims against Hornsby, he said, represented bets lost on horses which Hornsby placed with Moore and did not pay.

No Attachment Attempted.

Moore in his suit did not attempt to attach Hornsby's 1167 shares of stock in the Cardinal baseball club, or his share in the apartment building at ... Kingsbury boulevard, as he had planned.

An attorney, who is suing Hornsby for $5200 on a bill for services, has obtained an attachment against the stock.

The former Cardinal manager, now captain of the New York Giants, has denied owing Moore any money. He admits only one loan from Moore, an item of $7500, which, he says, Moore advanced him to buy an interest in the apartment building, but he asserts that loan was paid off.

Run From $850 to $18,000.

The claims made by Moore against Hornsby run in following amounts: $4930, $4000, $860, $5000, $5000, $4770, $7500, $7950, $18,000, $7000 and $5675. The $18,000 item is not explained by the text of the petition, it being described as a cash loan made on March 6, 1926, and the money paid to Mrs. Hornsby. Moore claims that Hornsby agreed to repay this loan on demand.

On the same day, March 6, that he says he advanced $18,000 to Mrs. Hornsby, Moore asserts that the National Bank of Commerce paid her $7950 against his ... The third payment to Mrs. Hornsby alleged in the petition occurred on July 16, 1925, Moore averring that he sent his check for that amount to her at Hornsby's request.

The Kentucky racing man has explained one item in his petition—a demand for $4930 as being money he paid to Phil McGuire, a New York betting commissioner, to cover a bet lost by Hornsby. He says in his petition that Hornsby asked him to settle this debt and promised repayment.

Beside the apartment loan, the only other transaction explained by Moore is a $4000 item covering Hornsby's alleged purchase of interest in a Jacksonville, Fla., greyhound racing track. Moore sets forth that he advanced the money for Hornsby's interest and delivered the shares but Hornsby never reimbursed him.

Moore is represented by Attorney Thomas Rowe Sr., who filed the petition in the Circuit Court.

GERMAN DENTIST WRITES A HISTORY OF THE TOOTHPICK

Monumental Work Discusses Bronze Splinters and Jeweled Excavators of Ancient Times.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—Dr. Hans Sachs, a well-known German dentist, has just published a monumental work on "the toothpick and its history." Dr. Sachs has not only studied the toothpick in its native haunts, but himself possesses one of the largest collection of toothpicks in existence.

In his house are the earliest—the bronze splinters from prehistoric excavations in Italy and Switzerland. Near by are strange jeweled and carved toothpicks from the Renaissance, some to be worn on a ring, and giving in a single instrument toothpick, nail cleaner, ear wax remover and "tongue cleaner." Toothpicks in ebony and ivory, toothpicks of silver and gold, some small as those of today, others 18 inches long, combined with pipes and toys and table forks. Many are curved like sickles, but the majority are straight.

The first mention of toothpicks in literature is contained in the Epistulae of the Greek Alciphron in the second century before Christ.

Visitor at Collector Koeln's Office Had Said He Wanted a Loan.

A man, who said he wanted to borrow some money from Collector Edmund Koeln, took Koeln's $75 overcoat, instead, when waiting in the Collector's private office at city hall, yesterday afternoon.

Koeln was busy in the general office when the man came in and told the visitor he would see him in the private office shortly. When the Collector entered the man had gone and the overcoat was missing.

MAN IN ILL HEALTH MISSING

Search is being made for Thomas Tinker, 45 years old, who disappeared Tuesday from the home of his sister, Mrs. Lydia Hewitt, 3539 La Salle street, with whom he resided. Tinker is in ill health and is thought to have been unable to find his way home from a nearby grocery to which he had been sent for supplies.

Tinker is unable to talk plainly. He was wearing a dark coat and overcoat and corduroy trousers when he disappeared.

SPRAGUE COMPANY SAYS IT CAN MEET $90,000 IN CLAIMS

Realty Concern, Sued in Bankruptcy, Declares Assets Are Adequate, Barring Shrinkage.

Claims of approximately $90,000 are outstanding against the Jesse M. Sprague Realty and Construction Co., 106 North Eighth street, against which an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court yesterday.

The company has assets, including equities in buildings, sufficient to meet all liabilities, if there is no great shrinkage in the assets caused by forced liquidation, according to Chase Morsey, attorney for the company. Morsey says efforts are being made to raise money to tide the company over its difficulties.

The bankruptcy petition was filed by Attorney Montague Lyons Jr. for four creditors, as follows: Pitzman Co., surveyors and engineers, $307; Nangle-Gillis Chevrolet Co., $109; Wellington Printing Co., $94, and Fuel Oil Co., $56. Their claims are for services and supplies.

Creditors Charge Insolvency.

The petitioners charge that the company is insolvent and committed an act of bankruptcy last Sept. 30 by transferring to a preferred creditor, Louise Schultz, eight parcels of real estate, of unestimated value, as follows: 5209-5247-5237 Palm street; 7317-7321-7325-7331 Zephyr place, and 7405 Lyndover place.

Sprague lives at 7331 Zephyr place.

The company was incorporated in 1924 with $10,000 capital stock. Officers were Jesse M. Sprague, president; Vincil R. Stamm, vice president, and Otto T. Lademan, secretary-treasurer. Lademan has since resigned.

Sprague, the son of a real estate dealer, had previously been employed by a realty firm to look after repairs on its properties. As head of his own company he specialized in the erection of apartment buildings.

BURNED TO DEATH

SALVATORE BIANCO.

CHILD, 4, FATALLY BURNED AT PLAY

Companions Say He Set Clothing Afire With Blazing Stick From Furnace.

Playing with a burning stick which he had drawn from the furnace, Salvatore Bianco, 4 years old, was fatally burned in the basement of his home, 3510 St. Louis avenue, at 1:30 p. m. yesterday. His mother, Mrs. Josephine Bianco, attracted by his cries, found his clothing in flames and took him to Mullanphy Hospital, where he died at 5:45 p. m.

Two other small boys, who were with Salvatore, said the end of the stick was sticking from the furnace door when he spied it. He grasped the stick, drew it out and was running across the basement floor when his clothing caught fire.

BOGUS LORD BIGAMIST, ANNULMENT SUIT SAYS

Daughter of the Rev. Norman Guthrie of New York Deceived in Marriage, She Alleges.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—When Clara Sylvia Guthrie, daughter of the Rev. William Norman Guthrie, rector of the Episcopal Church of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, was married to Edward Charles McKenzie-Martyn June 20, 1923, in this city, she thought she was marrying a young English lord unhampered by matrimonial ties, she stated in papers filed in the Supreme Court for annulment of her marriage. Six months ago Mrs. McKenzie-Martyn says in her complaint, her husband left for parts unknown and an investigation into his past was started.

"He said he was not married, but the investigation showed that he was married, and still is married, to Frances Louise Stewart McKenzie-Martyn," the complaint states. "This Mrs. McKenzie-Martyn is now living in England, where she met and married her husband.

"He was held in good esteem in various British communities, he said. He represented himself as a former British army officer, a Major in the British Royal Flying Corps. He said he had been decorated with the Victoria Cross and other medals in the World War. He represented himself as having been a King's messenger and a special duty officer in the British Secret Service.

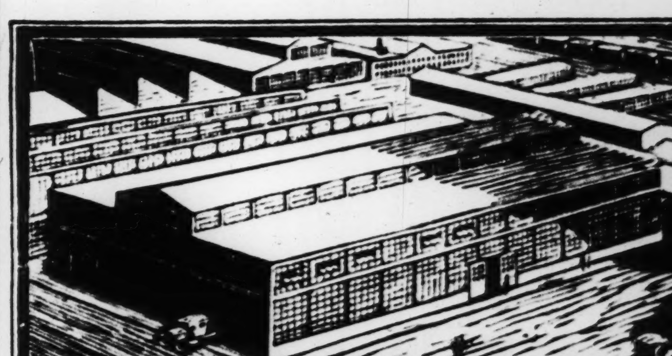

"He represented himself as of royal lineage, saying he was a son of Lord St. Leven of St. Michael's Mount, Cornwall, England, and claimed his title was Lord Trevellain, saying that his grandmother was Lady Grosvenor and his sister the wife of Lord Leslie.

"The defendant also claimed to be a member of the well-known McKenzie-Martyn family of England, and said he had substantial means to support me in the manner to which I had been accustomed. He told me that he owned a home in Grosvenor Square, London, and had other landed estates in Great Britain. Grosvenor Square is one of London's most exclusive residential districts."

The complaint sets forth that Mr. McKenzie-Martyn said he had attended Cambridge University and held an engineering degree from that institution. At present, it is added, he is workin gfor the Miller Automobile Co., Los Angeles, Cal.

All the representations of her husband Mrs. McKenzie-Martyn branded as "gross misrepresentations and falsehoods."

The ONE-DAY SALE is a store-wide event—embracing offerings in practically every department, and all at prices dictated solely by our desire for quick disposal of the merchandise. Cost and former selling price are absolutely disregarded; in some instances the items are offered at a mere fraction of their actual cost. Because of the vast number and variety of items included and the limited quantities available—in some cases only one or two of a kind—it is impossible for us to describe the offerings in detail, or even to list them here. MAYOR FEARS WABASH PLANS TO RAISE TRACK

Explains Insistence on City's Method of Eliminating Delmar Grade Crossing.

City officials have a right to be stubborn in their insistence on the city's plan for eliminating the Wabash Railroad's Delmar grade crossing, Mayor Miller declared in a statement issued yesterday.

He charges that the Wabash, in insisting on a 22-foot clearance of the Delmar viaduct over its tracks, is not sincerely desirous of establishing such a clearance. If the city built a viaduct 22 feet above the tracks, he says, the Wabash would raise its tracks two or even four feet, leaving only a 20-foot or an 18-foot clearance. Then, the Mayor says, it would be in a position to proceed with its plan of track elevation over the street at the [illegible] avenue crossing, and [illegible] for elevated tracks at [illegible], which would cut off the [illegible] of Jefferson Memorial and [illegible] boulevard, is opposed by the city and by adjacent property owners.

Supreme Court Order.

The United States Supreme Court recently [illegible] the Missouri Supreme Court [illegible] the order of the State Public Service Commission, directing the Wabash to comply with the city's plan for an 18-foot clearance. This was done because of the State law, passed since the case was instituted, which requires a 22-foot clearance. As has been pointed out, there are viaducts over the Wabash on either side of Delmar with clearances of 18 feet or less, the St. Charles road viaduct and that at [illegible] way, so that 22 feet at Delmar would give no added element of safety. The clearance law is for the protection of freight trainmen, but few freight trains are routed over these tracks.

"Eighteen feet clearance at Delmar will prevent any elevation of tracks south of there," the Mayor said in his prepared statement. "Twenty feet or 22 feet clearance will make possible such higher elevation. This may be accepted by the public as a statement of engineering fact readily provable to anyone who wants proof.

"In truth, the best proof is the fact that the railroad itself has prepared plans showing how, in either case, it can elevate its tracks over the streets between Delmar and Forest Park.

"There is nothing sacred about 18 feet as applied to clearances. It is a fact that more than that at Delmar would add hundreds of thousands in cost and be an economic waste. It is also true that no added safety would be accomplished thereby, as lesser clearances exist over the railroad on both sides of the crossing.

Questions Retroactive Law.

"The Missouri law (enacted in 1925) did not exist when the Public Service Commission made its order (in 1923), or when the Missouri Supreme Court passed on the appeal (in 1924). Whether it is retroactive on a matter still unsettled by reason of appeal is a question for the court.

"However, it is a fact that the Missouri Supreme Court had before it and reviewed all the evidence bearing on the question of clearance. The facts are the same today as they were then; the evidence is just as pertinent now as it was then. And on this evidence the Missouri Supreme Court did pass on the question of practicability.

"Not only did it find 22 feet to be impracticable, but it declared that more than 18 feet was not practicable.

'HUMAN FLY' CLIMBS INTO JAIL

Berlin Judge Disapproves Venturesome Man's Performance.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—"Climbing Max," Berlin's best-known "human fly," climbed up the facade of a building on Unter den Linden, but got stuck near the top and had to be rescued by the Fire Department. Summoned to court, he climbed the face of the building, intending to make a dramatic entrance by stepping into the courtroom through one of the windows. Unfortunately he stepped into an empty room, found the door locked and had to climb down, landing in the arms of a policeman.

He was sent to jail for a fortnight for his disapproved venturesomeness.

WALSH QUESTIONS GOULD'S VERACITY

Maine Senator's Claim to Seat May Hang on the Meaning of "I."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The veracity of Senator Gould (Rep.), Maine, was challenged yesterday before the Senate Elections Committee investigating charges that he bribed a Premier of New Brunswick, Canada, in connection with a railroad contract.

W. L. Hinckley, counsel for the Maine Senator, declared that Senator Walsh (Dem.), Montana, whose resolution started the inquiry, had sought to impeach the testimony of Gould by quoting a part of the testimony offered to the committee instead of considering it as a whole.

The argument centered around the pronoun "I." Senator Gould, when he appeared in New Brunswick before Justice McKeown, testified he had given Premier Flemming $100,000 as a contribution to his Conservative party, but explained later he meant that his railroad corporation had made the contribution and that it was done without his knowledge or consent.

Senator Walsh today attacked this testimony as absurd, adding that if that were the case, Senator Gould had placed himself in the position of a man who, knowing that a crime was to be committed and with power to stop it, had not raised his hand against it and had profited by it. "The discrepancy in the testimony is more important than the bribery charges," he said.

Replying, Hinckley declared that Senator Gould had plainly showed that he meant the railroad company when he said "I," by stating further in the New Brunswick testimony that "I" borrowed $350,000 from the Prudential Trust Co. when the record plainly showed that the railroad company had made the loan.

Counsel Defends Gould.

No one could read the testimony of Ross Thompson, who was associated with Senator Gould, in the incorporation of the St. Johns & Quebec Railway Co., without concluding that the Senator had no part in turning over $100,000 to a political party in New Brunswick, Frederick C. Hinckley, counselor for Gould, testified today before the committee.

Thompson had testified that Gould had no hand in the transfer of the fund to Premier Flemming of New Brunswick in 1912.

Hinckley said that Walsh had never referred to Gould as Senator in argument before the committee and that this attitude would be resented by the people of Maine.

If the committee is to accept the contention of Senator Walsh that Senator Gould is guilty of bribery and perjury, Hinckley asserted, it must also hold that the other witnesses perjured themselves to aid Gould.

Like Tribute to Bandit.

"No case is made out at all and it would fall in any court of law," he said. "Bear in mind that a Senator of the United States has been charged with bribery and then with perjury. I cannot understand how a fellow Senator could so far forget himself in his apparent zeal as to charge a fellow Senator of serious things."

Hinckley said the $100,000 transaction was parallel to forced payments made by American ranchers to Pancho Villa to get their cattle over the Mexican border.

Senator Walsh told the committee that a telegram sent Tuesday to former Premier Flemming inviting him to appear, had not been delivered because physicians attending Flemming would not permit it.

ODD PETS VOGUE ON RIVIERA

By the Associated Press.

NICE, France, Jan. 27.—A new Riviera fashion is to carry all sorts of odd pets. Monkeys, parrots, love birds and cats can be seen perched on women's shoulders during a fashionable walk along the Promenade des Anglais here.

One English woman insists on taking her two cats to the restaurant where she dines. They sleep on cushioned chairs after they have been served with bread and milk by a waiter.

ANTI-MONOPOLY CLAUSE IN NEW RADIO MEASURE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—After months of work, House and Senate conferees have whipped into shape for final action radio control legislation.

Conferees on the Dill and White bills put the finishing touches to their report yesterday, and although Representative Davis (Dem.), Tennessee, refused to sign it and indicated he might file minority views, it was generally predicted that the redrafted measure would be passed and sent to the President.

The bill, which would establish Government control over all channels of interstate and foreign radio communication, represents in the view of the national radio coordinating committee, headed by Walter A. Strong of Chicago, "as nearly adequate legislation as could be agreed upon at this time."

"The law," a committee statement said today, "can be operated successfully under an intelligent and fair-minded commission. In the possibility of failure of the commission to function on this basis lies the greatest danger."

Commission Control for Year.

The bill vests in a commission of five complete control over radio for the first year after its enactment, after which it would have final say in all disputes growing out of decisions of the Secretary of Commerce, who would have initial control after one year.

Speaking for the radio co-ordinating committee, Strong, who is chairman of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, commended the manner in which the conferees "have concluded a compromise of all of the many and complex problems involved in the national emergency affecting radio which required an intelligent fair and speedy remedy."

Powers of Commission.

For one year a Federal commission would have authority to classify radio stations, prescribing the nature of the service to be rendered by each, assign wave lengths, determine the location of classes of stations or individual stations, regulate the kind of apparatus to be used with respect to its external effects, make regulations to prevent interference between stations, establish areas or zones to be served by any station, make special regulations applicable to radio stations engaged in broadcasting and have authority to hold hearings and compel the production of books and documents.

After the Secretary of Commerce takes over supervision of radio questions, he could refer to the commission any question he saw fit and any person, firm, company or corporation and any state or application thereof must be heard by the commission from any ruling or regulation made by him.

Broad authority would be given to the President to assign wave lengths to Government stations and in times of emergency to take over and operate, or close or dismantle any and all commercial or private stations. Just compensation would be given to the owners of such stations.

Provision Against Monopoly.

Licenses would be refused to any persons, firm or corporation found guilty in a Federal Court of unlawfully monopolizing or attempting unlawfully to monopolize radio communication.

To prevent foreign control of any radio stations, the bill sets forth that no licenses shall be granted to or transferred to any alien, any foreign Government or any corporation in which an alien is an officer or director, or in which one-fifth of the stock is voted by aliens.

All material broadcast and paid for by individuals or firms would have to be announced by the broadcasting station as paid for or furnished by such individual or firm, and stations permitting a political candidate to broadcast would be required to extend similar courtesies to all other candidates for that office.

Restrictions on Broadcasting.

Other provisions would prohibit the broadcasting of obscene, indecent and profane language, would give priority to distress signals from ships to the point of temporarily shutting down stations, prevent the divulging of the contents of private radio messages and authorize the Secretary of the Navy to use all Government radio stations under his control for the reception and transmission of press messages offered by any newspaper published in continental United States or its possessions or by any press association of this country. The secretary would fix the rates for such service, subject to review by the Interstate Commerce Commission in case of complaint.

Provision is made for a fine of $500 for any person, firm or corporation violating the law or regulations issued under the bill's provisions and a fine of $5000 and imprisonment for not more than five years or both for any person knowingly making a false oath at any hearing held, or in any affidavit required under the provisions of the measure.

BROWNING TO TESTIFY AND OFFER LETTERS

Denies Reports That He Will Drop Suit, to Be Resumed Monday.

By the Associated Press.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Counsel for Edward W. Browning, after study of the testimony given the last two days here in the separation suit brought by the 51-year-old real estate operator against 16-year-old former "Peaches" Heenan, will endeavor to offset this evidence, beginning Monday.

Browning, who was denied a bill of particulars some weeks ago, has learned in two days' testimony by his wife, her mother, friends and physicians what the specific allegations of cruelty against him are. These charges constituted his wife's answer to his suit accusing her of abandonment. The wife's case is complete except possibly for testimony by an alienist.

Public Hearing to Continue.

A recess was taken yesterday at the request of Browning's counsel. The hearing will continue open to the public. At to a protest from John S. Summer, of the New York Society for the Prevention of Vice, Justice Seeger said he had found nothing to lead him to believe the parties in the action had ever sought secrecy.

"The policy of our law is against secrecy except in such cases as are definitely set forth in the law," he added, and secrecy is "likely to breed perjury" as witnesses telling their story in open court realize that what they testify to may reach those who could contradict them if they testified falsely.

Brownings counsel is preparing a brief citing authority for the admission of a diary kept by Mrs. Browning before her marriage and ruled out by Justice Seeger.

The lawyer, John E. Mack, first offered in evidence a diary which Peaches at first testified was an exact copy of an original kept by her. Henry Epstein, her lawyer, later informed the court that Mrs. Browning had told him the copy omitted the names of boy friends. Epstein then produced the original and both diaries were offered by Mack.

Mrs. Browning Protests.

"If your honor reads the diary you will find she was a woman of the world and not the innocent girl she said she was at the time of her marriage, Mack said.

Mrs. Browning flushed at the statement and exclaimed, "I was a good girl."

Miss Marian Tussey, a friend of Mrs. Browning, testified yesterday that Browning had offered to "make it interesting if she would recollect any occurrences that might act against his wife in the separation suit. She said she promptly informed Mrs. Browning of the proposition.

Browning denied reports that he planned dropping the suit. He took to New York his big black case, with the red W. B. initials on it. The case contains much of his evidence against his wife, love letters by which he hopes to show he was an affectionate husband and that his wife left him willfully and without cause. Some letters have been put in evidence but not read.

Browning is expected to take the stand to defend himself.

LABOR INSURANCE READY

Company With $600,000 Cash Capital Opens Next Month.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—With a cash capital of $600,000 paid in, the Union Labor Life Insurance Co. is ready to begin writing policies in Feb. 1. It was organized and will be controlled exclusively by the trade unions of America, every share of stock being held by a labor organization or a member thereof.

The planning and financing of the new company enlisted the voluntary efforts of 42 men and women prominent in the labor movement. The cost of promoting the enterprise was less than 5 per cent of the capital acquired. The company, with headquarters here, will write all kinds of life insurance in conformity with national and state laws. Although the company was sponsored by the American Federation of Labor and affiliated organizations it is an independent institution.

SNOWLESS SLEDDING IN TEXAS

Children Coast Over Wet Grass on Boards.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 27.—Deprived of the opportunity of sliding in snow, Houston children have evolved the nearest thing to it. While to the Northern tourists are constant they enjoy a sport known as "snowless sledding."

A boy discovered that a board and the wet grass on a knoll was a fair substitute for an old Northern hill. Inventive genius led him to fashion a sled with wooden runners and it was not long until most of the children in the neighborhood had followed his lead. Now "sledding" on the grass has intrigued a host of juveniles.

Girl Who Killed Father Exonerated

By the Associated Press.

ELIZABETHTOWN, Ky., Jan. 27.—Declaring that her act was justifiable, County Judge Ed has dismissed the charge of murder against Hazel Huffins, 16 years old, who was given a preliminary hearing in connection with the killing of her father, Ben Huffins, at their home Monday. Give "California Fig Syrup" at once if bilious or constipated

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, won't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the poison, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless, "fruity laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

91 CREDITORS RUNNING CAFE TO MAKE IT PAY

Recruit Force for Rendezvous, in Hotel Missouri Building, When Employes Quit.

The Rendezvous, a restaurant in the basement of the Hotel Missouri Building, Eleventh and Locust streets, is in the hands of its creditors—91 of them with claims aggregating $22,000.

It was opened Nov. 15 and since then has built up a fair clientele, but not enough to meet expenses. Creditors say the location in the structure built by the City Club for its quarters is good and the decorative scheme is good. They are inclined to blame the former management.

Last Tuesday the employes—a score of waitresses, cooks and dishwashers—walked out, not having been paid for two weeks. They walked away just before dinner time, but dinner was served, a force having been recruited hastily from an employment agency.

Operation of the restaurant has continued, under direction of the creditors. Receipts, which originally went as high as $275 daily and then dropped as low as $60, are picking up, and prosperity may be just around the corner. Creditors have agreed to wait a while and see what happens.

Stockholders in the company that operated the restaurant before the creditors took charge included Dr. E. S. Norris, a dentist with offices in the Century Building; Mark Thompson, an engineer in the city street department, and William O'Toole, formerly connected with a country club.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—A revision of rates on meat products from packing houses located on and west of the Mississippi River to Eastern territory was ordered today by the Interstate Commerce Commission, to become effective April 20.

The commission's decision reversed a finding made in 1924 as to the Western meat rates and resulted from a reinvestigation.

The key to the new schedule lays in the fixing of a rate on fresh meat from St. Louis to the East, which shall be 8 cents a hundred pounds above like rates from Chicago. The St. Louis rate will determine the charge to be made from all packing centers on the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers.

From Wichita, Kan., to the East, the commission prescribed a rate of 37 cents above St. Louis; from Oklahoma City 42 cents, and from Fort Worth 54 cents. In its former decision the commission held that the St. Louis rate to the East should equal 117 per cent of Chicago rates.

Rates on cured meats and hides from Western packing houses to the East were held to be reasonable. The former decision required a reduction in these rates.

UNDER COVER DRY AGENTS ORDERED TO OBSERVE LAW

Secretary Mellon Declared Overstepping of Bounds to Get Evidence Must End.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Reiterating opposition to illegal practices in prohibition "under-cover" work, Secretary Mellon said today that enforcement agents in the future must more closely observe the Treasury's policy on the subject.

Specifically, the Secretary made it clear that incidents such as that involved in the Bridge Whist Club at New York, which was used by Government agents in gathering information of rum running, and the practice of Federal officers engaging in rum trafficking from Canada for the same purpose would not be permitted.

Secretary Mellon is in sympathy with the legal use of "under-cover" workers, believing it necessary to employ such men to break up the larger conspiracies in the liquor trade, but, he said, when informed they were overstepping the bounds of the law in their zeal, he had called a halt.

He disclosed that Government agents in a number of cases had proposed wire tapping, among other illegal plans, but that their program had been stopped. One officer had been discharged for wire tapping, he said.

LEAVES ESTATE TO CHURCHES

Will of Miss Anne Valet Mentions Farm and Personalty.

The will of Miss Anne Catherine Valet, 90 years old, who died Jan. 23, was filed yesterday in the Probate Court. Miss Valet's personal property and household effects are left to Holiness Christian Church, to be used by the church in its work for the needy.

The residue of her estate, consisting principally of an untenanted 30-acre farm at Hermann, Mo., is willed to the Old Ladies' Aid Society of Union Methodist Episcopal Church. Miss Valet had no near relatives and in late years had been taken care of by the Ladies' Aid Society. The will was executed in 1919.

Careless Driver Fined $200.

KING GEORGE AT WINTER HOME MAINTAINS SELF-DISCIPLINE

Every Morning He and Queen Arise Punctually as Clock Strikes 8.

By the Associated Press.

SANDRINGHAM, England, Jan. 27.—Strict self-discipline has not been relaxed since King George and Queen Mary took up winter residence at this royal country demesne and cast-iron punctuality remains the rule for the household.

The court will remain in residence here until the spring, when it will be transferred to Buckingham Palace in London prior to the King's contemplated cruise in the Mediterranean Sea.

King George rises, as he always does, on the first stroke of 8, except on Fridays, when he gets up at 7:30 to have his hair and beard trimmed.

Queen Mary the other day motored to King's Lynn, about eight miles from here, to do some shopping, accompanied by young Prince George, just home from the Far East. She strolled along the High street, mixing with the crowd. It began to rain, but the Queen did not call for her automobile. She just put up her umbrella.

Mother and son then paid a prearranged visit to the historic town hall and inspected the ancient underground dungeons. Despite the depressing atmosphere of subterranean dungeons on a foggy rainy day, the Queen went through the whole program.

The jewels, according to police, were stolen from a trunk owned by Henry Agate, vice president of the Bonner Manufacturing Co. DRIVER WHOSE AUTO KILLED MAN ORDERED HELD

DEFENDANT'S BOND IS FIXED AT $5000

He Was Operating Car Which Is Alleged to Have Fatally Hurt John Mackintosh.

George Swehla of Affton, St. Louis County, was held for criminal carelessness by a Coroner's jury today in the death of John McIntosh, 55 years old, of 1125 Frey avenue, who was struck by Swehla's automobile at Twelfth and Hickory streets last Friday morning.

Bond for Swehla, who is a clerk for the F. C. Taylor Fur Co., was set at $5000. He did not testify, on advice of counsel. It was thought at first that Mackintosh had fallen on the icy pavement, but Coroner Vitt concluded from nature of his injuries that he must have been struck by an automobile, and a police investigation indicated this to be the case. Mackintosh, according to two policemen who saw him shortly after the accident, did not say a machine hit him, but thought he had fallen.

Mackintosh died at City Hospital Sunday night. Three inquest witnesses testified that Swehla's car struck Mackintosh. They were Fred A. Horr of 709 Summit avenue, Webster Groves, who was driving north behind Swehla; Michael J. Cremin of 4213 Castleman avenue, a former city detective, who was riding with Horr, and Chester Trotter, 16 years old, of 1205 Hickory street. Horr and Cremin declared the street was very slippery and the morning very dark at the time of the accident. Mackintosh, they said, was standing with a number of others in a safety zone near to the car track, and this group scattered as Swehla approached. Horr said he was driving about 15 miles an hour and Swehla passed him. Cremin thought Swehla was going 25 to 30 miles an hour.

Trotter said he was standing in the safety zone with Mackintosh and others and was forced to run out of Swehla's way. He said Mackintosh had remarked about the way Swehla was driving. William Cavatera of Edgemont Station testified he was driving south in Twelfth street and his car was bumped by Swehla, who cut west into Hickory street. He and Swehla took Mackintosh home.

MISSOURI GIRL, 15, AWARDED CARNEGIE MEDAL FOR BRAVERY

Miss Ruby H. Lindsay Cited for Saving Life of Mrs. Marjorie Hobbs Near Cape Girardeau.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 27.—The bravery of a 15-year-old Missouri girl was rewarded today with a silver medal from the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission. The award was made to Miss Ruby H. Lindsay, who lives near Cape Girardeau. She received the citation for saving the life of Mrs. Marjorie Hobbs, 20, near Cape Girardeau, April 19, 1924.

While the two were walking across a railroad bridge a train approached and Miss Lindsay clambered to safety on a narrow beam below the ties. Mrs. Hobbs was so frightened she could not move. Ruby climbed back upon the track from her post of safety and pulled Mrs. Hobbs down to the precarious perch when the locomotive was less than 20 feet away. Both lost their balance and fell 10 feet into water 10 feet deep. Neither could swim, but the younger girl paddled about and held Mrs. Hobbs' head above the surface until a pole was extended from the bridge.

Walter H. Mann Jr. of Chester, Ill., was given a bronze medal. Mann, 16-year-old student at the time, attempted to save C. Elbert Finley, 18, also a student, from drowning in the Marys River in Chester. Mann swam 25 feet to Finley, who was considerably heavier, and swam six feet with him toward the bank. Desperately struggling, Finley got on top of Mann and they both sank. Mann rose and was rescued by another swimmer.

REED OVERRULED BY DAWES IN PLEA FOR TAX REBATES

Vice-President Holds Missourian's Amendment for 10 Pct. Allowance Is Out of Order.

SENATOR ASSAILS REPUBLICAN STAND

Cites Executive's Rosy Promises That Haven't Been Fulfilled Because His "Masters" Said No.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — A partisan debate on taxes, with most of the speakers virtuously proclaiming themselves free of any political motive, raged in the Senate today. The discussion was a hangover from the contest started yesterday by Senator Reed's proposal to allow a rebate of 10 per cent on the taxes levied on this year's incomes and payable next year.

Under adverse rulings by Vice President Dawes, however, the effort to attach the legislation to the first deficiency appropriation bill was abandoned.

Dawes upheld a point of order by Senator Lenroot (Rep.) of Wisconsin that the Reed amendment was a modification of the revenue act of 1926 and as such was general legislation not allowed on an appropriation bill. Efforts of the Missourian to word his amendment in such a way as to avoid this objection were fruitless.

Reed Lashes Republicans.

As spokesman for the Democrats, Reed lashed the President and the Republican side for their failure to bring about tax reduction at this session of Congress. Reed had an excellent talking point in the fact that his amendment embodies the suggestion made by the President himself soon after the November elections. Reed was at the top of his sarcastic form.

Reed declared that his proposal, in essence, was no different from the provision already in the bill for an appropriation of $175,000,000 to cover refunds of taxes illegally collected. If one was in order in the pending measure, so, he contended, was the other.

Reed digressed to attack what he declared was the failure of the Treasury Department to surround the granting of large rebates with proper safeguards. It was brought out by the Couzens investigating committee, he said, among other instances of the same kind, that William Boyce Thompson, former treasurer of the Republican National Committee, was given a $520,000 tax reduction at a one-hour hearing in the Department.

"That sort of business," said Reed, "is appalling. Gentlemen, or their attorneys, come here and endeavor to place public officers under some sort of obligation. They are dined and it is within the limits of human imagination, they are wined. Then hearings are held and negotiations are carried on with these individuals.

Should Be Safeguards.

"I make no charge against anybody, but the proper conduct of the public business requires that in all large transactions in the Treasury Department there should be checks and safeguards."

Returning to his amendment, Reed declared that the President himself had said that more than $250,000,000 of taxes ought to be returned to the people.

"And now," he shot at the Republican side, "when we stand here asking that the very thing the President recommended shall be done, the spoksmen for the President, her on th floor, interpos a point of order."

He declared that the Democratic party was for tax reduction. He wanted the country to know that the responsibility for the failure of reduction at this session must be laid at the door of the Republican party.

Not only the Democrats, he said, but the insurgent Republicans were in favor of tax reduction.

That brought Senator Couzens (Rep.) of Michigan, who is generally aligned with the progressive group, to his feet.

Couzens Against Rebate.

Couzens said he could not speak for his fellow progressives on the Republican side but that he, for one, was strongly against the tax rebate proposed by Reed. He was for reduction, he said, but not for a rebate. [illegible]

REED OVERRULED BY DAWES IN PLEA FOR TAX REBATES

Vice-President Holds Missourian's Amendment for 10 Pct. Allowance Is Out of Order.

SENATOR ASSAILS REPUBLICAN STAND

Cites Executive's Rosy Promises That Haven't Been Fulfilled Because His "Masters" Said No.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-22 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — A partisan debate on taxes, with most of the speakers virtuously proclaiming themselves free of any political motive, raged in the Senate today. The discussion was a hangover from the contest started yesterday by Senator Reed's proposal to allow a rebate of 10 per cent on the taxes levied on this year's incomes and payable next year.

Under adverse rulings by Vice President Dawes, however, the effort to attach the legislation to the first deficiency appropriation bill was abandoned.

Dawes upheld a point of order by Senator Lenroot (Rep.) of Wisconsin that the Reed amendment was a modification of the revenue act of 1926 and as such was general legislation not allowed on an appropriation bill. Efforts of the Missourian to word his amendment in such a way as to avoid this objection were fruitless.

Reed Lashes Republicans.

As spokesman for the Democrats, Reed lashed the President and the Republican side for their failure to bring about tax reduction at this session of Congress. Reed had an excellent talking point in the fact that his amendment embodies the suggestion made by the President himself soon after the November elections. Reed was at the top of his sarcastic form.

Reed declared that his proposal, in essence, was no different from the provision already in the bill for an appropriation of $175,000,000 to cover refunds of taxes illegally collected. If one was in order in the pending measure, so, he contended, was the other.

Reed digressed to attack what he declared was the failure of the Treasury Department to surround the granting of large rebates with proper safeguards. It was brought out by the Couzens investigating committee, he said, among other instances of the same kind, that William Boyce Thompson, former treasurer of the Republican National Committee, was given a $350,000 tax reduction at a one-hour hearing in the Department.

"That sort of business," said Reed, "is appalling. Gentlemen, or their attorneys, come here and endeavor to place public officers under some sort of obligation. They are dined and it is within the limits of human imagination, they are wined. Then hearings are held and negotiations are carried on with these individuals.

Should Be Safeguards.

"I make no charge against anybody, but the proper conduct of the public business requires that in all large transactions in the Treasury Department, there should be checks and safeguards."

Returning to his amendment, Reed declared that the President himself had said that more than $250,000,000 of taxes ought to be returned to the people.

"And now," he shot at the Republican side, "when we stand here asking that the very thing the President recommended shall be done, the spokesman for the President, her on th floor, interpos a point of order."

He declared that the Democratic party was for tax reduction. He wanted the country to know that the responsibility for the failure of reduction at this session must be laid at the door of the Republican party.

Not only the Democrats, he said, but the insurgent Republicans were in favor of tax reduction.

That brought Senator Couzens (Rep.) of Michigan, who is generally aligned with the progressive group, to his feet.

Couzens Against Rebate.

Couzens said he could not speak for his fellow progressives on the Republican side but that he, for one, was strongly against the tax rebate proposed by Reed. He was for reduction, he said, but not for a rebate. Couzens is not an orator, but in a two-minute speech, he touched the weak spot in the argument for a rebate. He pointed out—just as many Democrats pointed out when the suggestion was first made by the President—that the rebate would result in giving back to the corporations taxes which they had already collected from the consumers.

"That," said Couzens, "is exactly what this amendment would do. I should like to revise the revenue law and make new rates applicable to 1927 incomes, but I am opposed to this retroactive legislation."

Reed did not reply.

Senator Harris (Dem.) of Mississippi ridiculed the G. O. P. in a characteristic speech and the debate developed into a sharp crossfire, with several Senators engaged on each side.

Senator Smoot (Rep.) of Utah accused the minority of trying to reduce taxes beyond the safety point, and drew from Senator Glass (Dem.) of Virginia, a former Treasury secretary, the retort that such is not a fact and any sane business man knows it is not a fact."

Borah Questions Glass.

Senator Borah (Rep.) of Idaho inquired of Senator Glass just what class of taxpayers would be affected by the Reed amendment.

"I don't think the amendment will return the taxes to the people who ought to have them," Glass replied, "but that does not make me accept the absurd statements that have been made here."

After Senator George (Dem.) of Georgia, had reviewed the Democratic arguments, Vice President Dawes ruled that the point of order must be sustained as the amendment came under the classification of general legislation.

Reed immediately appealed to the Senate, but before a vote could be taken, he declared that in vote might be avoided if the Senate would consider a second amendment which he sent to the chair to be read. This amendment rephrased the first proposal.

Senator Warren (Rep.) of Wyoming raised a point of order against the second amendment and the chair sustained him. Reed then withdrew his appeal on the first ruling.

No vote was taken on either amendment.

Cost of Living Drops in St. Louis, But City Ranks Third in Nation

Decrease of 16.4 Per Cent Recorded From 1920 to 1926, With 24.5 Per Cent Increase Over the Figure for 1917.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-22 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Despite a decrease of 16.4 per cent between June, 1920, and December, 1926, the cost of living in St. Louis increased 24.5 per cent from 1917 to the beginning of the present year, the Department of Labor Bureau of Statistics announces.

The last year saw a decrease of .4 per cent. St. Louis ranked third in high living costs in a group of 13 cities studied by the bureau.

Scranton, Pa., ranked first, with a 29.8 per cent increase since 1917, and Pittsburg, Pa., was second with 27.2 per cent. Kansas City was the lowest, with an increase of only 15.2 per cent.

Increased housing costs were responsible for the high percentage in St. Louis. Between 1917 and 1927, these charges increased 82.2 per cent, the greatest increase of any city in the group. Food costs in St. Louis increased 2 per cent; clothing, 7 per cent; fuel and light, 38.9 per cent; household furnishing goods, 22.7 per cent, and miscellaneous, 36.6 per cent.

Four cities had lower food costs in 1926 than in 1917, the report disclosed. These costs in Memphis decreased 5.7 per cent; in Denver, 3 per cent; Kansas City, 1.7 per cent, and New Orleans, 1.6 per cent. Housing costs in Pittsburg increased 75 per cent during the 10 years studied by the bureau. In Scranton, they increased 72.4 per cent. In Kansas City, the increase was only 34.1 per cent.

BORAH FOR NEUTRAL POLICY TOWARD CHINA

Favors Removal of Americans From Danger, Criticises Attitude of Britain.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—America's policy in the Orient should look to a free and disenthralled China, Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said today in a formal statement, his first on the Chinese situation. He expressed the opinion that the action of Great Britain in sending a large military and naval force to China might have "a disastrous result."

"I am in favor of protecting our people," the Senator said. "But I am in favor of protecting them at the present time, if necessary, by bringing them out of danger, until all danger is passed.

"The most magnificent scene in the world is to see a great people, after years of turmoil and strife and oppression by outside powers, coming into their own. And that is what we are witnessing in China."

Sympathizes With China.

"The nationalistic spirit, in my judgment, is uniting those people and I look to see them ultimately accomplish their complete redemption as a great power and take their rightful place among the family of nations. I thoroughly sympathize with what they are doing.

"It is inevitable, of course, that some wrongs will be committed and some injuries done to innocent people in the bringing about of the final results. But I see every indication upon the part of the Chinese at the present time to protect the lives and property of foreigners to the utmost of their ability. The only thing which, in my judgment, may change that program will be just such things as sending of fleets and armies to China with a view of crushing this spirit through force.

"Entitled to Be Free."

"I would not embarrass, or seem to impede China in her great struggle. I think, if I may say so, that the action of Great Britain in sending a large fleet and larger forces to China may have a very disastrous result.

"China is entitled to be rid of the old antiquated, unjust and unilateral treaties. She is entitled to enjoy tariff autonomy. She is entitled, in my judgment, to be rid of extraterritorial rights. I venture to express the belief that she will achieve these things. If the nations do not assist, do not voluntarily aid in bringing it about, we shall likely see the same thing accomplished through the decree of the Chinese people.

"The United States should not hesitate to announce her own policy if it be necessary to do so. Our interest and the interest of justice demand a free and disenthralled China and our policy should look to that achievement."

MORO PRINCESS JOINS REVOLT IN PHILIPPINES

Tarhata Kiram, Former Illinois U. Student, Holds Entire Regiment at Bay.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Jan. 27.—The grievances of Datu Tahil, Moro nobleman, whose fourth and favorite wife, Princess Tarhata Kiram, a former student at the University of Illinois, has distinguished herself by holding at bay a regiment of the Philippine Constabulary sent to suppress her husband's uprising, were laid officially before Governor-General Wood today.

The grievances were set forth in a telegram received by the Governor-General from Camm Moore, Governor of Sulu. The message says that Tahil wrote the Sultan of Sulu, uncle of the Princess, Jan. 24, alleging the Moros of Jolo Island, scene of the rebellion, had appealed to him (Tahil) to assist in opposing the land tax, particularly the penalties for delinquency.

Gov. Moore declared Tahil did not refer his complaint to Government officials, but immediately mobilized his followers and fortified them.

Real Cause of Rebellion.

"Information received from various sources indicates Tahil now is demanding a one peso cedula (poll tax, now two pesos); no land taxes, the privilege of carrying blade weapons without restriction and various other minor demands," the message said. "The real cause is a general protest against acceptance of democratic ideas of government and consequent restrictions, which same were imposed on the activities of the Datu class.

"Absurd ambitions, unwillingness to work, consequent poverty and family controversies over his marriage all tend to develop despondency and general dissatisfaction with life, resulting in this gesture for prestige and influence. In fact, I believe in the beginning it was only a gesture for popularity, but he carried the bluff so far he could not control the ignorant people."

Princess Only Obstacle.

With only Tahil and his 500 armed followers facing them, the constabulary forces easily could make short work of the uprising, but the Princess stands between the soldiers and the rebels. Her presence in the armed camp has caused the constabulary to stop short. She is the favorite niece of the Sultan and injury or death to her would arouse the entire Moro race.

The Moros bear somewhat different relations to the American Government than do the Christian Filipinos. They are Mohammedans. They have peculiar customs and never have been subdued by any other nation than America. Even now their subjection is conditional. Officials are seeking a peaceful settlement of the trouble.

CHIEF OF UNDER-COVER AGENTS OPPOSES GOVERNMENT-RUN BAR

A. Bruce Bielaski Testifies He Never Approved Scheme to Trap Bootleggers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—A. Bruce Bielaski, chief of the Government's "under-cover" prohibition agents, never again will approve the operation of a "speakeasy" by the Government. He made this statement after he had appeared as a witness in a suit brought by owners of a house in West Forty-fourth street to cancel a long-term lease of a tenant who had sub-leased several rooms to an "under-cover" agent. A "speakeasy" under the name of the Bridge Whist Club was operated by this agent.

Bielaski testified that Government funds were used to pay the rent and in part to buy liquor, but that the place never showed a profit. It was sold for $6700.

"When I began my work here," Bielaski said, "prohibition had been a law for five years. During that period no real effort had been made by any Attorney-General to bring to the bar the large operators. The rum runners and bootleggers had grown so bold and confident that they were even giving out interviews which were published in newspapers, and also were writing articles for magazines concerning their operations.

"The Bridge Whist Club proved helpful to us in our work. Through it we obtained information about most of the big liquor syndicates. I would not approve of that method of prohibition enforcement again, however, nor did I ever approve it except in this one case."

PANAMA HALTS ACTION ON U. S. TREATY RATIFICATION

Congress Adopts Resolution Giving President More Time to Study Provisions.

By the Associated Press.

PANAMA, Jan. 27.—Consideration of the Panama-United States treaty has been suspended by Congress until the President shall have had a further opportunity to seek a solution that will fully satisfy the aspirations of the nation.

A resolution adopted at yesterday's sitting, sets forth that there are "some stipulations in the treaty that have produced profound repercussion in the public mind," and that for the relations between Panama and the United States to be most cordial, it is convenient that these relations remain fixed in such a manner that "in the future a divergency between the two will not arise."

There has been considerable agitation in Panama against the new treaty, which provides, among other things, that the armed forces of the United States shall have free transit through the country in time of peace and that Panama shall declare herself in a state of war "in case of any war in which the United States should be a belligerent." Other articles give the United States complete control over all radio and cable communications and supervision over all aircraft and aviation centers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Proposed changes in the new treaty with Panama are under discussion between the American and Panamanian Governments. The State Department said today the revisions were of a minor character.

WANTS DISSENTING OPINIONS

Gov. Smith to Use Them as Guide in Murder Cases.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Chief Judge Cardozo and the Associate Judges of the Court of Appeals called on Gov. Smith yesterday to express their good wishes for his fourth term in office.

Gov. Smith suggested that in murder case appeals involving the death sentence where the court decided, he would like to have the dissenting Judges write an opinion to guide him in deciding appeals for clemency.

Claimant to Throne Has Pneumonia

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 27. Young Prince Otto, eldest son of the late Austrian Emperor, Charles, and claimant to the throne of Hungary, is suffering from pneumonia, it is reported from Lequeitio, Spain, where he is living with his mother, the former Empress Zita. Prince Otto, who is 14 years old, developed pneumonia after an attack of influenza. His younger brother, Rudolf, 6, also has pneumonia, and the other children of the former Empress are ill with influenza.

Indians Maul Mexican Official.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 27.—Excited by reports that their church would be closed and its relics seized, Indians at Chignahuapan, Puebla, badly mauled Constantino Iniguez, supposing that he had arrived for the purpose. Iniguez had gone to Chignahuapan to conduct an investigation for the Agrarian Commission.

ST. LOUIS POLICE HOME RULE BILLS GIVEN HEARING

Measures Temporarily Blocked in House Committee Until City Officials Are Heard.

WOULD GIVE CITY CONTROL OF FUNDS

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 27.—Steps by Representative Beedle of St. Louis to obtain constructive police home rule for St. Louis without depriving Gov. Baker of the patronage which goes with the present system of State-controlled police, were temporarily blocked in the House Committee on Municipal Corporations yesterday afternoon by Representative Heege of St. Louis County. Heege prevented a favorable report on Beedle's bills until the members of the Board of Police Commissioners could be heard next Wednesday.

Taking the Governor's expressions of opposition several weeks ago to the home rule police bill introduced at the instance of the Association for Criminal Justice as an indication that the measure, if passed, probably would be vetoed, Beedle, in conjunction with Comptroller Noser, prepared three bills to accomplish virtually the same purpose without depriving the Governor of his power of appointment of the police commissioners.

The gist of Beedle's plan is to do away with the law which requires the Board of Aldermen to appropriate for the Police Department any amount of money the Board of Police Commissioners may demand for the police salaries and expenses, and instead to lodge in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the Board of Aldermen the power to fix the amount which the Police Department may have.

Provisions of the Bills.

The bills direct that the Board of Police Commissioners shall certify to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment each year the amount which in their judgment, the Police Department will require, and that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment shall then pass judgment on the estimate and send to the Board of Aldermen an ordinance to appropriate such funds as in its judgment the department should have.

In the public hearing at which Beedle argued in support of his bills Heege raised the point that their passage would give the city officials and the Board of Aldermen, while over the Police Commissioners, saying in effect that the city officials could "play politics" with the police and would refuse to appropriate sufficient funds for the department unless it was conducted according to their ideas.

Beedle, explaining his bills to the committee, said that the demands of the Police Department had grown far out of proportion to the other activities of the city and that under the present law the Police Commissioners could demand any sum and the members of the Board of Aldermen were required, under penalty of impeachment, to comply with the demands.

Argument as to Pensions.

"For the coming year," he said, "the demand is for $5,627,000. It has grown to that amount from $1,500,000 of only a few years ago. It takes about $1 out of every $4 of municipal revenue to maintain the Police Department." He directed attention to a measure introduced Tuesday to add more than 300 additional policemen to the St. Louis force, which, he said, would call for an additional $700,000.

"I also want to mention the police pension bill," Beedle said. "In addition to other sources of income for the pension fund, the measure provides that any surplus remaining from the police salary fund for a year shall go to the pension fund. There is nothing to prevent the commissioners from fixing an arbitrary amount for salaries in order that there may be a considerable surplus for pensions. This year they might have asked for $7,800,000 to have $2,000,000 left over for pensions or they might have asked for $10,000,000 or any other sum, and the Board of Aldermen would have been compelled to appropriate it.

"In fact the pension bill provides that if the pension fund is not sufficient in any year to pay the pensions in full, the commissioners shall include in their budget a sum sufficient to meet the deficiency."

Objection of Heege.

Heege interposed his objection: "Do not the bills give the city officials the opportunity to play politics with the police, and to say that if their demands are not complied with, they would withhold appropriations?"

Beedle said that the citizens of St. Louis were the ones most vitally interested in the maintenance of an efficient police department to protect their lives and property and that there could be no question that the city would be as liberal with the police department as it could be.

View of St. Joseph Man.

Representative Wallace of St. Joseph, a member of the committee, expressed the opinion that "it don't look like the State ought to be spending your money for you."

After the public hearing the committee considered the bills in the executive session and at Heege's suggestion laid them over until next Wednesday, when the Mayor and members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the members of the Board of Police Commissioners will be given an opportunity to appear.

St. Louis Police Most Expensive of Any of Large Cities.

"St. Louis has among other notable achievements the distinction of having the most expensive police department of any of the large cities of the United States."

Deputy Comptroller Gunn wrote thus today to Representative Beedle. "We are prone to come to the conclusion," continued Gunn, "that the people of St. Louis should not be called upon to support a more expensive police department for years to come than they are now obliged to submit to.

"The police departments in practically all cities named above (New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and Cleveland) are managed and their expenses controlled through their legislative and other duly elected officials, and it is my belief that if such conditions existed in St. Louis the department would be managed much more economically and just as efficiently."

Gunn quoted the per capita cost of police departments in the six leading cities, in 1924, as follows: New York, $6.49; Chicago, $4.69; Philadelphia, $4.78; Detroit, $4.20; Cleveland, $3.12, and St. Louis, $4.68. Since 1924, he said, the per capita cost in St. Louis has risen, being over $6 for the fiscal year ending last April, and about $6.36 for the year ending next April.

Kellogg's Statement on U. S. Policy in China

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. SECRETARY KELLOGG'S statement on the American policy in China, made public last night, said:

"The United States has always desired the unity, the independence and prosperity of the Chinese nation." It is desired that tariff control and extraterritoriality provided by our treaties with China should as early as possible be released.

"The United States is now and has been, ever since the negotiations of the Washington treaty, prepared to enter into negotiations with any government of China or delegates who can represent or speak for China, not only for the putting into force of the surtaxes of the Washington treaty, but entirely releasing tariff control and restoring complete tariff autonomy to China.

"The United States would expect, however, that it be granted most favored nation treatment and that there should be no discrimination against the United States and its citizens in customs duties, or taxes, in favor of the citizens of other nations, or discrimination by grants of special privileges, and that the open door with equal opportunity for trade in China shall be maintained; and further that China should afford every protection to American citizens, to their property and rights.

"By tariff control, Secretary Kellogg means the supervision which the great Powers, by treaty, now exercise over Chinese import duties. The surtax refers to a proposal for an increase in the customs duties in order to provide needed revenue for the Chinese Government. "Most favored nation treatment" means that the United States shall have the same privileges in China as are accorded to any other nation.)

"The United States is prepared to put into force the recommendations of the extraterritoriality commission, which can be put into force without a treaty at once and to negotiate the release of extraterritorial rights as soon as China is prepared to provide protection by law and through her courts to American citizens, their rights and property."

Willing to Deal Liberally.

Steps leading up to the Pekin customs and extraterritorial conferences, initiated by Secretary Kellogg at the request of the Pekin Government, were reviewed by the secretary to show the willingness of the United States to deal liberally with China as to the unequal treaties. It was pointed out that the American delegation to the customs conference proposed that the Powers authorize at once the levying by China of the 2½ to 5 per cent customs surtaxes agreed to at Washington. The American group also announced willingness to negotiate forthwith a new tariff autonomy, and up to the middle of April, 1926, there appeared every prospect "for termination of the conference to the satisfaction of the Chinese and the other Powers," Kellogg said.

But about that time the Government which represented China at the conference was forced out of power, and the American delegates remained in Pekin until July 3, hoping without result that the Chinese internal situation would stabilize and permit continuance of their work.

U. S. Ready to Negotiate.

"The Government of the United States was ready then and is ready now to continue the negotiations on the entire subject of the tariff and extraterritoriality or to take up negotiations on behalf of the United States alone," Kellogg concluded.

"The only question is with whom it shall negotiate. As I have said heretofore, if China can agree upon the appointment of delegates representing the authorities or the people of the country, we are prepared to negotiate such a treaty. However, existing treaties which were ratified by the Senate of the United States cannot be abrogated by the President, but must be superceded by new treaties negotiated with somebody representing China and subsequently ratified by the Senate of the United States.

Awakening of Nationalism.

"The Government of the United States has watched with sympathetic interest the nationalistic awakening of China and welcomes every advance made by the Chinese people toward reorganizing their system of Government.

"During the difficult years since the establishment of the new regime in 1912, the Government of the United States has endeavored in every way to maintain an attitude of the most careful and strict neutrality as among the several factions that have disputed with one another for control in China. The Government of the United States expects, however, that the people of China and their leaders will recognize the right of American citizens in China to protection for life and property during the period of conflict for which they are not responsible.

Protection for Americans.

"In the event that the Chinese authorities are unable to afford such protection, it is, of course, the fundamental duty of the United States to protect the lives and property of its citizens. It is with the possible necessity for this in view that American naval forces are now in Chinese waters.

"This Government wishes to deal with China in a most liberal spirit. It holds no concessions in China and has never manifested any imperialistic attitude toward that country. It desires, however, that its citizens be given equal opportunity with the citizens of the other Powers to reside in China and to pursue their legitimate occupations without special privileges, monopolies or spheres of special interest or influence."

BRITAIN PASSES GARIBALDI

By the Associated Press.

FOLKESTONE, England, Jan. 27.—Immigration officials here were notified from the Home Office today that no obstacle would be placed in the way of Ricciotti Garibaldi, who is passing through England on his way to the United States. He arrived at Folkestone by steamer from Boulogne yesterday.

Garibaldi, who was ordered out of France before midnight last night, had hoped to sail from Havre for the United States, but fearing that the immigration authorities at New York might not permit him to enter because of his conviction on the charge of illegal possession of arms in connection with the recent Catalonian revolt plot, he decided to come to England to await a decision of the United States Department as to whether he would be allowed to land.

Russian Film Barred in England.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Russian film distributors have been denied permission to send to England a film called "Black Sunday," the Home Office ruling that it contains objectionable soviet propaganda. The film is being shown in Germany. A pamphlet, entitled "Under the Ban of Fascism," also has come under the prohibition of the Home Office, and orders have been given to prevent its arrival in England. The pamphlet was issued by the Executive Committee of the International Red Aid, and its publication was intended to aid communist speakers.

AMERICA WILLING TO ACT ALONE OR WITH POWERS IN NEW CHINESE PACT

Kellogg Says He Cannot Negotiate Until Representative Chinese Delegates Are Chosen.

U. S. MUST HAVE SAME RIGHTS AS OTHERS

State Department Silent as to Possible Co-operation With Britain in Defense of Nationals.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The United States has notified all Chinese factions and the powers signatory to the Washington conference treaties that if proper delegates can be agreed upon in the worn-torn country it stands ready to negotiate, either in concert with other nations, or alone if necessary, new tariff and extra territorial treaties with China.

However, until new treaties are negotiated with "somebody representing China," and ratified by the Senate, existing pacts "cannot be abrogated."

These are the Cardinal points in Secretary Kellogg's long-awaited Chinese policy declaration, made public last night, in the form of a "statement" and making no mention of the British memorandum on the subject, to which it had first been planned to be an answer. The pronouncement was made public simultaneously in Pekin, Hankow and Shanghai.

It pointed outthat American naval forces will be held in Chinese waters to protect American life and property in event the "Chinese authorities are unable to afford such protection;" asserted the United State has watched with sympathetic interest the "nationalist awakening of China," and expressed a desire to observe strict neutrality between Chinese factions and to deal with that country in "a most liberal spirit" as to unequal treaties.

What America Desires.

All that was required of China, the statement said, was protection, and "equal opportunity with the citizens of other Powers to reside in China and to pursue their legitimate occupations without special privileges, monopolies or spheres of special interest or influence."

While the statement on its face did not develop any wide variance of viewpoint with that outlined by the British, it did point out that the United States held no concessions in China. On this point, President Coolidge believes there is some ground for differences in American and British policy in dealing with China.

The statement also asserted the United States "has never manifested any imperialistic attitude" toward China.

Assurances that the Washington Government is ready to enter into treaty revision negotiations with both the Cantonese and Northern factions were given at the State Department today in amplifying the formal statement of Secretary Kellogg.

Negotiations Not Yet Begun.

No direct or indirect proposals for a conference between American diplomatic agents and representatives of the two factions have yet been received. On the contrary, such intimation as to the intentions of the rival authorities in China as have come to hand are in the nature of protests from each side against any step by the American Government to deal with the other side.

Department officials met with blank silence all inquiries as to what American naval co-operation with British and other forces might be expected if protection by force of foreign life and property at Shanghai became necessary. There is no disposition in Washington to tie the hands of Admiral Williams, commanding naval forces there, so far as meeting any urgent emergency is concerned.

The British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, who called on Secretary Kellogg today, described the Secretary's Chinese statement as "an excellent document," which would be pleasing to London. He saw in it no points of serious divergence from the policy announced by the British Government.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Bridge Debate.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IRRESPECTIVE of what may be thought of the bridge exchange ordinance, we can all agree that the debates themselves are important and interesting and ought therefore to be changed at once.

There is too much in them that is aside the point. The question is the ordinance, and the speakers should confine themselves to it. What are the objections to it upon the one side, and how are they answered by the other?

That is what people expect to hear when they go to the debates. They are not interested in asides. When one of the speakers says he hopes to see his right arm rot and wither at the socket before he writes a condition in the contract not in the public interest, he is out of bounds. His audience grows restless. When another disputant abandons the ordinance itself and pitches into the Terminal, reviewing its past sins for more than 50 years back, he is wasting his time and our own. What about the question?

It would seem that after so many bridge debates as we have had here we should have developed bridge debaters—that is, people who know how to approach the subject, get over with it and get off it.

Apparently we haven't developed any such people. C. M.

River Front Plans.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SECONDING Mr. Raub's letter on river front improvement, I say also, let us forget to try to beautify that part of the city so situated that it can't be beautified. Some places must be given over to business and the river front is one of them. In addition to this I would like to know just how they are going to control the "Father of Waters" when it starts to rise? We all know it has a variation of 40 feet and after an even normal rise, where would the proposed beautiful park be? If the park is far enough back to escape the rise, then the river front is not beautified and who will occupy it especially after dark in summer? It would be a rendezvous for tramps and an added burden for the police. We abandoned for park purposes the plot where the library now stands, and where the city hall now is (both parks in the '70's and '80's), but unsafe because of tramps. Why use good money to make another tramp's roosting place?

One who is tired of TAXES.

A Jingo Appeal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN the Jan. 29, 1927, issue of "Liberty" there appears an editorial in which the conquest of Nicaragua by the United States is frankly advocated. The editorial say, in part:

"Consider the Louisiana Purchase in 1803; the annexation of Florida in 1821; the conquests from Mexico in 1848; the Gadsden Purchase in 1853; the acquisition of Alaska in 1867; the Spanish War conquests; the seizure of Panama; the occupation of Haiti; the Danish Islands, and now Nicaragua.

"Always the eagle has been taking a wider flight, never a narrower one. Timorous Americans who have been afraid of our destiny have always been swept aside.

"So may it ever be."

Now, at first sight, the editorial might seem to breathe most ardent patriotism, but a little reflection shows that it is merely a cheap appeal to the jingoes and to the basest instincts of selfishness. An American is not necessarily "timorous" because he wants his country to pursue the path of justice rather than ruthless selfishness. "Liberty" is evidently lending itself to the propaganda campaign being fostered by the selfish and sinister interests that want us to annex Nicaragua and Mexico, or at least overthrow the men in those countries who are opposed to the groups mentioned. F. A. M.

The Antievolution Drive.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WRITE to commend most heartily the position which you have taken with respect to the Antievolution Drive now being projected throughout the country.

Opposition of this movement I esteem most important and timely. It's leaders are sincere, no doubt, but "they know not what they do."

It is a hard thing to say of any well-meaning man that he is a traitor and a blasphemer; and yet, from the writer's point of view, this must be said of the antievolutionary propagandist. The denial of the inalienable right to liberty proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence, and guaranteed by the Constitution, is treason against the Government of the United States and its citizens, and the repudiation of any part of the Revelation of Almighty God is blasphemy against God.

The interpretation of God's works by the agreement of competent scholars constitutes modern science. The interpretation of the Bible by competent biblical students constitutes the basis of all theology. Neither rest upon inference, but upon established fact; and when the facts of the Bible and the facts of science are established, it must be that they will be found to agree. God does not contradict himself.

BEYOND THE SMITH CASE.

No postulate could be simpler than that laid down by the Smith case. To be sure of this we have only to look beyond it. Suppose the Senate yielded to the legalistic argument that the State of Illinois, and not the Senate, is the judge of Smith's qualifications to sit in that body.

A great many eminent newspapers, able constitutionalists, and 40 members of the Senate itself, hold this view. Yet what would happen if it prevailed is so certain that one can easily wonder if its proponents ever carried it to its logical end.

Smith was chairman of the state commission which regulates the public utilities. While still holding that position he took from them contributions to his senatorial primary campaign in excess of $150,000. No objection interposed by the people of Illinois availed to save them from such a misrepresentative as he is. There has never been any proof that they wanted Smith to represent them or that he would have been elected without a lavish expenditure of money. It has been oftentimes said in this interesting debate that the people of Illinois are responsible for their representatives and are their sole judges, but how well do we know that in the face of such concentrated resources it is a responsibility they cannot exercise! If the Senate accepted that specious dictum the great predatory interests and corporations would go into the states and buy every one of the 96 Senate seats.

They would buy Missouri despite every protest we could make and see that no more Torquemadas came out of it to burn at the stake of publicity those who would corrupt the ballot.

They would buy Nebraska in broad daylight and let that doughtiest of all public servants, George W. Norris, think it over in the quiet of private life.

They would stop with political death the mouth of every man who dares lift his voice in the Senate for anything but the trusts or anybody but the buccaneers of big business.

They would take the Senate, which alone stands between the people and those who would exploit them, and make it one with the counting rooms of Wall street.

Not one state would find itself able to hold out against them. Just as Illinois, instead of exercising the great responsibility claimed for her, proved irresponsible and impotent, so would they all find themselves powerless against the consolidated power of an allied materialism. Just as Pennsylvania, though goaded to shame and contrition by the exposure of corruption, still went to the polls and elected Vare, so would they all, every scruple despite, go to the polls and elect the tools and talismen of corruption.

How, then, could 40 members of the Senate quibble over a point of law? How could eminent lawyers, who know full well that free government can as easily fall within the law as it can without, resort to a sophistry which would spell the ruin of the republic? How could great newspapers, for sake of a mere point in debate, blind themselves to the terrible eventuality of such a course?

In uttering its thunderous "No!" when Smith knocked at its door the Senate voiced the instincts of the people. Those are not written in law. As the unwritten constitution of England is in the consciousness of the nation, so the instinct of self-preservation is in the consciousness of the great republic.

It is not something over which lawyers can haggle and sophists can split hairs.

THE BEETHOVEN CENTENNIAL.

We do not know what plans are maturing among local music bodies to celebrate the centennial of Beethoven, which will occur during the week of March 20-26, but the occasion would seem to offer an opportunity for both the Symphony Society and the Choral Society to get together and give us a very wonderful concert of the master's works at the Odeon, with the Ninth Symphony and its choral work the prominent number on the program.

We trust that Mr. Ganz and Mr. Anschuetz are already conferring along these lines and that official pronouncement from them may be expected very shortly. St. Louis should not fall behind other cities of the United States in paying homage to one of the world's great composers.

In addition to his other accomplishments, Mussolini turns out to be the world's champion fisherman. He has just fished out of the past the erstwhile and ebullient George Sylvester Viereck, which must have taken a lot of patience.

A LITERARY AMBASSADORSHIP.

Those were admirable words which Ambassador Myron T. Herrick uttered at the installation of the chair of American literature and civilization at the Sorbonne. This gift of the late Lee Kohns displayed, Mr. Herrick declared, "a desire to approach other peoples intellectually, as well as affectionately, which Emerson says is the only way men can be mutually helpful."

This sentiment is so excellent, indeed, that it is to be hoped it will be taken into consideration in the selection of the scholar who will occupy the chair. For in that case he will be an interpreter not only of the American culture of the past but of that of the present as well. He will be sympathetic toward the newer writers and critics of the country, he will be able to explain to the French the ideas and ideals of our contemporary literary renaissance, and he will be able to arouse appreciation for the dream of these newer intellectuals of a great indigenous American culture.

It is most unfortunate that the literary men who have been chosen as American Ambassadors to foreign countries have seldom been the sort capable of doing these things. For one Maurice Francis Egan, whose appreciation and fairness toward the young writers of his day was as marked as the grace and charm of his own literary style, we have sent abroad numberless respectable vacuums who appeared to believe that all that was admirable in our literature passed away with William Cullen Bryant, and that Walt Whitman was a fashioner of pornography rather than poetry, and Mark Twain an amusing after-dinner speaker rather than a great satirist.

It is to be hoped that no such mossback will be permitted to occupy the chair at the Sorbonne. The scholar who is to hold such a post should have the vision to understand that the ideals of Emerson and Thoreau have been revived by the newer writers and critics of contemporary America.

COMPULSORY INSURANCE AGAIN.

A writer in Letters From the People Tuesday asked the Post-Dispatch to support a bill in the Legislature to make liability insurance for motor car owners compulsory. He cited an instance of three boys being seriously injured, two of them, perhaps, permanently, by an automobile driven by an irresponsible girl of minor age. Heavy expenses have been incurred by the families of the boys who are quite without redress.

That, unfortunately, is the experience of many victims of motor accidents. When the number of accidents is considered the injustice of the situation, it seems to us, proves the case for such insurance.

The Post-Dispatch has advocated such insurance for several years. Public opinion, however, has not apparently reacted to it. Elsewhere public opinion has been similarly apathetic. One State, however, has undertaken it. Massachusetts, to which we recently directed attention, has such a law, which became operative the first of the year. It has not yet had sufficient opportunity to prove itself, but we have no doubt that it will. Then the other states will fall into line.

We have never heard what seemed to us a competent objection to such a law. Opposition to it is academic and in some cases obviously selfish. Certainly this opposition has shut its eyes to the grim reality which exposes us all to the imminent peril of serious injury, without legal means of recovering damages.

Since Massachusetts has led the way we should like to see Missouri win second place in this progressive policy of protecting her citizens. Our Legislature ought to pass a measure of this character.

THE CONTEMPTIBLE MYTH.

The reference to British soldiery as a contemptible little army at the outbreak of the war was not made by the Kaiser, but was the deliberate invention of a British officer, according to Arthur Ponsonby. It is easy to believe this to be so. It is no more egregious than many other war myths which have been punctured. The spurious photographs representing the Germans cooking dead soldiers for soap was of the same genre. One remembers, too, the Associated Press' failure after indefatigable effort to find any of that legion of children whose hands were supposed to have been cut off by German troops.

Official and quasi-official lying, however, is merely a part of the business of war. The other side is always composed of bloody well-poisoning fiends. No doubt, Germany had an appropriate set of myths to describe the fearful doings of British, French and American soldiers. It was so in the days of the savages and, in war, we quickly revert to savage belief in demons and demonism. Some day a warring people will refuse to take any stock in the effusion of heated imaginations as to the diabolical character of the other side, and the war will fall flat.

But that will not happen until the millennium.

Col. Frank L. Smith says his opponents have him where they want him. As we make it out it is even worse than that: they have him where he ought to be.

EDWARD P. MITCHELL.

The death of Edward P. Mitchell should cause everyone to recall the important part he had in conducting, during its later stage, the editorial page which from the beginning of Dana's control caused the New York Sun to be called both the gentleman's and the newspaper man's newspaper.

That he was the most talented of the discoveries of Dana, as well as the ablest to follow in his footsteps, is attested by the page which Mitchell conducted. For all the essential qualities which make an editorial page attractive to that minority which reads editorials primarily to be entertained, the Sun's page has never been equalled. It had grace, charm, fancy, humor, irony, satire, cleverness, brilliance, learning, culture, the right sort of sophistication, and a penetrating understanding of human nature. One of its editorials, a reply to a little girl who had written to ask whether there really was a Santa Claus, remains the one classic American editorial.

The page did not, of course, lose its vitality by reason of the retirement of Mitchell, as it had already lost it with the absorption of the Sun in the Munsey group of journalistic chain stores. But in the interest of the American journalism of the future the best of the work of Dana, Mitchell and their staffs should be preserved. The single compilation of Sun editorials, "Gleams From The Sun," is long out of print. The existing files of the paper should be put in the libraries of the schools of journalism, and new collections of editorials made up in book form. These would be as much of a delight and inspiration to the editorial writers of the future as they were to those of the last generation.

The Hindus are trying to breed a dog that will not chase a cat. They have already bred a boy who wants that kind of a dog, so don't worry yourself about that.

KISSES AND COURTSMARTIAL.

To be tried before a courtmartial may easily be a terrible thing. It was before a courtmartial that Gen. Butler took Col. Williams when the Colonel, entertaining the General at dinner, served cocktails. Now the Colonel, who was found guilty, demoted and disgraced, is dead. He drove his automobile off of a pier.

Fortunately, not all courtmartial cruelties are so permitted to persist. Recently three soldiers at Fort Crook, Neb., were convicted by a courtmartial of forcibly kissing four girls. The sentence was from 10 to 15 years, with dishonorable discharges. Brigadier-General Poore, commandant of the Seventh Corps area, thought that was more cruel than just. He reduced the sentences to one year.

Then Dwight Davis, Secretary of War, who has indicated several times that he has a sense of humor and does not believe that people are always so malicious as they are human, cut down the sentence to three months and loss of pay.

The three soldiers, of course, did wrong forcibly to kiss girls. Still, when the case escaped from the tyranny of a courtmartial to those liberal paths of life where nobody either sees anything downright wicked in kissing a girl almost any way you can, or is quite sure that any set rule can be made for it, their luck changed fast. Had it gone into one more court the army would have given them a bonus.

Anyway, George was A very bad boy.

ANOTHER PALL.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

THOMAS EDWARD LAWRENCE.

From an Article by LOWELL THOMAS in World's Work for February.

SEVERAL years before the World War an expedition from Oxford, headed by Lawrence's friend Hogarth, the great antiquarian and archeologist, began excavating in the Euphrates Valley, hoping to uncover trace of that little-known race, the Hittites. Because of his intimate knowledge of their language and his sympathetic understanding of their customs, Lawrence was placed in charge of the digging gangs of unruly Kurds, Turkomans, Armenians and Arabs. He and his associate, C. Leonard Woolley, director of the expedition, actually uncovered ruins which proved to be the missing links between the civilizations of Nineveh and Babylon and the beginnings of Greek culture in the islands of the Mediterranean, which extend back for 5000 years. * * * When the war came he at once attempted to enlist as a private in the ranks of "Kitchener's Mob." But members of the Army Medical Board looked at the frail, five-foot-three, tow headed youth, winked at one another and told him to run home to his mother and wait until the next war. * * * After his rejection Lawrence returned to his ancient ruins and toiled lovingly over inscriptions that unlocked the secrets of civilizations that flourished and crumbled to dust thousands of years ago. * * * The spectacular achievements of Thomas Edward Lawrence, the young Oxford graduate, were unknown to the public at the end of the World War. Yet, quietly, without any theatrical headlines or fanfare of trumpets, he brought the disunited nomadic tribes of Holy and Forbidden Arabia into a unified campaign against their Turkish oppressors, a difficult and splendid stroke of policy, which Caliphs, statesmen and Sultans had been unable to accomplish in centuries of effort. Lawrence placed himself at the head of the Bedouin army of the Sherif of Mecca, who was afterward proclaimed King of the Hejaz. He united the wandering tribes of the desert, restored the sacred places of Islam to the descendants of the Prophet, and drove the Turks from Arabia forever. * * * Imagine what the members of the medical board would have said if some one had suggested to them in 1914 that three or four years later this same young man would decline knighthood and the rank of general and would even avoid the coveted Victoria Cross and various other honors!

A GOOD WORD FOR RED HEADS.

From the Philadelphia Record.

AS FOR US, we would choose a red-headed taxi driver any time, in spite of the Newark cab company executive who refuses to employ one. Any man who has had the training in self-control which is required by the carrot-topped fraternity in their efforts to ignore or withstand the badgerings of an easily amused world should make a good driver. By the time a red-head has reached man's estate he is almost tease-proof.

DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER is against the abolishment of hell on the ground that we need it in our national vocabulary, but perhaps Vice President Dawes could think of something just as good.

WHEN A MAN'S FIFTY.

From the Detroit News.

FIFTY in a way is an epochal age. Middle life is behind and old age is still some distance ahead. At 50 it behooves a man to pause, look about him, reflect and take stock. He is no longer young, nor is he old. It was upwards of 50 that many celebrities did their immortal best, as for example, Mark Twain, Sir Walter Scott and Victor Hugo. In the nature of things, 15 working years remain, possibly more. Fifty is a more significant age than 40, less pivotal, perhaps, but more revealing and reassuring. When a man's 50 he knows who are his friends and who are not. The sure years have exposed the fair weather kind and likewise confirmed confidence in the true blue variety with whom constancy is a thing of honor. At 50 one is not unduly elated by triumph nor easily depressed by disaster. Failure and success have lost something of their power to cast down or exalt. At 50 one knows fairly well his own powers and also his limitations. He is surer of himself than he formerly was, yet withal not quite so willing to tell the world. When a man's 50 he knows what he likes in food and drink, in plays and books, what is more important, he knows what is best for him, having proved the same by experience often costly and sometimes painful. At 50 one has seen and felt enough of the "give and take" of life to believe that a fairer balance is struck here and now than seemed possible or desirable when one was, say, 35. At 50 there is more of the "joy of working" and less of the drudgery of toil. And the sweetest music at 50 is the laughter of little children, particularly one's children's children.

It is probable that the greater portion of the newspaper public has already forgotten the tempest of opinion that resulted from the announcement that Luther Burbank, "the plant wizard," was an "infidel." He had said it himself in an unguarded moment, and it was therefore not to be doubted, though just what he himself meant by the term few paused to ask. When Burbank died shortly afterward, there were not lacking those who were convinced that outraged divinity had acted with commendable promptness.

Luther Burbank is dead, but the practical benefits he bestowed upon mankind are incalculable. His accomplishments will constitute a benediction upon the generations of men so long as vegetable life is essential to human welfare. Since this is unquestionably true, it does not really matter what the misinformed may think about the man when they think of him at all. Certainly it was not in the philosophy of Burbank himself to care much, so long as he could serve mankind creatively. Nevertheless, it is true that figs can not grow from thistles, and in view of this truth, it may interest those who do not know all about God and the universe to know what sort of human personality resulted in the good life that Luther Burbank lived. It is the purpose of the volume here presented to reveal that personality, with especial reference to the religious attitude that strengthened and made gentle the whole life of the man.

Those who may suspect that Burbank had horns should not try to read the book, for it would simply prove unintelligible to them. But there are thousands who have come to realize that it is in the life of a man and not in his professions that his religion is revealed, if he happens to have any; and the life of Burbank was strangely saint-like, both in the serene trust that characterized all his activities and in the spirit of benevolence that all who knew him felt in his presence.

Frederick W. Clampett, the author, is a veteran clergyman of the Pacific Coast and an old friend of Burbank. An introductory note and an epilogue are by David Starr Jordan, himself a great scientist and one of the finest spirits of our time. Dr. Jordan was intimately acquainted with Burbank for 30 years.

FRONTIER AND PARIS STYLES AT EXPOSITION

Virginia Mountain Woman to Spin Cloth in Booth at Women's Exhibit.

Exhibits that contrast women's fashion in frontier days with the most modern French importations, and a series of daily pageants, depicting the modern woman's achievements, are among features to be offered at the National Woman's Exposition, opening Saturday at the Coliseum and continuing to Feb. 9.

The exposition will be formally inaugurated by the Princess Cantacuzene, the granddaughter of President Grant, Saturday evening. It is sponsored by a board of St. Louis women, of which Mrs. Philip North Moore and Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd are honorary chairmen, Mrs. N. A. McMillan being the general chairman.

Frontier fashions will be both worn and made by Mrs. Rose E. Kearney, a mountain woman from Damascus, Va., who scorns ready-made [illegible] and spins her own cloth. While Mrs. Kearney is contriving frontier fabric in one booth in another ultra-modern fashions from Paris and New York will be shown. A further contrast in fashions will be contributed by the Hopi and Navajo Indian women, who, in their native costumes, will weave blankets and fabrics.

Home Life and Child Welfare.

There will be 209 booths. They will portray every achievement of women in the commercial field. Many are to be devoted to the home life of women and child welfare. The east room in the Coliseum has been taken over by the Child Welfare Bureau, and exhibits will be given there under the direction of Health Commissioner [illegible].

The opening program of the exposition includes a historical pageant, and several pageants are scheduled daily thereafter.

BETWEEN TWO WARS. By James Mark Baldwin. (Stratford Co.)

In two thick volumes James Mark Baldwin, formerly professor at Princeton and other American universities, and now of Paris, recalls his memories extending over the 60 years between our Civil War, in the midst of which he was born at Charleston, S. C., and the World War, in which he passed through many moving scenes. His personal activities and associations began in the reconstruction period in South Carolina, and his life has been rich in experiences of an exceptional order.

IMPERIALISM. The State and Revolution. By N. Lenin. (The Vanguard Press.)

The first of these two essays was written by Lenin during 1916 while he was in exile in Switzerland. It discusses the process by which capitalism develops into economic imperialism. The second essay was being written in Russia at the time of the November Revolution, 1917. It is an interpretation of Marx and Engels. In an afterword, Lenin explained that his analysis of the November Revolution would have to be put off to a later day, and he remarked that, after all, it was "more pleasant and more useful to pass through a revolution than to write about it." It would appear that Lenin found writing a gruelling task!

BRYAN UNIVERSITY TO MAKE FUND DRIVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Bryan Memorial University, planned as a result of the Scopes trial at Dayton, Tenn., and dedicated to Fundamentalism will begin soon in New York a drive for $400,000. The college is to be established at Dayton.

This will be part of a $5,000,000 building fund and endowment now being raised for the institution. The campaign prospectus says a board of trustees is to be elected, "every member of which shall believe in the historicity and infallibility of the Holy Bible, and shall so affirm."

Malcolm M. Lockhart, now of Dayton, who describes himself as "a militant fundamentalist," is director of the drive. He said last night that about 15 men and women would be engaged and that these would call on the "friends of Mr. Bryan" and ask them to buy membership certificates in the Bryan Memorial University Association. The price is $100. Each certificate carries the right to vote for the board of directors of the organization.

Lockhart, who in addition to raising endowment for several colleges, has been an assistant director of a drive for the Near East Relief, denied reports that his solicitors would receive 16 2-3 per cent of all cash they brought in. While they are to be paid, he said, they are not working on a commission basis.

"They will be paid," said Lockhart, "a salary based on what they do. That is to say, a certain salary will be fixed for each worker. If he does not bring in the number of certificates agreed upon that salary will not be given him. He will receive less."

Lockhart also denied that the Rev. John Roach Straton, who recently severed his connection with the newly formed "Supreme Kingdom," was to be in charge of the local campaign. Dr. Straton is a member of the national campaign committee of the Bryan University Memorial drive, Lockhart said.

WOMEN'S COMMITTEE NAMED FOR NEW METROPOLITAN CLUB

A Women's Membership Committee for the projected new Metropolitan Club, to be erected at Kingshighway and Maryland avenue, has been created by the group of men forming the new organization as a successor to the position of the old St. Louis Club.

This group is expected to plan privileges to be accorded women in the club and fix their initiation fee. Probably 60 to 100 women will be admitted.

Five hundred men will be admitted, with an initiation fee of $500, and junior memberships for young men at a smaller fee may be established. Jackson Johnson, general chairman of the organization, left today to visit California and A. L. Shapleigh, vice chairman, is carrying on the work.

WHAT MAN SHOULD WEAR PROMULGATED BY TAILORS

National Association Committee Includes Suspenders as Aid to Fashion.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 27.—Fashion's edict for the men for 1927 was delivered to the annual convention of the National Association of Merchant Tailors of America today by its Fashion Committee, headed by A. Lincoln Stadler of New York.

Correct and incorrect practices in dress were summarized as follows:

The top silk hat or opera hat should be worn with the tailcoat; white waistcoats have given way to the black waistcoats for tuxedos; black shoes are general favorites for town and business, while dark tan are the vogue for travel and country wear; very light tans or lemon-colored shoes are never in good form at any time or place; spats are never correctly worn with tan shoes; gloves are a necessary adjunct, the various shades of tan being preferable; suspenders are regaining popularity and greatly aid the fit of the trousers; starched collars, either in white or matched to colored shirts of unobtrusive patterns are proper for town and business wear.

The soft collar is recommended only for hot weather and country and sports wear.

Exhibits that contrast women's fashion in frontier days with the most modern French importations, and a series of daily pageants, depicting the modern woman's achievements, are among features to be offered at the National Woman's Exposition, opening Saturday at the Coliseum and continuing to Feb. 9.

The exposition will be formally inaugurated by the Princess Cantacuzene, the granddaughter of President Grant, Saturday evening. It is sponsored by a board of St. Louis women, of which Mrs. Philip North Moore and Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd are honorary chairmen, Mrs. N. A. McMillan being the general chairman.

Frontier fashions will be both worn and made by Mrs. Rose E. Kearney, a mountain woman from Damascus, Va., who scorns ready-made fabrics and spins her own cloth. While Mrs. Kearney is contriving frontier fabric in one booth, in another ultra-modern fashions from Paris and New York will be shown. A further contrast in fashions will be contributed by the Hopi and Navajo Indian women, who, in their native costumes, will weave blankets and fabrics.

Home Life and Child Welfare.

There will be 200 booths. They will portray every achievement of women in the commercial field. Many are to be devoted to the home life of women and child welfare. The east room in the Coliseum has been taken over by the Child Welfare Bureau, and exhibitions will be given there under the direction of Health Commissioner Starkloff.

The opening program of the exposition includes a historical pageant, and several pageants are scheduled daily thereafter.

Among the organizations taking part are the Board of Religious Organizations of the State, the Council of Catholic Women, embracing 52 Catholic organizations, the Missionary Federation of Protestant Women, the W. C. T. U., the Humane Society, the American Legion Auxiliary, the Parent-Teachers Organization, including about 20 branches, the Young Women's Christian Association, the Federated Women's Clubs of the State; the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of the State; the Women of the Grand Army of the Republic; the Daughters of America, and several other organizations.

Genevieve County, Cape Girardeau County, Perry County, Iron County, Madison County, Phelps County, Lincoln County, Lawrence County, Washington County, Jefferson County, Pulaski County, Carroll County, Morgan County and Greene County.

Followers From All Parts of U. S. Will Attend Funeral.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—Beneath a death robe of embroidered white silk, the body of Princess Binbo, daughter of the queen of the gypsies, today awaited burial. Binbo died yesterday at the Lankenau Hospital while dozens of gypsies knelt on the lawn chanting prayers for her recovery.

As the end approached, a robe of rich red silk embroidered with threads of gold and decorated with semi-precious stones, was placed on her bed. Only those of Romany blood were permitted in the room while the religious leader of the gypsies replaced the red robe with a white one. Gypsies from all parts of the country are expected to attend the funeral. Binbo two weeks ago bore a son, her sixth child, and elaborate preparations had been made for its christening when a scratch on the mother's lip became infected and blood poisoning developed.

AMERICA WILLING TO MAKE NEW DEAL WITH CHINA

O'Malley has been authorized to make to the Cantonese Foreign Minister at Hankow are understood to embrace terms for the complete eventual surrender of the British concessions throughout China, including extraterritoriality and plans for new treaties supplanting the present "unequal" ones.

It is not known here whether the proposals have actually been handed to Foreign Minister Chen, but it is expected that they will be made public soon.

Meanwhile, the British Government is keeping the United States, Japan and the other interested Powers fully informed on the negotiations between Chen and O'Malley, which are expected to have a most important bearing on the whole crisis arising out of the antiforeign excesses in the Yangtze Valley.

In making their proposals to Chen, the British have been most careful to state that identical terms will be made to other Chinese authorities—that is, the Pekin Government—thus preventing the impression that Great Britain recognizes the Cantonese Government as the responsible authority for all of China.

Favorable View in London of Kellogg's Statement.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The British Foreign Office welcomes the views on China expressed by the United States Government as an example of the best kind of co-operation, namely co-operation that depends not on formal agreements, but on a common attitude toward a great problem. Secretary Kellogg's statement is considered to express much the same spirit as was displayed in the recent British memorandum.

485 Indian Soldiers Land at Shanghai.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 27.—The first of the thousands of soldiers which Great Britain is sending to China as a precautionary measure arrived today.

Four hundred and thirty-five Punjabi soldiers who left Hong Kong recently, reached port this morning on the Steamer Glenogle. Their disembarkation was without incident.

The soldiers were the first British troops landed in Shanghai since the Boxer rebellion and also were the largest military force landed in China to protect foreigners since Boxer days, excepting the armed forces stationed at Pekin and Tientsin in accordance with treaty provisions.

Chinese watched the entry of the troops without evidencing signs of hostility. Hundreds of Americans, Europeans and Japanese also looked on.

Since Tuesday Cantonese authorities have been levying a tax of 2½ per cent on all imports entering their territory regardless of whether customs duties previously had been paid to the Northern Government here, it was learned today. The additional tax applies only to ordinary goods, a special scale having been set for luxuries.

Imports for interior destinations recently were assessed 5 per cent for ordinary commodities and an additional 2½ per cent for luxuries. This is levied at Shanghai.

Manchurian Dictator Likely to Be Elected President at Pekin.

PEKIN, Jan. 27.—There are many indications that Gen. Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian dictator, will be elected President of China shortly after the Chinese New Year with the old Senate assembling for that formality. The last President, Tsao Kun, resigned May 1, 1926, and since that time the functions of the Chief Executive have been administered by the Cabinet.

Race on Between British and Cantonese Army for Shanghai.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—For the next six weeks British officialdom will focus its attention on Shanghai, for on developments there depends whether the British force of about 20,000 men, now being mobilized, will be brought into actual service.

A race is on for Shanghai between the British land and sea forces and the Chinese Nationalists of the Southern or Cantonese army. Should the Cantonese get near enough to the great international settlement to cause a situation in any way threatening the life and property of foreigners, then the British foreign office says, his majesty's forces will take a stand.

Emphasis is given by the Foreign Office to its statement that the question of control of Chekiang province up to the limits of Shanghai's international settlement is one solely between the Governor of Chekiang, Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, and the attacking Cantonese army of Gen. Chiang Kai Shek in which the British will not interfere. Nothing will be done if the Cantonese succeed in capturing and occupying Shanghai, but should the foreign quarter be jeopardized then prompt action will be taken.

The Laborites are unceasing in their criticism of the Government, charging that the display of force is unwarranted. They sent a delegation to protest to Foreign Secretary Chamberlain last night, and later drew up a resolution deploring "the flaunted military demonstration against the Canton Government, as the effect may stir up a spirit of panic and aggression on both sides and make inevitable the very misfortunes it is pretended to prevent."

He said that disorders inseparable from civil war necessitated protection for British Nationals and that the British troops were sent solely for this purpose.

The Laborites sent a copy of their resolution to Foreign Minister Chen at Canton, with a message promising to do everything possible to procure Chinese national independence and expressing the hope that Chen would help in the settlement and prevent incidents which might give an excuse for the employment of force.

Japan Decides on New Treaty With China.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Reuter's Tokio correspondent says: "It is understood the Japanese Government authorities at a conference yesterday decided that a new treaty should be concluded between China and Japan on an equal footing, the mutual granting of most-favored nation treatment being likewise specified."

WOMAN SHOT ACCIDENTALLY

Son, 24, Fires Pistol Thought to Have Been Dropped by Robbers.

Mrs. Helen Posage, 44 years old, of 1203 North Ninth street, East St. Louis, was accidentally shot in the right forearm yesterday by her son, Anthony, 24, who pulled the trigger of an automatic pistol after removing the magazine from the weapon. The discharged bullet was in the barrel.

The pistol was found early yesterday by Mrs. Posage's husband, Michael, a city fireman, at Eleventh street and Winstanley avenue. It is thought to have been thrown from a machine in which three robbery suspects were arrested Tuesday night after being pursued several blocks by police.

PilesDisappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom banish Piles and for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments cannot give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M.D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find an ideal internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID and it has proven successful in thousands of cases—so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores, who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.

EFFECTS COALITION

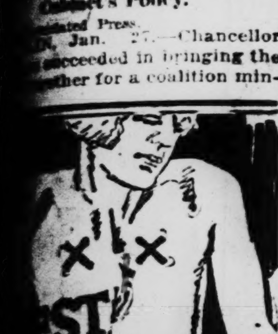

Reach Accord on New Cabinet's Policy.

Associated Press.
Jan. 27.—Chancellor succeeded in bringing the together for a coalition ministry, although the Ministers have not been named. The Centrists, the People's Party, the Bavarian People's Party and the Nationalists have agreed to participate and there has also been an accord on the Government's policy. As the Democrats have decided not to participate in the coalition, it commands only 248 votes out of 491 in the Reichstag.

The Nationalists, in accepting Dr. Marx's outlined program, have agreed to enforcement of the presidential decree forbidding enlistment in the Reichswehr of recruits on probation, or temporary training for reserves, or officers reserves; second, to interdiction of members of the army joining or co-operating with political organizations of any kind; and third, to regulations prohibiting enrollment in the Reichswehr of anti-Republicans.

FEAR FOR 2 ST. LOUIS PRIESTS LOST IN CHINA

No Word Has Come for Month From the Revs. William P. Barr and William Musson.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Priests at De Paul University expressed anxiety today as to the safety of the Very Rev. William P. Barr, C. M., provincial superior, and the Rev. William Musson, C. M., provincial treasurer, both of St. Louis, now in China. Both are thought to be in Yukiang, where antiforeign demonstrations have taken place.

Fathers Barr and Musson, whose headquarters are at St. Vincent de Paul's Church, St. Louis, left Chicago late in November to visit the Vincentian Fathers' Mission in the Orient. No word has come from them since Dec. 28, when they wrote they were leaving Shanghai for the interior.

Father Thomas F. Levan, C. M., president of De Paul, also was considerably worried about four other priests of the Western province who at last reports were in the Yukiang district. These are the Rev. Fathers Edward Sheehan, Streator, Ill.; Henry Altenberg, Milwaukee; James Coyle, Lincoln, Neb.; Leo Moore, Perryville, Mo., and James Lewis, Allister, Cal.

Former St. Louis Priest Writes of Conditions in China.

A letter, dated Dec. 30, was received yesterday at the St. Louis House of St. Vincent de Paul, South Ninth street and Park avenue, from the Rev. John Meyer, who wrote from Kiukiang, saying that he was expecting Fathers Barr and Musson that day and was waiting with a boat to take them farther into the interior to Jo Chow where all the missionaries were assembling. Father Meyer's mission was at Tsi Tou, but he was forced to retreat from theer after Chinese had seized his seminary.

Father Sheehan was a student and professor at Kendrick Seminary in Webster Groves before his departure three years ago to take up missionary work in China.

Evangelical Mission in Hunan Province Wrecked.

By the Associated Press.
BERWICK, Pa., Jan. 27.—The Evangelical Mission Church of the Rev. Harold Davis at Siang-Tan, Hunan Province, China, was wrecked by Chinese mobs on Christmas day and the Episcopal Church there was treated worse, a letter from the missionary's wife to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Davis, here said.

A telegram also was received stating that the Rev. and Mrs. Davis and their two children had left their mission field and were enroute to Shanghai.

The letter, written Dec. 27, said threats against them were made, and one preacher was forced to flee for his life, his money was stolen, his household goods were destroyed and the clothing of his family was torn to shreds. Mrs. Davis' letter also said, that the demonstrations were against all religions and particularly Christianity rather than against foreigners generally.

Eleven Dominican Priests Flee From Canton Troops.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Eleven Dominican missionaries are safe at Hongkong after fleeing the Fuchow province, and Kienning-Fu, on the Ming River, a cablegram received at headquarters of the Dominican Order here says. Their mission houses and other properties were occupied by Cantonese Nationalists.

ANTI-EVOLUTION BILL UP

House to Begin Arguments on Measure Next Week.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 27.—The anti-evolution bill designed to keep Missouri safely within the ranks of fundamentalists, was made a special order of business for engrossment on Feb. 8 by the House today. The autors of the bill, Representatives Charles C. Jackson of Myrtle, Oregon County, and Samuel D. McDaniel of Pineville, McDonald County, are marshaling their forces to drive the bill through to engrossment.

Jackson has asked for the privilege of using the center aisle of the House for his speech, it is understood, instead of speaking from his desk. McDaniel will open the fight and Jackson said he had asked for the privilege of closing. Opponents of the bill also are busy hunting up Biblical references and refreshing their memory on the Scope's trial in Tennessee. The bill imposes a fine of not less than $50 or more than $100, an forfeiture of the teaching certificate for any teacher in a school in Missouri, supported by taxation, who teaches any theory that man descended from a lower order of animals.

W. L. Huggins Jr. Seeks Divorce.

Alleging that his wife reluctantly consented to return to him after a separation last September, and then under the condition that she would act solely as his housekeeper, William Lambert Huggins Jr., editor of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co. employes' magazine, today filed suit for divorce. Mrs. Elizabeth Huggins, who is with her parents in Corpus Christi, Tex., has entered her appearance. They have one son, William, two years old.

Plenty of Water at Carbondale.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Jan. 27.—Fear of a water shortage in this city has been dispelled with the announcement of Superintendent Gill that the new reservoir is filled and that water for the first time is pouring over the spillway. The reservoir now contains 360,000,000 gallons of water.

ESCAPED CONVICT OUT TO STEAL MILLIONS

Atlanta Fugitive, Termed Greater Criminal Than Chapman, Boasted of Plans.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 27.—Albert Rosenberg, termed by prison officials a "greater criminal than Gerald Chapman," boasted before his escape from the Federal Penitentiary here Tuesday night that for every year he served in prison he would collect $1,000,000 from the Government.

This was disclosed by immigration and postal officials, who hold a warrant for his deportation to Lithuania in revealing his record of crime in this country, which included robberies aggregating $1,500,000, one of which was the $1,250,000 bond robbery from the steamship Minnehaha in midocean.

Known as "The Duke" among his associates in two countries, Rosenberg is described as an educated man of polish, who also is wanted in England for bigamy and on other charges.

He, with the two others, escaped after wriggling through a tiny opening 30 feet above ground.

Rosenberg, Frank McGoldrick, serving three years from New York, and Basil Baughart, serving two years from Southern Ohio, participated in the first organized escape since "Dutch" Anderson tunneled his way to freedom in 1923. Two long-term prisoners lost their nerve when pistol fire beat down upon the fleeing men. Joseph C. Lauzon, serving 20 years from Washington, D. C., and Joe Urbaytis, a 50-year prisoner from Toledo, O., were captured in a cell corridor and placed in solitary confinement. McGoldrick was captured near the prison wall yesterday with an injured ankle. He said he had not intended to escape but when he saw the others going thought his chance had come.

A jury in City Judge Silas Cook's court, East St. Louis, today awarded Mrs. Mabel Little judgment of $5000 in her suit for $10,000 damages against the Blue Goose Moter Coach Co., Inc., for the death last May of her husband, Dr. Robert M. Little. Dr. Little was injured Nov. 1, 1925, in a collision of his machine with a motorbus at Twenty-seventh street and Ridge avenue.

Dr. Little died while a jury was deliberating in his suit for $25,000 against the company. A mistrial was declared and last month a jury awarded Mrs. Little a judgment of $5000. Both sides asked for a new trial and the case was tried again.

GRANITE CITY REALTY DEALER HELD IN AUTO THEFT CASE

Department of Justice agents, acting with Granite City police, yesterday arrested Paul Beardsley, Granite City real estate man, charged with violation of the Dyer act. Beardsley will be taken to Springfield, Ill., today.

Ralph Logan of Granite City, arrested more than a week ago in St. Louis driving a car which police allege was stolen, said Beardsley had given him a bill of sale for the car.

AGAINST PARKING DOWNTOWN

Engineer Says Business District Is in Danger of Decentralization.

Prohibition of parking in the downtown streets would increase the roadway capacity for moving traffic by 100 per cent, City Traffic Engineer Hoffmann pointed out in an address before the Engineers' Club last night. While about 14,000 automobiles are parked downtown daily, he went on, this is only 10 per cent of the total entering the district, so that benefits of the parking privilege are for a minority. Only 4 per cent of the persons entering the district daily are accommodated by parking, he added.

The business district will be decentralized unless traffic congestion is relieved, the speaker declared, and he said that only a small percentage of the persons parking near large stores are prospective customers.

YOUTH RELEASED FROM JAIL

James Green, 17 years old, 705 Canterbury avenue, who was committed to Clayton County jail Jan. 8 by Justice of the Peace Fiedler of Maplewood, for 18 days, and fined $5 and costs for reckless driving, was released yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus.

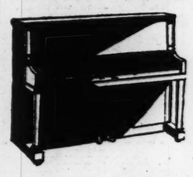

John E. Corvey, Green's attorney, told Circuit Judge McElhinney, who granted the writ, that Green was a minor and Justice Fiedler had no jurisdiction in the case. Justice Fiedler said the youth told him he was of age.

The Gift of a Smooth Skin

France developed this famous method of making fine toilet soap . .

PARIS—where women of every land find loveliness! Slender throats and satin cheeks, as creamy smooth as the drifting petals from the chestnut blossoms in the Bois. Shoulders and arms like white chiffon velvet in the candle-lit gaiety of chateau and petit cafe. Fine textured, exquisite hands from many nations buying flowers on the steps of the Madeleine.

For France has given to the world the gift of smooth skin!

Satisfied only with perfection, she knows the skin itself must be exquisite, or all her skillful powders and perfumes lose their magic. For hundreds of years other nations have looked to France for fine toilet soaps. Imported—expensive—demanded. Made by the same famous method that today makes Lux Toilet Soap.

There is prophecy in the fine textured, creamy smoothness of this cake! So firm, so lasting, delicately fragrant. The caressing, bubbling lather delights your skin, tending it the true French way. Soft, instant lather—hard water on the Continent taught the French the secret that Lux Toilet Soap, too, knows.

Lux Toilet Soap gives you that same delicious luxurious feeling you so adored after costly French soaps! You do feel more exquisite. Absurd—yes, but it's true, otherwise you would never have paid fifty cents or a dollar for a tiny cake of French soap.

With her genius for achievement America puts this savon de toilette within the reach of all the family! Women asked for it, "Please a soap as wonderful as French soap, but not so costly."

Today Lux Toilet Soap takes its place proudly in any bathroom. It is just ten cents! The moment you touch that firm, generous cake you know that you have savon de toilette for all the family. Oh the delight of having an exquisite soap that you can gaily use all the time—with never a qualm of conscience lest you are extravagant. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Instantly it captivated American women

Instant lather even in hard water

Everywhere, the whole family uses it

SINGLETON GIVES CHURCH $50,000 IN MEMORY OF WIFE

$269,266 PLEDGED IN 2-WEEK DRIVE

Work on Three-Story Structure at 5018 Washington Boulevard Will Start in Spring.

A campaign among members of St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Kingshighway and Washington boulevard, for a $200,000 fund for a new religious educational building adjoining the church on the west at 5018 Washington, which began two weeks ago, ended last night at a congregational dinner at which it was announced $269,266 had been subscribed.

Construction work will start this spring and is expected to be completed by autumn. The three-story building, being designed by Trueblood & Graf, architects, will conform in style with the modified Greek-Byzantine appearance of the church and will have similar white stone walls. The congregation has owned the property involved for nearly a year and has been making use of the old residence there.

Every Member Contributes.

A small part of the fund will be used for redecoration of the church interior. Virtually every member of the congregation subscribed to the fund, the smallest gift being $1 and the largest that of M. E. Singleton, president of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co., $50,000. Singleton's donation calls for inclusion in the structure of a chapel in memory of his first wife, the late Mrs. Susie Singleton, and was made in his name and those of their seven children.

Paul Brown, a broker, started the fund by offering $1[illegible] on condition that other members give $[illegible], and last night he turned in his subscription.

Other large pledges announced were:

$10,000 each—Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Nelson, together; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Westlake.

$3000 each—Wilbur T. Trueblood, Massey Wilson.

$2000 each—H. C. Avis, E. E. Gunter, A. M. Keller, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Lewis and family, M. B. Wallace, G. A. Radford, Samuel G. Kennedy.

$1000 each—A. Shapleigh Boyd, Robert S. Brookings, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Brookmire, George G. Gambrill, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. P. Hamilton, B. C. Jinkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. May, J. U. Menteer, James A. McVoy, E. D. Nims, Mrs. D. E. Nixon, E. A. Nixon, John J. O'Fallon, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Upthegrove, N. P. Wilfley and family, Eugene U. Williams, W. Frank Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart McDonald, Frank C. Rand, Mrs. R. B. Dula, Mrs. W. B. Dean and Mrs. J. T. Milliken.

The Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, pastor of the church, at last night's dinner, cautioned the Building Committee to follow in its task the high standards set by the Finance Committee, to achieve the greatest benefit of the new building.

PUT OUT OF MINERS' MEETING

Unrecognized Delegate Starts Fight With Sergeant-at-Arms.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 27.—A fist fight between Powers Hapgood of Cresson, Pa., Harvard graduate and son of a prominent Indianapolis manufacturer, and a sergeant-at-arms temporarily disrupted today's meeting of the United Mine Workers of America in convention here.

Hapgood, who says he is a delegate, but has been ignored by the Credentials Committee, attempted to speak on a resolution assailing the United Mine Workers' Journal for not printing the views of the minority faction of the miners. President John L. Lewis denied Hapgood the floor and when a sergeant-at-arms attempted to seat him Hapgood resisted. The melee followed, but soon was quelled. The young man recently was expelled from a Pennsylvania district of the union because of his radical views and because, it was asserted, he was not a miner. Hapgood is a proponent of nationalization of the mines.

1000 PROPERTY OWNERS SERVED IN PLAZA SUITS

Condemnation Proceedings Assigned to Circuit Judge Hamilton's Court.

The city's suit to condemn about $6,000,000 worth of property on the site of the proposed municipal plaza today was assigned to Circuit Judge Hamilton's court on petition of Assistant City Counselor Phillips, who announced that the city was now ready to go ahead with condemnation proceedings.

Judge Hamilton will appoint three commissioners within a few days to begin the valuation of property under condemnation. More than 1000 property owners, many of them nonresidents, have been served with notices of the city's action. The work of serving these persons has caused the delay, Phillips said.

FLOODS DELAY PHONE PROJECT

Flood waters in Arkansas lowlands have delayed completion of the rebuilding of the long-distance telephone line between St. Louis and Little Rock, Ark., of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. The $192,000 project, begun last May and scheduled to be finished in March, is about 80 per cent completed.

The chief work of the project was relocation of virtually the whole line between Poplar Bluff, Mo., and Newport, Ark., which had been on the right-of-way of the Missouri Pacific Railroad but had to be moved because the railroad was installing a high-tension power line for a new block signal system, which would have interfered with telephonic transmission. The line will remain close to the railroad and highways, however. The project involved setting 4229 poles and stringing 718 miles of new copper wire.

MARONEY NAMED ASSISTANT TO CIRCUIT ATTORNEY

Andrew C. Maroney today was appointed Assistant Circuit Attorney, succeeding Roy A. Fish, who resigned recently to enter private practice.

Maroney, a vigorous prosecutor, was assistant to Joseph W. Folk in the famous boodle trials of a quarter of a century ago. He has been acting as special prosecutor in the grand jury investigation of the real estate frauds of Edward Grant, but in that capacity was not allowed to enter the grand jury room. Now he can appear before the grand jury.

KELLOGG'S EFFORT TO GARBLE REPORT BLOCKED BY BORAH

Senate Committee Refuses to Sponsor His Version of His Evidence on Latin American Row.

HE HAD FIXED IT TO SUIT HIMSELF

It Remains to Be Seen Whether State Secretary Will Still Issue His Doctored Story.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The fact that Secretary of State Kellogg attempted to use the Senate Foreign Relations Committee as an agency for making public a censored and incomplete version of his statement on the Mexican and Nicaraguan situation was disclosed yesterday. The committee frustrated the attempt and bluntly rebuked the secretary for making it.

Two weeks ago Kellogg appeared before the committee to explain and defend his policies in Nicaragua and Mexico. At his request, the hearing was secret. He insisted that the proceedings be recorded by his own stenographer, and had the regular committee reporter excluded from the room.

Afterward, however, he suggested that the committee make public his memorandum on "bolshevist aims in Mexico and Latin America." The committee declined to be sponsor for this document, and a few hours later mimeographed copies of it were issued from the State Department. "The memorandum, which proved to consist chiefly of stale newspaper clippings, was denounced on the floor of the Senate two days later by Senator La Follette (Prog.-Rep.), of Wisconsin, as "flimsy, fishy, vicious propaganda."

Borah Spoils the Story.

Meanwhile Secretary Kellogg and his stenographer were preparing a "transcript" of the Secretary's statement at hearing to be made public through the committee. When Chairman Borah received and examined it a few days ago, he discovered it had been "corrected" in such a manner that important parts of the statement were missing. When the committee met yesterday the attention of members was called to the text, and the question of making it public in that condition was put to a vote and defeated.

At the close of the meeting Senator Borah explained that the attempt had been made and frustrated, and by the direction of the committee made the following statement:

"It was the judgment of the record which we have before us is incomplete, in the sense that Secretary Kellogg has 'deleted' important parts of the hearing. This he had a perfect right to do, but it leaves the record in such a condition that it does not record what happened at the hearing, and therefore we think it unwise under such conditions to make it public.

"In the second place, the committee was of the opinion that we ought not to establish the practice of having executive sessions, and afterward giving out portions of the record as the result of the hearing; that if the hearings are to be open they ought to be open from the beginning."

Doctored Version.

Senator Borah did not explain to what purpose the record had been altered but the writer learned from reliable sources that the "corrected" version seemed calculated to represent the Secretary and his policies in a more impressive light than that in which he and they actually appeared to members of the committee.

Whether he will follow his own precedent in the instance of the "bolshevik" memorandum and cause the doctored version of his statement to be issued by the State Department has not been disclosed.

Yesterday's episode followed several of kindred character which caused Senator King (Dem.), Utah, to charge on the floor of the Senate last week that "the Department of State had become a department of propaganda."

Among its efforts at propaganda was the celebrated attempt of Assistant Secretary Olds to have press associations broadcast an unauthoritative story that the Mexican Government was spreading bolshevism in Central America. That effort was exposed by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and a resolution to investigate it is now pending before the Foreign Relations Committee.

Son of Man Slain by Officers Held.

By the Associated Press.

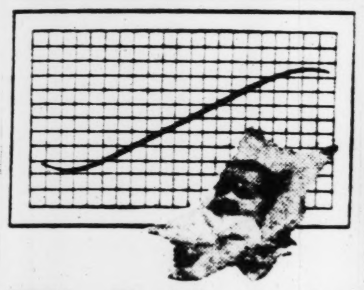

CAMDEN, Ark., Jan. 27.—Erwin Stanley, 24 years old, son of J. A. Stanley, who was slain in a revolver fight with county officers near here after he had killed Zack Horton, a deputy, and wounded three others, is under arrest. Stanley is charged with stabbing Jack Lewis, upon whose complaint the officers had gone to arrest the elder Stanley for selling liquor.

MAN CONVICTED OF ROBBERY GIVEN 10-YEAR SENTENCE

Choosing to stand trial for robbery rather than plead guilty and accept a five-year prison term, Elvis Trotter, 33 years old, of 2707 Gamble street, was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary by a jury in Circuit Judge Hogan's court yesterday. Ben Crews, 33, of 4229 Olive street, jointly charged with Trotter, accepted the five-year term.

Trotter was identified by William L. Rogers, owner of a barbecue stand at 5803 Natural Bridge road, and by Rogers' wife, as one of the two men who robbed them of $35 on Oct. 6 last. As an alibi, Trotter introduced a woman who said she was with him during the evening of the robbery. Crews was brought from the jail, but refused to state whether or not Trotter was with him.

U. S. TRADE OBSERVERS COVER ENTIRE WORLD

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—From the jostling bazars of the Orient to quiet Threadneedle street, the world's trade is watched by a force of young Americans under Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

The young man in the observation corps may find himself in Aden one year, in Singapore the next, and in Bucharest the third. His duties will range from getting a new agent for the sale of American bicycles in Calcutta to tracing out the impact on international trade of a new foreign combination of steel rail makers.

There is every appeal to the semi-adventurous in the service, yet there is considerable difficulty in keeping men at all of its posts.

That difficulty is not so strange, says O. P. Hopkins, assistant director of the bureau of foreign service in charge of its personnel.

The man, who has made good as trade commissioner, assistant trade commissioner or commercial attache for the Government at a salary of $3000 to $9000 a year is an attractive recruit for the American importing and exporting house which is actually engaged in business, Hopkins explains.

"We try to keep our staff made up of two kinds of men," he said. "One is the graduate of the schools of economics and business maintained by the larger universities. The other man is the chap with actual commercial experience.

Soot and dirt in the air were blamed as carriers of disease, in an address by H. C. Murphy, vice president of an air filter company of Louisville, Ky., before the American Society of Heating & Ventilating Engineers, at Hotel Statler yesterday.

He related that a recent count of dust particles in the air of 24 large American cities gave St. Louis the worst showing, with 17,600 particles per cubic foot. Boston had the cleanest air, with 5360 particles.

Next to St. Louis in this air pollution were: Cincinnati, 16,770; Pittsburg, 16,106; Detroit, 15,300; Chicago, 14,300; Indianapolis, 14,060 and Cleveland, 13,840. Philadelphia had 9880 and New York and Kansas City both 9700.

Winter health conditions in the large cities are getting steadily worse, Murphy declared, because of the contaminated air—"the price for industrialism running wild in our cities." The average St. Louisan, he said, inhales more than a tablespoonful of soot and dirt every 24 hours. Ordinary bacteria, he explained, would fall of their own weight if not sustained on dust particles in the air. These germs may be spread very widely by floating in the atmosphere.

"Dust," Murphy continued, "ordinarily consists of soot and unconsumed carbons, sand, fibers, vegetable matter, bacteria, molds, etc., varying in size from the objectionable cinder, which is sometimes caught in the eye, to particles of almost inconceivable smallness. The Scotch investigator, Aitken, proved that some dust particles are so fine that they remain suspended in the air for considerable periods, sometimes, in fact, for two years and longer, passing several times around the earth and probably ascending to heights of 40 or 50 miles. In the war time influenza epidemic, whole colonies in isolated islands and unfrequented localities which had no communication whatever with the outside world, were wiped out.

"The number of dust particles and disease germs in the air has been investigated by numbers of careful investigators. Taking 10 liters of air as a basis, in the Boston city hospital, nearly 450 living bacteria and 225 mold spores were counted in a five-minute exposure of standard agar plates.

"In a model New York hospital, where every precaution for cleanliness was taken, 12 living germs settled on the plates and after agitating the air, over 226. In a typical New York apartment house, a five-minute exposure gave a count of 75 and after sweeping the count rose to 2700."

MASKED ROBBERS HOLD UP GROCERY, FLEEING WITH $65

Father and 2 Sons in Another Store Lose $35; Pedestrian Robbed of $40 and Check.

Three men, two masked and one with a revolver held up Joseph Tullman, in his grocery store at 3801 McDonald avenue at 8 p. m. yesterday, made him lie on the floor while they took $5 from his pockets and $60 from the register and escaped in an automobile.

Apparently the same three men at 6 p. m. held up Harry Schneider, grocer at 4369 North Market street and his two sons, taking $35 from the register and 75 cents from one of the sons. Max. During the time they were in the store one of the men, a lookout, called to the others, "Make it snappy Bob. Let's get out of here," several times.

John Mezaros, of 3996 Sarpy avenue, on his way home at 8:30 p. m. yesterday, was held up by three men near 3900 Gratiot street and robbed of $40 and a check.

TWO TAXICAB DRIVERS ROBBED

Armed Holdup Men Obtain $23.75 and Automobile.

Two men, who called a Yellow taxicab driven by James Boehm, 3227 Sutton avenue, to Hotel Coronado at 9 p. m. yesterday, ordered Boehm to drive to the 2600 block on Rutger street. There they invited Boehm into a house to get his fare. In a gangway beside the house they drew revolvers and held him up, taking $4.90 and his pay check for $15.85. One of the robbers donned his cap and the two drove away in the taxicab. An hour later police found the taxicab abandoned in front of 1014 South Eighth street and the cap in the middle of the street.

Stanley Szargynski, 1611 Blair avenue, driver of another Yellow cab, reported he had driven a Negro from Union Station to Twenty-second and Eucenia streets, at 8 p. m., where a second Negro with a revolver assisted the passenger in robbing him of $3.

Mrs. May Wise Calls Police, Then Pursues Man Who Robbed Her Flat.

Quick action by Mrs. May Wise of 4074 Magnolia avenue resulted yesterday in the arrest of John F. Meyers, 20 years old, of 6140 Page boulevard, a house-to-house soap salesman, who was locked up charged with the theft of $35 in money and jewelry valued at $150 from the Wise flat.

Mrs. Wise, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was visiting the flat above her own, when she heard her kitchen door slammed. Looking out of a window she saw a young man hurrying away. Going to her own flat she discovered the theft and after telephoning the Mounted District Police Station, she went in pursuit of the young man.

She saw him climb aboard a truck, driven by another man, and trailed it to Magnolia avenue and Kingshighway, where it stopped. Meanwhile Detectives Taylor and Schneider of the Mounted Police had come up and Mrs. Wise pointed out to them the youth she had seen leave her house. They found part of the loot hidden in the truck and part in Meyer's clothing.

WOOD ALCOHOL CAUSED DEATH OF ICE DEALER

O. T. Munday Collapsed After He and Companion Had Drank a Quart, Coroner Is Told.

A Coroner's verdict of death caused by wood alcohol poisoning was returned today in the case of Oliver T. Munday, 28-year-old ice dealer, of 2225 South Second street, who collapsed Sunday at Broadway and Miller street, and succumbed a few hours later at City Hospital.

Dr. R. B. H. Gradwohl, bacteriologist, reported to the Coroner that he found wood alcohol in an examination of Munday's stomach. In an effort to find where he had obtained the poison, the police raided two saloons visited by Munday. In one of them no liquor was found, and in the other the liquor taken was found free from wood alcohol.

Norman Rathburn, who rooms at the house where Munday lived, testified today that when he and Munday left home Monday had a quart of whisky. Both drank from the bottle during the afternoon, Rathburn testified. He said they visited several saloons but was unable to remember whether they had bought drinks or had continued to drink from Munday's bottle.

A few minutes before Munday collapsed he took the last drink from the bottle and threw it away, Rathburn said. Mrs. Munday testified that she had been away from home for a week and did not know where her husband had bought the whisky.

PAGES QUIT W. C. T. U. SESSION

Four Society Girls Resent Being Introduced as Teetotalers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Denying they had taken a pledge not to smoke or drink, although from personal choice they do neither, four Washington debutantes have declined to participate further in the activities here of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union Conference.

The four, a majority of the seven society girls who have served as pages at the sessions, are the Misses Sallie Phillips, Olive Sherley, Harriet Whitford and Helen Gatley. They objected, they said, to publicity picturing them as having taken the pledge and as having been introduced to a large assemblage as "girls who don't smoke or drink and still can be popular."

TRANS-ATLANTIC PHONE USES HIGH WAVE BAND

System Now Is Operating Freely Between 58 1-2 and 61 1-2 Kilocycles.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. (Copyright, 1927.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—International co-operation helped make possible the transatlantic telephone. No small part was taken by the United States Navy, which agreed to transfer the frequencies of seven of its high-powered radio stations to enable the new system to operate without interference on its 5000-meter wave length.

Sixty kilocycles, which is about 5000 meters, was selected for the transatlantic telephone wave frequency, following experiments in which radio stations in many countries took part.

Today the system is operating freely on a band between 58½ kilocycles (5125 meters) and 61½ kilocycles (4875 meters), thanks to the assent of the United States Navy, the British Government and the high-powered station at Nauen, Germany.

The British end of the telephonic system is operated by the British Postoffice, so co-operation was merely a routine matter between governmental agencies. But at this end the navy's co-operation with the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., a private concern operating the American side of the system, reflected an attitude of helpfulness toward commercial radio.

Radio telephony requires a broader band than telegraphy, and numerous experiments on the proper band for the transatlantic system had to be made.

The experimenters first tried the kilocycle band from 55 to 58½, but while no interference was reported in this country, there was interference with transmission in England, Ceylon, Chile, and even in Moscow. Then they tried 59 to 62, but the interference persisted. Finally they hit on the 58½ to 61½ kilocycle band.

Some interference was reported from abroad. So far as the Navy was concerned, the interference was over a band of six kilocycles in which were operating the naval stations at Port Au Prince, San Juan, Bar Harbor, San Francisco, San Diego, Brownsville, Tex., and North Head, near Astoria, Ore. Their frequencies were from 62 to 58. Charleston could operate on 64 and Norfolk and Puget sound reported no interference on 56.

Accordingly the Navy transferred or arranged to transfer the frequencies on its seven stations. The British, on their end, changed the operating band at Oxnard, England, and the Germans changed the Nauen frequency.

There is still some interference suffered by the Navy stations, but it is slight. If the transatlantic system is operated on a 24-hour schedule, it is said, the interference would be greater. Under present conditions, however, the Navy's attitude is to co-operate in so far as it can be done without loss of efficiency in the naval system.

INVESTMENTS IN CHINA BY AMERICANS

About 12,500 Citizens and 617 Companies in Oriental Republic.

Post-Dispatch Bureau. 20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Chinese uprising menaces 12,500 United States citizens, about one-half of whom are missionaries, and capital investments estimated at from $100,000,000 to $125,000,000.

In recent years the number of American firms doing business in China has increased rapidly, the total now being 617, as compared with about 700 British establishments, exclusive of those in Hongkong, which is British territory. Virtually all American houses are branches or agencies of companies operating in the United States. There are few Americans in China engaged in retailing or private commercial pursuits.

Investments held by private American citizens include $20,000,000 of bonds of the Chinese Government, $10,000,000 in long-term credits, about $9,300,000 in railroad and other concessions, and possibly $40,000,000 in miscellaneous business enterprises. In addition, Americans have invested about $20,000,000 in missions, hospitals and philanthropic institutions.

Japan has about 200,000 nationals in China, and Russia 100,000, most of whom are in Northern Manchuria. The British population of China is placed at 15,000, outside of Hongkong; French, 3500, and German, 2500.

Of the 12,500 Americans, perhaps 1250 are American-born Chinese. About 4000 Americans live in Shanghai, the largest American center, while 400 reside in Tientsin. It is estimated that the American population embraces about 4000 children.

Japan is supposed to have invested in China, chiefly in South Manchuria and the South Manchuria Railway, more than $750,000,000, while Russia claims an investment, largely in the railway across North Manchuria and in the city of Harbin, of more than $1,000,000,000. Exclusive of Hongkong, British citizens are believed to have investments aggregating between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000.

Detectives, who questioned Gilmer Elder, 20 years old, of 2741 Olive street, at Twenty-third and Olive streets last night, found an unloaded revolver in his overcoat pocket and 15 cartridges in the pocket of an inside coat. Both will be charged with dealing in unregistered weapons.

Says Gas Stopped Her Housework

Food Did Her No Good, Now Gains Weight

"I had gas so bad that what I ate did me no good. My back hurt so that I could hardly stand it, and I couldn't even do my housework. After taking Adlerika, I saw a wonderful improvement. Am fleshier than I have been for years."—Mrs. Pearl Tittle.

Unlike most medicines, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel, giving the intestines a REAL cleansing and bringing out old poisonous matter which you never thought was in your system. Even if bowels move daily, you will be surprised how much more old matter Adlerika brings out which may have been causing all your trouble. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, GAS bloating, indigestion or sick headache, ONE spoonful Adlerika always brings relief.

Doctors Praise Adlerika

Adlerika is a compound of the best saline intestinal cleanser with glycerine, buckthorn, cascara and other gas-expelling and detergent elements. It is excellent for Intestinal Stasis, a disease due to modern ways of living and which is often the true cause of sour stomach, gas bloating, nervous dyspepsia and restless sleep.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, says: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. A. C. Curl: "I prescribe Adlerika with highly satisfactory results."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 30 years practice I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than in years. Awful impurities were eliminated from my system."

Dr. F. M. P. (name withheld at request): "I use Adlerika in bowel cases. Some require only one dose."

No matter what you have tried, your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In St. Louis at Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores, Johnson Bros Drug Co.

The Greatest Story in the World

The Bible in Pictures

The greatest selling book the world has ever known is the Bible. The biggest seller last year was a religious book. The biggest success among all moving pictures was a religious film.

What promises to be the most popular newspaper feature ever produced will be the daily strip, "The Bible in Pictures," which will commence at the beginning of Genesis and continue through the scriptures.

This feature is not limited in interest to those having religious affiliations or even inclination.

It is for everybody. Sacred history has a fascination wholly apart from its spiritual significance.

So well has the artist interpreted in picture form the tremendous events narrated in the Old Testament that every reader, perhaps to his surprise, will find these strips, day after day, a source of interest growing as the story unfolds. Look for it yourself on the day it starts.

MUSSOLINI'S FIERY TONGUE AND GENIUS FOR THEATRICAL EFFECT HIS GREAT ASSETS

Keeps His Imperial Manner Even in Renting a House—But Even His Foes Admit He Has Created a New Italy.

THIS is the first of a series of intimate articles on Benito Mussolini, written by Pierre Van Paasen, European staff correspondent of the New York Evening World and the Post-Dispatch, who passed two weeks in Rome in daily touch with the Fascist Premier. Other articles will be published from time to time.

Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.

ROME, Jan. 15.—The magic name of Mussolini fills Italy from one end to the other. Long the password of the Fascist legions, it is now the dynamo that drives a nation of 40,000,000 with all the relentless energy of a machine.

It has created a new Italy, and there is no doubt that it could send whole armies marching to victory or doom tomorrow if it chose to do so.

"Mussolini" is the word that flashes to you from a thousand shop windows. It appears beneath every Government manifesto pasted at the street corners: "Mussolini, Capo del Governo e Duce del Fascismo" (chief of the Government and leader of Fascism). The Mussolini features glower or smile from every second window in Rome, Milan, Bologna or Naples. They are stamped on church pillars, on museum doors and on railway platforms. You see them in city squares and on village market places. They fill Italy from the one end to the other.

Two Sides of Mussolini.

I have come to know two Mussolinis during my stay here. The one is a charming, captivating man, courteousness personified, who talks of art, music, painting, poetry and literature. That is Benito Mussolini, the man, former high school professor and able violinist. The other is the Duce, the Caesar, with the heavy jaw and the flashing eyes, who thunders defiance, who speaks of "forests of bayonets," who works himself and his hearers into a towering rage.

It is the last Mussolini that the Italians like best. To them he represents Italy.

He is the personification of an Italy mortified by the fact that she considers herself not treated with justice, not on an equal scale with France and England in the concert of nations. An Italy that has been crucified and robbed of the fruits of her heroic efforts.

Duce Rents a House.

The Duce lives in Rome, but his wife and children live in Milan. His brother, Arnaldo, Popolo d'Italia editor, reproached him not long ago with neglecting his family. Arnaldo told Benito that his wife and children did not live in the style as befitted the relatives of the chief of the Italian Government. He advised him first of all to get them a better apartment.

"All right," said the Duce. "I'll go to Milan."

He went. Within ten minutes after that decision every rural Police Chief between Rome and Milan was advised by telegraph to keep the roads clear and Mussolini, driving his own low, crouching roadster, shot out of the big gates of the Palazzo Chigi, siren wide open and screaming, up the Corso Umberto, Rome's main street, out of the Porto del Popolo.

He arrived in Milan around five in the evening, having kept up a speed of 75 miles per hour all the way. After dinner he set out apartment hunting.

He heard of a place and at nine in the evening he rang the bell.

Scares Servant.

The servant girl who opened the door saw a man wrapped in a big, black cloak, the hat pulled down over two terrible eyes and, overcome with fright, she slammed the door in his face and ran back screaming into the hall.

A moment later the proprietor came to the door, revolver in hand: "With whom have I the honor of speaking?" asked the man.

"Mussolini!" answered a sepulchral voice.

The man fell on his knees begging forgiveness for the servant girl's rudeness. Mussolini inquired the price of the apartment, rented it, paid in advance for the next nine years, drank a cup of coffee with his landlord, went home to tell his wife about the new place, stepped into his roadster and was off again for Rome.

Everything the man does is theatrical, calculated to impress the multitude. The least of his actions, the humblest human occupation is carried out with an air of a Jupiter Tonans.

Eloquence His Chief Power.

His strength lies chiefly in his unparalleled eloquence. Words and phrases flow from his lips with an ease, a musical softness, the one moment, and with the force of a gushing mountain torrent the next, thundering and crashing down everything in its way.

"Blackshirts!" he shouts from the balcony of the Palazzo Chigi, "who will defend our outraged Italy?" and he gets a roaring "Noi!" (we) in return. He plays to the gallery at such moments. For he does not designate who has outraged his fatherland.

Mussolini understands the art of talking suavely for export, but rudely and imperialistically at home. He knows how to sweep his followers into a frenzy of patriotic fervor. He lashes them into a passion with his words.

A Republican from Birth.

Long before the historic march of the Fascist legions on Rome, Mussolini was one of the most stormy elements in the Kingdom of Italy. He was not only expelled from his own country as a violent revolutionary, but also from Switzerland—something to be taken into account when it is figured that Switzerland did not even expel Lenine.

That the young Benito should have been filled with republican ideas was not strange, for his father, the blacksmith of Predappio in Romagna, was an ardent follower of Karl Marx.

It was in the Romagna country that the fugitive Red Shirt Garibaldi, when hunted by Austria and the Pope alike, found a refuge. Everybody in Romagna knew where he was hidden, there was a price on his head, but Garibaldi was not molested. The older Mussolini, Allesandro, was a follower of Garibaldi and Mazzini, but he died while Benito was still a young man and the mother, Signora Rosa, was left alone with the task of bringing up the children.

Benito is a "bambino della domenica," a Sunday's child, which, according to Goethe's legend, is destined to meet with a happy fate and to achieve success in everything.

A Fighter From Boyhood.

"Never put up with bullying," his father told him. "Don't stand for it from anybody. Whoever puts up with bullying is a coward!" Young Benito always took this advice to heart. He tackled boys bigger than himself and fought with whole-hearted intensity, although he often came out the loser.

It was the same in the war. Benito Mussolini was a Corporal. But he gained the admiration of the whole regiment by his intrepid daring, his colossal nerve in tackling enemy patrols single-handed and his disregard of wounds.

Mussolini carries the scars of 42 wounds incurred on the battle line. In the early days of his Premiership an assassin shot at him and killed the chauffeur beside him. Mussolini whipped out his own revolver and fired. He killed the man with the first shot.

Mussolini says he is not in favor of force and that it should be used only under provocation. "Force should never become a practice. It should be used surgically." In writing to Fascist chiefs he said: "When there is danger of riots and disturbance use force, and don't fear. Do not hesitate to throw people into prison. Better 20 in prison than one killed out in the open. The twenty will be set free again two days later."

Answering "It Can't Be Done."

When he decided to move the Foreign Office from the Palazzo Crispi to Chigi old employes of the establishment told him that it would take months and months to transfer the archives alone. "Excellency, it cannot be done!" they said.

"Ask me for 2000 men and 500 motor lorries" he replied, "and I'll give them to you, but the archives must be transferred within five days and not a scrap of paper must be missing or one file in the wrong place or there will be trouble!"

The army of movers went to work in three shifts and the job was finished before the evening of the fifth day.

Putting Italy to Work.

Mussolini's most bitter enemies give him credit for changing the "moral tiredness," the lassitude, the dreamy life in Italy. Everybody in the country is working. There are no railways in Europe which run with such punctuality as in Italy.

Office hours have been lengthened, factories open an hour earlier than was formerly the case, and everywhere you see building going on. Fields that have lain waste for hundreds of years are under cultivation, ditches are dug, swamps are drained, farm houses, fallen into ruins, are being rehabilitated, the most modern agricultural machinery sings a new zooming song on the plains of Latium, railways are being electrified, production is increased everywhere, but especially on the land.

Wheat production alone has gone up from 52,000,000 bushels in 1924, to 49,000,000 bushels in 1925 and this year will see a harvest of 58,000,000 bushels. This is still 20,000,000 short of what Italy consumes, but "The Battle of Grain" is on and within ten years the Italian farmers hope to win the final victory.

ALEXANDER RETURNS UNSIGNED CONTRACT SENT HIM BY CARDINAL BREADON

SAME SALARY AS LAST YEAR OFFERED HIM

Veteran Pitcher Departs Tonight for Philadelphia to Attend Banquet of Sports Writers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Grover Cleveland Alexander, hero of the world series, the veteran pitcher who went to the hill in the seventh inning of the seventh game and struck out Tony Lazzeri with the bases filled and then turned back the Huggins horde in the eighth and ninth innings, protecting the Cardinals' one-run margin, has returned his contract for 1927 to owner Sam Breadon, unsigned.

"Old Pete" made this statement to an intimate friend today on the eve of his departure for Philadelphia, where he and Bill Killefer will attend a sport writers' banquet.

Alexander did not state the terms of the contract offered except to say that the document called for the same salary that he obtained last year, under a contract signed with the Cubs and assigned to the Cardinals when the veteran was transferred to the Cardinals for the waiver price.

It is understood that "Old Pete," riding on the crest of fame that came to him after his dramatic performance in the world series, feels that now is the time for him to make hay.

Third Right Hander to Balk.

"Old Pete" is the third Cardinal right hander to refuse the terms offered for 1927. The others are Jess Haines and Flint Rhem, who won 20 victories in 1926.

Alexander last season was the leading Cardinal pitcher in efficiency, permitting just a fraction more than three earned runs in each nine innings pitched. He finished the year with 12 victories and 10 defeats, but his greatest work came after he had joined the Cardinals after being obtained from the Cubs on waivers in June. He made his first appearance as a Cardinal against the Bruins, June 27, and beat his old teammates, permitting two runs and four hits in 10 innings.

As a member of the Cardinal ball staff, the veteran, who will be 40 years old next month, won [illegible] and lost 7 contests as a member of the world's champions. In [illegible] innings he permitted a total of [illegible] runs. He walked but [illegible] batters.

He Saved World's Series.

However, Alexander's greatest work came in the world's series against the Yankees. After Bill Sherdel had dropped the opener, "Old Pete" came through to [illegible] the series by beating the New Yorkers [illegible]. Then came the first contest on the second trip to New York. The Cards had their backs to the wall. The Yankees needed but one victory to capture the championship. "Old Pete" was at his best and again the Yankees were held to two [illegible].

And then came Alexander's greatest feat in the final battle. Though he had pitched nine innings the day before, he went to the rescue when Haines injured his finger. Three on and two out when he went to the hill in the seventh. Tony Lazzeri was up. Tony struck out, and in the next two rounds but one man, Babe Ruth, who walked with two out in the ninth, was the only one to reach first base. It was a great day for the man who had served 16 years in the big tent.

Fractured Hands Put Two Heavies Out of Training

Maloney, Injured, Hopes to Be in Condition for Delaney Battle.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—An epidemic of brittle bones is sweeping over fistiana.

One casualty has piled on top of another and has all but driven Tex Rickard to distraction. Three of his stars are out with broken bones.

Jim Maloney is out of training with a broken hand. Paulino, the Spanish demon, who can tie oak trees into lovers' knots, is out with a broken hand. Joe Lundee, down in Baltimore, in shadow boxing broke his [illegible].

Maloney's bout with Jack Delaney is in danger of being called off. Most certainly the Boston young boy's bout with Johnny Risko in Cleveland, scheduled for Monday, will be ditched for the present at least.

Dan Carroll informed Rickard over the long distance telephone that he hoped Jim's hand injured in training for Risko would be fully mended by Feb. 18. If it is not, Tex will have to put the bout back to February 25 or March 2.

Hansen Bout Is Off.

Dundee was booked to go against Ace Hudkins or Willie Harmon in Madison Square Garden, Feb. 22.

Tex tried to draw on Jack Sharkey to fill in for Paulino. The Clyde and promoters offered him the same purse against Risko. Sharkey, as ready to fall into soft picking as everyone else, said that only one bout interested him and that was the possibility of Maloney not being able to make the grade for Delaney.

George Lawrence will demand that the extent of Paulino's injuries be determined by the Boxing Commission. Lawrence and Woodman have been saying all along that Paulino would do everything possible to sidetrack their man, Hansen.

Knute met Paulino in Paris on one occasion and, according to Lawrence, Paulino doesn't want anything to do with Knute.

American League Wants Services Of Ty and Tris

Efforts Will Be Made to Keep Reinstated Managers From Going to Rival League.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—What uniforms Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker will don this season, now that they are cleared of charges of playing in a "fixed" game and can return to the diamond, continued today as a prime subject of baseball gossip.

Charges of Hubert "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, that the two had knowledge of a betting coup on a fixed game between Cleveland and Detroit in 1919 were made public by the commissioner some months after Cobb and Speaker had resigned managerial positions. Publication of the testimony in the case drew fire from President Ban Johnson of the American League and ultimately led to his being shelved as acting president of the junior circuit.

Now that Cobb and Speaker are restored to baseball it is considered likely that the American League will make every effort to keep the star players.

The Chicago Tribune prints a report that at the meeting of American League magnates here last Sunday it was the consensus that the two should be returned to the clubs with which they formerly were associated. At least four clubs in the American League were reported to want either Cobb or Speaker, and it was intimated they would not have waived on them except for word that was sent out by league directors at the time it was decided to ask for resignations of the two playing managers.

Ty May Go to New York.

The Tribune also prints a report from Detroit intimating that the new season might find Cobb in a New York "Giants" uniform, playing for one of his keenest enemies, John McGraw.

Just before Cobb left for his home in Georgia, a Detroit reporter made the remark, "Wouldn't it be funny if you and John McGraw were on the same team next summer?"

President [illegible] of the Browns, when advised that Judge Landis had exonerated Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker of scandal charges, told a Post-Dispatch representative that he would not attempt to sign either man.

"I might be able to use Cobb, but under the circumstances I will not bid for the services of either man, even if they should be unconditionally released. I think their respective clubs now have prior claims to them, and will proceed through the usual process of asking waivers on them."

Pitcher Gaston And Giard Sign 1927 Contracts

By J. Roy Stockton.

Business Manager Bill Friel of the Browns announced this morning that Pitchers Milton Gaston and Joe Giard had signed contracts for 1927. Gaston is considered a real ace of the Browns staff. Giard has been mentioned in several proposed trades.

"We already [illegible] information [illegible] and I might as well admit that we [illegible] signed. [illegible] However, we do not expect to announce the signing of others. They all will be signed, we hope, we go to training camp, [illegible] not going to have any holdouts this year."

Friel confirmed the report from New York that the proposed trade of Jones and Beall for Giard and Durst had been called off. He said the Browns had wired to the Yankees yesterday calling off the trade.

Manager Dan Howley is on the point of departing for Florida to rest his mind for a few weeks before starting spring training. Dan has been busy this winter trying to turn trades and thus far has put over only one, the deal sending McManus to Detroit, Hargrave and Lamotte to Toronto and bringing Bill Mullen, Otis Miller, Walter Stewart and Frank O'Rourke to the Browns. However, he has others in prospect and may put them over during the stay in the South. Howley expects to do some fishing in Florida while awaiting the arrival of his athletes. He will motor to Tarpon Springs.

33 Entries for Amateur Fistic Show Tonight

Carmen Durso and Clifford Doetzel in South Broadway A. C. Feature.

Return matches between Carmen Durso and Clifford Doetzel, flyweight rivals, Pete White and Joe Staunton, featherweights, and a heavyweight event in which John Schwake is slated to oppose Joe Young, are carded as the special attractions of an amateur boxing tournament to be held tonight at the South Broadway A. C. The preliminary program has attracted 27 entries.

Durso and Doetzel, principals in the flyweight feature, fought an interesting bout two weeks ago. The judges' decision favored Durso on that occasion, but the match was so closely contested as to stimulate popular demand for a return battle. This was Doetzel's first setback in the ring. He began his fistic activities only three months ago and recorded five successive victories prior to the encounter with Durso.

Tonight's featherweight special will be a "rubber" engagement, as White and Staunton have emerged from two previous battles with honors even, the first being won by White, while Staunton landed the decision in their second setto.

The heavyweight contest marks Young's return to the ring after an absence of more than a year. He was rated a district title candidate two years ago, when he scored a knockout over Tom Pivac, who later battled his way to the Western A. A. U. title. Pivac subsequently stopped Young in two special bouts.

Schwake will try for his third straight knockout when he swings into action with Young. He stopped George Gallagher of Kirkwood in his last start and Jack Walton of Granite City in his first start this season. Schwake started boxing a year ago and won four out of five bouts last season.

Walter Heisner will referee.

Big Ten Officials Draw Up Schedule For Four Years

"Dearest Games" Are Retained Under Partial Rotation — Faculty Must Approve.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—A four-year schedule that preserves "dearest enemy" games, and at the same time provides variety by a partial rotation of opponents, has been prescribed for Big Ten football teams, at the suggestion of their athletic directors.

In isolated cases, traditional rivalries are to be temporarily broken under the four-year plan. There will be, for example, no "Little Brown Jug" argument between Michigan and Minnesota in 1928. Minnesota, however, will continue its annual argument with Iowa and Wisconsin through the four-year span, with Indiana also on the schedule for [illegible] each year.

The "Big Gate" games have been retained for the entire period by the Wolverines, notably the Ohio and Illinois battles. [illegible] stadia are never large enough to handle the crowds for these games.

Wisconsin, which has been a regular entry on the Michigan menu for several years, will remain through 1927 and 1928, but will be missing in the next two years.

Indiana to Play Purdue.

The Indiana-Purdue classic keeps its traditional place in long-distance scheduling. Chicago and Wisconsin also meet [illegible] each season.

In addition to Michigan, Illinois will have yearly games with Ohio, Northwestern and Chicago, with Iowa and Indiana finding places on the schedule part of the time.

Iowa has the busiest Big Ten schedule of all, with 22 games arranged. This is six over the required four-a-year. The Hawkeye schedule calls for five games in 1927 and 1928, and six games in the two following years.

Minnesota, which has experienced difficulty in the past in getting conference games, because of objection by some coaches to the famous Minnesota shift, [illegible] with Chicago and Ohio in having the next largest number of games —21.

Three other schools—Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin—each will play 20 games. Northwestern, Purdue and Indiana have 19 games each on their four-year programs.

Must Be Approved.

Announcement of the new 1927-30 schedule arrangement came at a time when there appeared agitation favoring a rotating schedule which would determine definitely each year a conference champion. Minnesota was one of the strongest endorsers of the rotating plan, but is understood now to be ready to accept the four-year plan.

Abolition, at least until after 1930, of the year-to-year scheduling which has frequently proved troublesome, was endorsed in November at a meeting in Washington of presidents of the Big Ten schools. Eight of the university presidents approved the four-year schedule plan and requested their athletic directors to draw up such a schedule.

The new schedule, which must be approved by faculty representatives of the schools, was arranged at secret meetings of the directors with Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics, last week.

CLAIM PUT IN FOR $22,000 IN BACK DIVIDENDS

Suit for That Amount Threatened by Hornsby's Attorney Unless It Is Paid by End of February.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Rogers Hornsby's 1167 shares of Cardinal stock have been offered to Sam Breadon, president of the club, for $105 a share and Breadon has declined at that price, and also turned down an offer made through Hornsby's attorney, William F. Fahey, to buy out Breadon's stock in the Cardinals at the same price. Fahey told the Post-Dispatch this afternoon. Breadon's holdings total 5904 shares, which, at the price offered, would represent an investment of $619,920.

Fahey also announced in an open letter to Breadon, a copy of which was given to the Post-Dispatch, that a demand had been made on Breadon for payment of back dividends on the 1167 shares of stock and interest thereon. He informed Breadon that if the back dividends and interest were not paid during February, he would institute suit on behalf of Hornsby and other clients to compel payment.

Letter to Breadon.

Fahey's letter to Breadon follows:

Mr. S. Breadon,
President, St. Louis National Baseball Club,
St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Sir:

This is to confirm our conversation of today in which, acting for my client, Rogers Hornsby, I offered to sell you 1167 shares of common stock in the St. Louis National Baseball Club at $105 per share, on a total of $122,535. This price is based on the several audits furnished me, and was arrived at after careful consideration of these audits and the history of the club as shown by the records which you and the company made available to me for inspection, and after making due allowances for contingencies that necessarily arise from time to time because of the nature of the business. You refused to purchase Hornsby's stock at the above figure which was your privilege.

I wish also to make a matter of record my proposal to you, to-wit: That I offered to buy the 5904 shares of common stock which you own at the price of $105 per share, or a total of $619,920, based on the condition of the company as shown by its balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1926, $[illegible] to be paid in cash, the balance within 10 days on delivery of the stock, together with satisfactory assurances that there have been no changes from the condition of the company on Dec. 31, 1926, except those occasioned by the normal conduct of the business. In the event of such purchase from you, I also offered to purchase at the same price the holdings of such minority stockholders as might desire to sell. This proposal was also rejected by you.

I also wish to call to your attention the following provision in the charter of the St. Louis National Baseball Club:

"The dividends on common stock shall be limited to 6 per cent (6%) per annum, and if the same or any part thereof shall not be paid in any year or years, such unpaid dividends, with legal interest, shall be paid in subsequent years when the income shall justify such payments."

Threat of Suit.

Under the foregoing provision of the charter, my client is entitled to the payment of all back dividends and interest thereon, and I hereby make demand for payment of same to Feb. 1, 1927, the date of your annual meeting. I do not know, of course, what action the company intends to take with reference to these unpaid dividends, but wish to make it clear that if they are not declared and paid during the month of February, 1927, that I intend to institute suit on behalf of Rogers Hornsby and other clients to compel payment. As I calculate the amount that will be due Mr. Hornsby on Feb. 1, 1927, is $22,053.28, and this is the amount for which payment is demanded.

Under the above charter provision, the only reason the company can offer as to why these back dividends and interest should not be paid is that the income does not justify such payments, but my opinion is that such a position on the part of the officers and directors of the company is entirely untenable. In 1917 the franchise and players were carried on your books at $350,000.00, and in 1919, when the club was in financial straits, this item was carried at $[illegible]. It has now been entirely written off out of profits, and there can be no doubt but that the franchise and players would readily sell today for more than the latter amount.

Regretting that you did not accept one of the proposals, I am,

Very respectfully yours,

(Signed) Wm. F. FAHEY.

CLAIM PUT IN FOR $22,000 IN BACK DIVIDENDS

Suit for That Amount Threatened by Hornsby's Attorney Unless It Is Paid by End of February

By J. Roy Stockton.

Rogers Hornsby's 1167 shares of Cardinal stock have been offered to Sam Breadon, president of the club, for $105 a share and Breadon has declined at that price and also turned down an offer made through Hornsby's attorney, William F. Fahey, to buy out Breadon's stock in the Cardinals at the same price, Fahey told the Post-Dispatch this afternoon. Breadon's holdings total 5904 shares, which, at the price offered, would represent an investment of $619,920.

Fahey also announced, in an open letter to Breadon, a copy of which was given to the Post-Dispatch, that a demand had been made on Breadon for payment of back dividends on the 1167 shares of stock and interest thereon. Fahey informed Breadon that if the back dividends and interest were not paid during February, he would institute suit on behalf of Hornsby andother clients to compel payment.

Letter to Breadon.

Fahey's letter to Breadon follows:

Mr. S. Breadon,
President St. Louis National Baseball Club,
St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Sir:

This is to confirm our conversation of today in which, acting for my client, Rogers Hornsby, I offered to sell you 1167 shares of common stock in the St. Louis National Baseball Club at $105 per share, or a total of $122,535. This price is based on the several audits furnished me, and was arrived at after careful consideration of these audits and the history of the club as shown by the records which you and the company made available to me for inspection, and after making due allowances for contingencies that necessarily arise from time to time because of the nature of the business. You refused to purchase Hornsby's stock at the above figure which was your privilege.

I wish also to make a matter of record my proposal to you, to-wit: That I offered to buy the 5904 shares of common stock which you own at the price of $105 per share, or a total of $619,920, based on the condition of the company as shown by its balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1926, $100,000 to be paid in cash, the balance within 10 days on delivery of the stock, together with satisfactory assurances that there have been no changes from the condition of the company on Dec. 31, 1926, except those occasioned by the normal conduct of the business. In the event of such purchase from you, I also offered to purchase at the same price the holdings of such minority stockholders as might desire to sell. This proposal was likewise rejected by you.

I also wish to call to your attention the following provision in the charter of the St. Louis National Baseball Club:

"The dividends on common stock shall be limited to 6 per cent (6%) per annum, and if the same or any part thereof shall not be paid in any year or years, such unpaid dividends, with legal interest, shall be paid in subsequent years when the income shall justify such payments."

Threat of Suit.

Under the foregoing provision of the charter, my client is entitled to the payment of all back dividends and interest thereon, and I hereby make demand for payment of same to Feb. 1, 1927, the date of your annual meeting. I do not know, of course, what action the company intends to take with reference to these unpaid dividends, but wish to make it clear that if they are not declared and paid during the month of February, 1927, that I intend to institute suit on behalf of Rogers Hornsby and other clients to compel payment. As I calculate the amount that will be due Mr. Hornsby on Feb. 1, 1927, is $22,053.38, and this is the amount for which payment is demanded.

Under the above charter provision, the only reason the company can offer as to why these back dividends and interest should not be paid is that the income does not justify such payments, but my opinion is that such a position on the part of the officers and directors of the company is entirely untenable. In 1917 the franchise and players were carried on your books at $350,000.00, and in 1919, when the club was in financial straits, this item was carried at $525,000.00. It has now been entirely written off out of profits and there can be no doubt but that the franchise and players would readily sell today for more than the latter amount.

Regretting that you did not accept one of the proposals, I am,

Very respectfully yours,
(Signed) Wm. F. FAHEY.

That Boxing Bill.

ANOTHER bill legalizing boxing under American Legion and club conditions was introduced in the Missouri Legislature today.

There are two outstanding objectionable features to it, seemingly.

1. Limiting the right of promotion to Legion organizations and a certain class of clubs.

2. Providing for a non-salaried commission of three, with a paid secretary.

The first would seem to be class legislation, since it permits one group of men to promote shows and denies the right to all others. It is a virtual monopoly for Legion and fraternal organizations which is justified by nothing that a fair mind can think of.

The second makes the commission virtually a one-man affair, with all the evils that go with such a condition. Unpaid officials WILL NOT give the full attention demanded by such appointments. They either shirk the job or take their toll in secret.

A straight forward law permitting boxing, with a salaried commission, endowed with the right to control the game, is the only one that is likely to be permanent and effective.

Not So Rough.

JOHN PESEK, wrestler, lost 13 pounds in his four-hour match with Jim Londos, it is reported.

That was not unusual nor unexpected. Martin Sheridan, a New York policeman and former all-round athletic champion of the United States, lost 16 pounds while winning his athletic title in a meet at Travers Island, some years ago.

While wrestling is a strenuous game, its exactions are not commensurate with the fictitious strenuosity and seeming suffering exhibited in some events here.

Equal to 720 Tons Energy.

UNDOUBTEDLY a tremendous amount of energy is expended in wrestling bouts. Four hours on the mat seems almost beyond human endurance, at least to the uninitiated. The contestants must be under an average strain of from 75 to 100 pounds throughout the match. Many times they hoist each other bodily and literally throw one another around.

A sustained strain of 100 pounds for four hours would mean an exertion of 1,440,000 pounds or 720 tons. That would be a lot of tons of coal for two men to move in four hours.

Nevertheless, despite the waste of energy of a wrestling match and despite the seeming rough and tumble character of the game, injuries are few while the health and longevity of the wrestling fraternity are better than is found in almost any other form of athletic endeavor.

The inevitable conclusion is that the oldest sport in the world is still its safest and most healthful, not to mention the best for promoting all around physical development.

About "Wagner Stadium."

THE following letter explains itself:

My dear Mr. Wray:

Recently I noticed in Wray's Column in the Post-Dispatch your suggestion that the Board of Education name the new stadium which it is building "Wagner Stadium" in recognition and in honor of our prominent citizen, Stephen M. Wagner.

As a principal of Public Schools in St. Louis, let me say that you are eminently right. Mr. Wagner is now President of the Board of Education and for about twelve years has served most faithfully as a member of that body. His devotion to the interests of the Public Schools of St. Louis has been most earnest, untiring, and consistent; and throughout all these years he has shown himself to be very efficient and highly capable. The fine things accomplished in our system during these recent years are largely due to his efforts and his co-operation with his colleagues.

Because of this service it seems to me that the desirable and fitting thing to do is to so name this stadium that we may have a reminder in future days of Mr. Wagner's work for our schools. I am very sure that if opportunity were given, the corps of about 3000 teachers would be unanimous in asking that it be called "Wagner Stadium." For one I am a strong advocate of offering flowers before a man is dead. And I believe that if more commendation and recognition were given our Board of Education members they would reciprocate with still more enthusiastic effort for our common schools.

Yes, let's have it named "Wagner." Respectfully,

A. B. MORGAN,
Principal of the Sherman School and of the Roosevelt Evening High School.

Time to Change.

IF the epidemic of long drawnout wrestling matches is to continue promoters probably will have to change their programs or suffer a loss of patronage. The only alternative would be one-fall matches which always are unsatisfactory.

Tuesday night there were three events on the program. One was a 30-minute affair, the other called a "finish" one-fall match. Both turned out to be exhibitions, if appearances and the antics of the principals are interpreted correctly.

When the management has reason to anticipate a long struggle in the main event, why not run off the feature match first? If the event proves a long one, the preliminaries can be dispensed with entirely. Should the main event end quickly, then the secondary features would be available to eke out the card.

Few at Tuesday's show cared a cat's whisker whether he saw either of the preliminaries. But they cared a lot about getting to bed earlier than 4 a. m., which was the time the writer hit the timothy.

A Harvard Man's View.

Long years ago, in the days of Phil King and other Tiger heroes, opposing players were inclined to yell "Ouch" when Princeton men tackled them. It has been a creed at Princeton since football time began, that the game, if played at all, must be played hard, and constantly hard with no easing up.

As a result Tiger teams have been deadly tacklers and demons at keeping on top of the ball. Unrelenting vigilance and hard play had to make up for scarcity of material in the olden days.

The correctness of this view is voiced, strange to say, from a Crimson source—none other than the once redoubtable Eddie Mahon, one of the greatest of old-line "triple threat" men, a great captain in his day.

"Less crying and more hard play is what Harvard needs," says the doughty Eddie. "I saw some of the play now being discussed and it was nothing more than hard football such as should be played by all teams."

How about it, Harvard?

St. Louis U. High Defeats Western And Takes Lead

Billiken Team, Behind at Half, Wins in Second Period Spurt, 20 to 13.

St. Louis University High temporarily settled the issue in the Preparatory League last night by defeating Western Military Academy on the Billiken court and breaking the tie for first place. The score was 20 to 13. It was the third straight victory for the Billikens and the first defeat in four starts for the cadets.

Western led, 8 to 6, at the end of the first half after keeping the ball in Billiken territory most of the time. In the second period, however, Coach Stanton's youngsters found their stride and carried the attack to the visitors, scoring 14 points to Western's six.

Meanwhile the Billiken defense had tightened and Janovsky and Higgins of Western, leading point scorers of the conference, were held to five points apiece. Daly of St. Louis U. High, with six points, was high man.

White Banners Drawn Against Chicago Eleven

By Herman Wecke.

When the first round games in the United States Football Association challenge cup competition are played, two of the St. Louis elevens will be paired against each other, while the other two have been drawn against outside elevens. The draw was made at New York last night, with the first games in the West scheduled for not later than Feb. 27 and those in the East on or before March 27.

The draw for the elevens in the St. Louis Soccer League pits the Ben Millers, Western champions last year, against the Raticans; the Wellstons against the Johnston City, Ill., team, and the White Banners against the Bricklayers. The White Banner-Brickie contest is arranged for Chicago, while the other two will be decided on the local field.

Brickies Are Favorites.

In the draw, the White Banners face the stiffest opposition, inasmuch as the Bricklayers are generally rated as the strongest eleven in the West. While the Western Cup Association League was in existence, the Chicagoans gained several top-heavy victories over the local entries. That was early in the season and officials here said that the defeats were due, rather to a lack of condition, than the possibility that Chicago soccer had finally passed St. Louis' brand.

The Wellston eleven, present leader in the St. Louis League, will meet a good team in Johnston City, according to reports. The Illinois eleven in its preliminary games showed a fine offense as well as a tight defense. The team is made up of foreign-born players, who employ the short passing style effectively. As passing is the keynote of the Wellston success a well-played game can be expected when the elevens meet.

The Spartas, another Chicago team, victor over St. Louis aggregations earlier in the year, is down to oppose the Thistles of the Windy City in the first engagement. Several of the St. Louis managers rate the Spartas higher than the Brickies and figure the real competition for Western supremacy will come from this outfit. Another good Western eleven, according to reports, is the Holley F. C. of Detroit. This team has a real star in Center Forward Visser, a former Holland player. In preliminary tilts in the Michigan District, Visser scored more than half of his team's goals.

The Complete Schedule.

Western Division.

Ben Miller F. C., St. Louis, vs. Ratican F. C., St. Louis.

Wellston F. C., St. Louis, vs. Johnston City F. C., Johnston City, Ill.

Kaplan Is After Championship Go With Sam Mandell

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.

GENE TUNNEY, heavyweight champion, was on his way West today to resume vaudeville engagements in Spokane. With him is his manager, Billy Gibson, who hopes to induce Promoter Jim Mullen to hold a lightweight championship match in Chicago between Sammy Mandell, the titleholder, and Louis (Kid) Kaplan, retired king of the featherweights.

Eddie Burke to Fight Graswick

Pair Will Meet in Main Bout of Motorbus A. C. Next Tuesday Night.

Eddie Burke of Sherman Park Community Center, and Jacob Graswick, representing the Knights of Columbus, East St. Louis, will meet in a lightweight special of the amateur boxing tourney to be held under the auspices of the People's Motorbus A. C. at the St. Louis University gymnasium next Tuesday night, according to an announcement by Matchmaker Wilsman.

Burke won the Western A. A. U. featherweight title last year, but increasing poundage caused him to quit that division, and he made his debut as a lightweight candidate about two weeks ago when he outpointed John Buckley, a South Broadway star.

Graswick knocked out Joe Staunton and earned a point decision over Reggie Wood in his introductory local bouts. His defeat of Staunton terminated a string of six successive victories Staunton had compiled since the start of the indoor campaign.

Another special event on the Motorbus fight program will feature Dave Knost, Western district heavyweight champion, and Roy Minges of the Los Angeles A. C. Minges is now a resident of St. Louis and he plans to join a local team as soon as arrangements are completed for the transfer of his registration.

Dempsey Is Now 15 Pounds Over Fighting Weight

Will Try to Get Into Condition Before Deciding on Comeback Attempt.

By the Associated Press.

FRESNO, Cal., Jan. 27.—Jack Dempsey announced here yesterday that he intends to start serious training within the next week to determine for himself whether he has the "stuff" for an attempted comeback.

"I'm going to train just as if I were putting myself in readiness for a battle," said the former heavyweight boxing champion. "Then I'll make up my mind whether I still have the stuff or whether the time has come for me to hang up the gloves.

"If I am satisfied with my condition, I want to take on any of them, Tunney preferred, and of course, I'll favor Tex Rickard's handling.

"I feel fine right now, although I am about 15 pounds over my fighting weight. I have been taking some exercise, but not real training.

"Fighting is my profession, if you can call it that. Even if I hang up the gloves, I'll yet be in the fight game. I suppose, for it is all that I know and I will try to turn promoter."

THREE CITIES SEEK NATIONAL INDOOR CHAMPIONSHIP MEET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Bids from New York, Buffalo and Chicago for the National Indoor A. A. U. track and field championships have been renewed, the Amateur Athletic Union announced yesterday, as a result of the withdrawal of the Michigan Association, to which the event had been awarded.

Michigan officials explained that the Detroit arena at which it was planned to hold the meet in March will not be completed in time.

Inasmuch as Chicago held the championships last winter, the 1927 meet is expected to go either to Buffalo or New York. The award is in the hands of the Championship Committee, headed by Edward Schaefer of Buffalo.

Bill to Legalize Boxing In State Introduced

Measure Would Create State Commission of Three Members to Supervise Sport and License Clubs, Boxers and Officials.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 27.—A State Boxing Commission bill to legalize 10-round, no decision boxing bouts in Missouri and providing for State supervision and licensing of clubs, boxers and officials was introduced in the House today. The bill is being sponsored by the American Legion, it was said.

The bill would create a State commission of three members, one the director of athletics of the University of Missouri and the other two to be appointed by the Governor. The commission members would receive no salaries, but a salaried secretary would be provided.

This commission would be given full power to prescribe rules and regulations for boxing bouts, and control of the licensing of all persons connected with such bouts. As proposed, athletic clubs, fraternal orders and other organizations could be licensed to conduct bouts, if they were in existence for one year prior to passage of the act.

Similar Measure Defeated.

The bill also gives the proposed commission control of the admission prices to boxing bouts and would set aside five per cent of the gross receipts at such bouts for a fund to maintain the commission.

Representatives who signed the bill were Manville H. Davis, Max Asostky, W. J. Leahy and W. H. Lafferty of Kansas City; John A. Davis of St. Louis; Herbert H. Hoff of Perry County, L. D. Day of Worth County, Fred Spearman of Miller County, A. F. Fechtling of Putnam County, H. F. L. Hunt of Benton County, and H. T. Simpson of Pemiscot County.

The measure is similar to one introduced in the House two years ago which failed of passage.

Gov. Baker declined to say whether he would approve a boxing bill providing State commission regulation, if such a measure were passed by the Fifty-fourth General Assembly. Two years ago, just prior to introduction of such a measure, he said he would not oppose a bill for a State commission, if it provided for proper regulation of the sport. At that time he said he saw no harm in professional boxing or any other professional sport, if properly supervised and kept clean.

Present Boxing Law.

Section 3464 of the State law provides that any person who accepts a challenge for, or participates in a prize fight, or enters into training for one, and any persons acting as backers, seconds, referee or in any other capacity at a prize fight, shall be guilty of a felony and subject to a sentence of two to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Laws on cities with special charters, and first, second and third class cities give them authority to license and regulate sparring and boxing exhibitions, if not inconsistent with the State law.

Everything to an opera singer centers down to protection of the voice; that stands to reason. So when it comes to smoking, I am very careful. Hence, I always ask for a Lucky, not merely because of its ever so rich flavor, but because of its extreme gentleness to my throat. This cigarette, I call my friend for, as a good friend should, it gives me rein to indulge my whims—even as to smoking without imposing a price.

The Noted Voice of Rothier is Safeguarded by Smoking Lucky Strike —Because "It's Toasted"

THIS favorite of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York City, Leon Rothier, like other men whose voices are their fortunes, seeks two merits in a cigarette—greater enjoyment and throat protection.

Lucky Strikes have become the favorites of men whose priceless voices thrill audiences, as they have with the millions, because, first, they afford greater enjoyment, and, second, they are certain not to irritate even the most sensitive throat.

But in addition, a costly extra process—toasting for 45 minutes—develops the hidden flavors of the choicest tobaccos and at the same time removes all "bite" and harshness.

SEEKS WAY TO GAUGE HIGH VOLCANIC HEAT

(Copyright, 1927.)

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Jan. 12.—One of nature's secrets that has long baffled geologists may be revealed if borings now being made in the solid rock floor of Kilauea crater are successful.

In various parts of the world scientists have endeavored to measure the heat of volcanic fires, but most of their efforts have been fruitless and no claims are made to entire accuracy. Now under the direction of Dr. T. A. Jaggar, director of the Hawaii volcano observatory and Volcano Research Association, large-scale attempts are under way to gauge this terrific heat.

There has been begun a system of borings into the solid rock which forms the crater floor. The borings are approximately 10 feet deep and 300 meters, or 1000 feet, apart.

These borings were well under way when the great mountain on which the crater of Kilauea is located burst into furious lava flow high above the Kilauea level. This mountain, Mauna Loa, sent its volcanic fires in a huge river moving like a glacier down the mountain until it reached the sea at Hoopuloa. The lava flow, although it occurred many miles from Kilauea itself, interrupted the work of the scientists, for all of them rushed to the scene of the latest outbreak. Now they are back again, boring and noting the increasing heat as the drills go down.

Honeycombed With Holes.

The work of the volcano research director has been assisted by the United States Geologic Survey. J. C. Beam, the topographic engineer with that survey, made a survey of the crater floor and marked 1600 acres as a surface to be drilled. When the drilling is completed the crater floor will be honeycombed with 10-foot holes, the lines connecting them making perfect geometric figures.

As the drilling of each hole is completed and the temperature at the bottom is noted its upper part will be incased and capped with a metal ring. Thus they will be preserved for repeated measurements of the temperature in the future.

What is the object in thus boring into the rock? First, to learn what is the increase in temperature as one goes down. Second, to learn how the underground temperature changes across country for the same depth. And, third, how extensive is the heat produced by the slow oxidation in lava. Regarding the last point, there are indications of the maintaining of a high temperature at Mauna Iki in the 1920 flow where there are today cracks in the flow hot enough to ignite sticks of wood.

Entirely New Method.

It might be thought possible to take the temperature of the rocks at surface cracks which abound around Kilauea, but this would not give the desired data. Surface cracks are full of air and their temperatures would vary with the width of the cracks and their direction to the wind.

Dr. Jaggar is the pioneer in this research work. No one has ever before tried borings of this kind and for this purpose in volcanic countries.

"We do not know yet what we shall learn from the data derived from this source," says Dr. Jaggar. "It is possible some of the holes might show a seasonal or tidal heating and cooling. Or possibly the approach to a coming eruption might exhibit in the holes a rising of temperature. We don't know. But the experimental drilling we did here in Kilauea in 1922 showed results that justify us in undertaking this new project. Securing temperature data is one of the most important duties of a permanent station like the volcano observatory."

About seven months were spent in the drilling in 1922, but results were unsatisfactory. Enough was learned, however, to give the scientists belief that a rich field for the study of volcanoes lies in measurement of heat in their immediate vicinity.

May Predict Eruptions.

Behind all this long and arduous process of collecting heat figures the belief that some day men will be enabled to predict accurately the approach of a volcanic outbreak and thus prevent loss of life and possibly destruction of property. Dr. Jaggar, who for many years was an instructor at Harvard, is literally devoting his life to the study of Hawaii's volcano. He has established his home virtually on the edge of the crater and night and day is in touch with its varying moods through the seismographic instruments.

The Hawaiian Volcano Research Association was formed in Honolulu to facilitate the study of the volcano. Public-spirited citizens each year give the funds which support its work. The United States Weather Bureau and the United States Geologic Survey and other organizations co-operate to the extent of their limited financial resources.

Out of the vast and varied collection of volcanological facts which the Hawaiian observatory is making Dr. Jaggar and his associates hope to formulate certain principles through which they can recognize the approach of volcanic outbursts and give the warning to people who live in the vicinity.

CO-OPERATIVE SELLING COURSE FEB. 8 TO 10

Three-Day Educational Program at Columbia Announced —List of Speakers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 27.—A program which will deal with the agricultural problems of Missouri will be held here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 8, 9 and 10. The contributing sponsors to the program will be the United States Department of Agriculture, the Missouri College of Agriculture, the Missouri Farmers' Association and the Missouri Farm Bureau.

The program will be in the nature of a three-day short course for directors, officers and managers of co-operative marketing associations, designed as an educational vehicle which will accentuate every phase of co-operative marketing as it affects the farmer.

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—Arguments were begun before the Massachusetts Supreme Court today on the exceptions by the defense to the refusal of Judge Webster Thayer of the Superior Court to grant a new trial to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted murderers. POET LAYS DEATH OF SON TO EXPERIMENT IN HANGING

Louis Untermeyer Denies That Money, Scholastic Standing or Women Were Factors.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Richard Starr Untermeyer, Yale student, died a victim of an experiment in hanging, in the opinion of his father, Louis Untermeyer, noted poet. Untermeyer, who returned home with his son's body last night, said the only theory he could offer was that his son, led by the curiosity of a lively mind, had experimented with the noose to test the sensations of strangulation and had been unable to rescue himself.

"Dick was not morbid," said the father. "He was a healthy, normal boy of 20. He was in good standing in his studies. He had no affairs with women."

The father would not believe that money or scholastic difficulties had caused his boy's action. He could see no connection between the death of his son and the cases of four other college youths who killed themselves in various parts of the country recently to investigate the possibility of life after death.

"As for money matters being at the bottom of it, that is absurd. He never got into debt for large amounts," said Untermeyer.

BOARD SEEKS ADVICE ON DRAWING JURY LIST

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Jan. 27.—A special meeting of the Jackson County Board of Supervisors was held here yesterday to receive instructions from State's Attorney Searing and other lawyers on the legal way to draw a jury. This action followed a protest in Circuit Court several days ago that the present jurors who had served for several days had been drawn illegally.

The protest was raised by Lawrence Glenn, attorney for a defendant who had been convicted by the jury. The case subsequently was ordered retried and a new jury drawn.

Searing said the procedure for juries had been attacked in 11 counties in Illinois within the last three years and several convictions lost because the juries had been drawn illegally.

3 MEN ON TUG HELD IN ICE FOR FIVE DAYS ARE RESCUED

Ocean-Going Freighter Crushes Path Through Floe in Lower Lake Michigan.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Three fishermen, for five days captives aboard their tugboat in the middle of a big ice floe in lower Lake Michigan, were rescued early today when the ocean-going freighter Sandmaster crushed a path through to their side. Food dropped by airplane had staved off hunger, but in trying to keep warm the three men were wrecking their boat for fuel when help arrived.

For 12 hours the Sandmaster charged the ice field in the dark, and at midnight flashed radio word that she was alongside the tug.

A line was quickly run to the tug. The three men were transferred to the freighter and she started back for Chicago with the tug in tow.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—Charles Spencer Chaplin's assets were more completely tied up and Mrs. Chaplin's efforts to obtain alimony awarded in her divorce suit made more difficult today when Government representatives filed additional liens of $530,000 for alleged delinquent income taxes against the United Artists Distributing Corporation.

17 PCT. OF GERMAN BUDGET TO GO TO WAR PENSIONERS

Amounts to $350,000,000 for 1927; Von Tirpitz and Ludendorff on List.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—The generous pension policy of the German Reich, which has caused controversies in the Reichstag, and has been assailed by foreign countries on the ground that such a drain on the Treasury impairs Germany's ability to pay reparations, again is stirring the parties of the Left.

The budget for 1927 discloses that 17.5 per cent of all governmental expenditures, excluding reparations, is to be paid out for pensions of one kind or another, a total of $350,000,000 out of a budget of about $2,000,000,000.

More than 57,000 former civilian officials, 36,900 army and navy officers, who served under the former Emperor and the republic, are drawing as much as $8000 a year each. War casualties, supported in whole or part, number 765,000, to which are added 370,351 war widows, 917,830 orphans, 256,162 parents of the war dead, 21,000 widows of Government officials and 8700 orphans.

Included in the budget list of about 20 former imperial state secretaries are Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz, who receives 24,950 marks (about $6240) a year, and Gottlieb von Jagow, 22,152 marks. Among the 1600 Generals drawing 17,000 marks annually are Ludendorff, Von Mackensen, Von Kluck and Rupprecht, former Crown Prince of Bavaria.

GIRL, 14, IS CRACK SHOT

Willa Mefford Fells 30-Pound Coon in Arkansas.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JASPER, Ark., Jan. 27.—Newton County has a second Annie Oakley in the person of Willa Mefford, 14 years old, who lives with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Emberton, near Jasper. One of her sports is that she allows herself at squirrels, rabbits, wild turkeys and coon, and she seldom violates Daniel Boone's rule of bringing in the eye of the varmint.

This week her rifle brought down a 30-pound coon, when the dogs had treed close to the family home. A St. Joe dealer paid $10 for the hide.

OLD-TIME SPELLING MATCHES PRAISED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MACON, Mo., Jan. 27.—State School Superintendent Charles A. Lee is doing a most important thing toward inspiring the youth of the State to greater interest in school work by holding these annual Statewide spelling matches; they are just the thing to wake up the youngsters and clothe them with the fighting spirit that brings success," according to O. L. Cross, county school superintendent and president of the County School Superintendents Association of Missouri, in discussing the approaching spelling match here.

Ever since he has been county school superintendent Cross has insisted upon the Friday night spelling bee as one of the important activities of school work.

"I am just old-fashioned enough," Prof. Cross said, "to believe with the old Blueback spelling masters that such an essential as the ability to spell can only be sacrificed at the expense of a real education.

"Good Spelling Fundamental."

"Good spelling is fundamental. There is no calling in life but what requires it. The knack of getting your words right with the dictionary is but a small part of what good spelling means. To be a good speller is to be gifted with the ability to use words accurately in conversation and in writing, to know their definition and thus be able to choose the word that fits exactly. There is nothing that goes further toward making a person accomplished than to be able to converse well in any sort of society.

"The old-time pedagogues who ran their spelling bees often until midnight knew exactly what they were about. Their students have given a good account of themselves. They acquired all the fundamentals of education, and when they went out to give and take knocks from the world they held their own."

ELECTION ON ROAD BOND ISSUE

Randolph County to Vote on Projects Involving $750,000.

MOBERLY, Mo., Jan. 27.—Tuesday, March 1, is the date set by the Randolph County Court for the special road bond election. At that time the citizens will vote upon the proposition to issue $500,000 in bonds for the completion of the State system of highways in the county and $250,000 for the construction of a county system of all-weather roads.

Comparatively little opposition to the proposal has been expressed.

Most Collegians' Health Bad.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Ninety per cent of all college students are suffering from impaired health, Prof. G. T. Stafford of the University of Illinois told members of the Infant Welfare Society. "The physical condition of American people as a whole is alarming. Only 25 per cent are in first-rate health. College students suffer either from social disease, communicable diseases, serious infection of the teeth, or tonsils, anemia, chronic indigestion or like ailments."

DULLNESS MARKS DAY IN MARKETS

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES

[illegible]

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York today made no change in its re-discount rate of 4 per cent. A reduction had been looked for in recent weeks.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Financial markets were virtually at a standstill today as a result of a gradual dwindling in speculative interest. Most of the leading favorites in the stock market drifted aimlessly in narrow limits, while commodities continued their irregular trend and foreign exchanges generally attracted little attention. Intermittent rallies failed to arouse interest and pivotal stocks were rather freely offered in the final hour, giving the market a weak appearance in apparent anticipation of no change in the bank rate here. Continued abundance of credit kept up activity in the bond market, however, and the trend here again pointed to higher levels.

Leading Industrials Drift Aimlessly

"While leading industrial stocks and many of the railroad favorites continued to drift aimlessly in rather narrow limits, speculators turned their attention to basic economic conditions in an effort to determine the possible swing in prices when the market started a definite movement. Abundance of credit attracted most attention, of course, and the relatively low rate for money was used as an argument by the bears as well as the bulls. Liquidation of several large loans, it was said in commission house circles, indicative of withdrawals from the market, was responsible in a measure for the abundance of available credit. In the absence of speculative leadership, it was argued little could be expected of the market. Moreover, another shipment of more than $6,000,000 in gold from France to this country was regarded as further evidence of the accumulation of credit backing at this center, which, it was asserted, would prevent any substantial selling pressure. Speculators for the decline were successful, however, in uncovering scattered weak spots, while individual specialties here and there scored fair-sized advances.

Transactions Dwindle

"Some disappointment was expressed in market quarters over the failure of the Bank of England to reduce its rate. It was felt the Federal Reserve Bank here would probably take no action on the expected cut from 4 to 3½ per cent on the rediscount rate after the close of the market. The opinion that such a reduction was imminent still held, however, and it was considered well within the range of possibilities. Further evidence of the need for the reduction was expected to be revealed in the week's bank report, which was likely to show another sharp cut in brokers' loans. [illegible] bank borrowings [illegible] decreased since the first of the year and has been made [illegible] the flow of funds to this center, depressing outside money rates to 4 per cent. Because of the seeming apathy on the part of important speculators, the volume of transactions in stocks dwindled and even on an afternoon rally business failed to expand appreciably. Interest was revived in low-priced speculative rails by activity in Erie first preferred shares, which were believed to be in line for some sort of dividend action on completion of pending merger negotiations.

Advance in Spanish Exchange

"Another sharp advance in pesetas, carrying rates on Madrid above the 1926 peak, featured trading in foreign exchanges. Crossing the 16½c level, the peseta sold at the highest level in several years. Sterling and the leading continental rates were fairly steady, although rates on London showed a tendency to recede. Scandinavian exchanges were firmer.

Commodity Trend Aimless

"Interest was lacking in the principal commodity markets and prices displayed the same sort of aimless movements. Cotton continued to decline until a rally checked the recession in the early afternoon. Wheat lost about a cent a bushel in Chicago, while corn fell back fractionally."

LEAD, ZINC AND COPPER

Lead was weak at $7.20 per 100 lbs. in St. Louis today.

Zinc was quiet at $6.40 per 100 lbs.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The world's production of slab zinc in December is placed at 121,835 short tons by the American Bureau of Metal Statistics against 117,653 tons in November. The output for 1926 is calculated at 1,372,446 tons.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Copper quiet; electrolytic spot and futures, $13.25 asked. Tin easy; spot and nearby $69.12; March, $68.50. Iron steady and unchanged. Lead, spot, $7.40. [illegible] East St. Louis spot and futures, $6.45 to $6.50. Antimony, spot, $14.50.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—[illegible] spot, £54 10s 6d; futures £55 [illegible] spot £292 12s 6d; futures £288 15s. Lead, spot £28 17s 6d; futures £27 3s 6d. Zinc, spot £29 [illegible] futures £29 5s.

Chicago & Northwestern Operating Report

WHEAT MARKET CHOPPY ON CHICAGO BOARD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—The price trend was choppy in the wheat market today. Most of the pressure was on the May delivery while the deferred futures showed independent strength.

Wheat broke sharply in the last half hour on liquidation by local longs because of the 2-cent break in hard wheat premiums. Southwest houses sold May against purchases at Kansas City at 7½ cents difference. The close was unchanged to ⅝c lower. May $1.41¼, July $1.32⅛ to $1.32⅛; September $1.29½ to $1.29⅝. Corn closed ⅝c to ⅝c lower. May 81⅞c to 81⅞c, July 85c to 85⅝c, September 87⅝c. Oats were ⅝c higher to ⅝c lower. May 48⅝c to 48⅝c, July 48⅝c, September 46⅝c. Lard closed 5c to 7c lower and ribs 10c lower. Local cash sales were 3000 bushels wheat, 30,000 bushels corn, 80,000 bushels oats and 6000 bushels barley.

Failure of Liverpool to follow our Wednesday's advance and a further dip of ⅝ to ⅝ at Buenos Aires after its 1c to 1⅝c loss yesterday, caused a general rush to sell here early. Locals came buyers because of strength in Winnipeg and prices rallied to above the previous close. Local commission houses had resting orders to sell when the market got to a new high, but later when Winnipeg turned weak longs found it difficult to dispose of their wheat.

Liverpool market strengthened during late trade and closed 1c higher with buying stimulated by good purchases of Argentine wheat by the Continent. Buenos Aires also recovered and was unchanged at midday.

Broomhall reports that week's world shipments should average 16,000,000 bushels for some time and that the Southern Hemisphere can furnish 10,000,000 of this weekly. The seaboard wired that export business was slow over night with the only business small sales of durum to Germany. Russia shipped 784,000 bushels this week.

Southwest receipts continue to increase and the movement now has reached a good-sized volume. Minneapolis stocks decreased 100,000 bushels for five days.

Corn reacted after a high start. The early advance was based on reports of continued inquiry for corn for export. A Memphis message said that several lots of mixed corn were sold to New Orleans exporters with more inquiries. New York wired that 862 track Baltimore was bid for No. 2 corn for export. On the bulge realizing sales caused a reaction. Country sold a few cars to arrive.

Oats were affected by the action of corn. Commission houses and locals bought early and then sold when corn turned weak.

Chicago Grain Carlots.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—At the wool sales today 11,791 bales were offered of which 10,500 were sold. There was a superior selection which met with good general demand at unchanged prices. French buying showed an improvement and there were fewer withdrawals.

PRICE MOVEMENTS NARROW ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Price movements continued narrow on the Curb Exchange today, there being few wide fluctuations such as had been noted daily over a long period up to a short time ago. There was a good resisting power in evidence, however, which was indicated by the manner in which many of the important stocks improved in their position even after being subjected to bear pressure.

In the oil group most interest was attached to the resumption of accumulation of Standard Oil of Indiana, which was well held at above 70 and was in demand on a larger scale. Public utilities were quietly strong and a number of the industrials displayed strength at intervals during the day.

Among special features were an advance of about 3 points in Libbey Owens to 143 and a decline in Wheeling and Lake Erie prior preferred stock to 165. Johns-Manville was slightly lower but rallied after its early decline.

Oil stocks generally reflected a renewal of accumulation. Many of those issues were in demand at advances with the feature being the further fractional gain in Standard Oil of Indiana shares. Standard Oil of Ohio moved up 8 points to 346 and was a special feature in the trading. Cities Service on a fractional advance made a new high record.

American Gas and Electric was a strong feature in the utility group. Electric Investors yielded about a point while Electric Bond and Share was firmly held. United Light and Power was traded on a large scale without change in its position.

Upholds Tax on Club Members.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27—Constitutionality of the excise tax on life memberships in social organizations, as provided in the revenue act of 1921, has been upheld by Federal Judge O. B. Dickinson. The court ruled, however, that the tax assessment was not retroactive in the case of those who had purchased their life memberships before the passage of the revenue act. Judge Dickinson's opinion was in a test case filed by Jewell Williams, a lawyer, for the recovery of $8 [illegible].

'SHADY REST' KILLINGS UNSOLVED AT INQUEST

MARION, Ill., Jan. 27.—The failure of State Highway Patrolman Lory Price, missing with his wife since Jan. 17, to appear at the inquest into the killings at "Shady Rest," Charley Birger's fortified roadhouse, on Jan. [illegible] which was held here yesterday, made Williamson County officials more than ever convinced that the Prices had been murdered by gangsters.

A Coroner's jury returned a verdict that "four unknown persons had come to their deaths at the hands of parties unknown." The four were murdered in an outbreak of the Birger-Shelton gang war, and the roadhouse was burned over their bodies.

Circumstantially, the bodies have been identified as those of Steve George, caretaker of the place, his wife, [illegible] Thomason, and [illegible] of the Birger gang. The coroner had hoped that Price, who was the last person known to have left Birger's place before the murders, would testify at the inquest.

Those who hold to the theory that Price and his wife [illegible] from their home the night of their disappearance were murdered say that Shelton gangsters killed them to prevent the policeman from telling what he knew at the inquest. A report had gone the rounds that the Prices had left with Charles [illegible], a coal miner, who disappeared about the same time. [illegible] relatives say, however, that [illegible] is in an Indiana hospital being treated for an injury and that he does not know what became of Price and his wife.

TOWN OF 1400 HAS NEITHER HORSES NOR AUTOMOBILES

TANGIER, Va., Jan. 27.—Tangier has no traffic cops and the probabilities are it never will. No automobile has ever been seen here and a horse is just as much of a novelty. This despite the fact the town has a population of 1400 and is within a hundred miles of the nation's capital.

Tangier is on Tangier Island, Chesapeake Bay, and was discovered about 300 years ago by Capt. John Smith, who also named it. The Cornish fishermen who settled here have kept their race so pure that they still speak with an accent peculiar to the first inhabitants.

Motor cars would have little space in which to operate even if they should come, for the streets are only 10 feet wide. There is scant vegetation. Hence the absence of horses. The bay surrounding the island continues one of the best fishing grounds in Eastern United States and the sturdy Cornishmen have never given up their first calling.

MEDITATIONS —OF A— MARRIED WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

MAN'S LITTLE WEAKNESSES.

ONE of woman's bitterest disappointments is to go to the door looking for a letter from the man who has forgotten her—and find one from the man she has forgotten.

* * *

One of the hardest crosses woman has to bear in this life is man's negligence in writing letters. More women's hearts have probably been broken by the postman than by any other man in the world!

* * *

When a man says that "business" has kept him from writing you, dear heart, you may be sure that "Business" was either prettier or more amusing than you are. Nothing ever kept a man from communicating with a woman who was on his MIND—except another woman or another amusement!

* * *

The coming of a letter means so MUCH to a woman—but to a man, it merely means "another one of those darned things to answer!"

* * *

When a woman writes a love-letter, it is because she can't hold IN any longer; when a man writes a love-letter, it is because he can't hold OUT any longer.

* * *

The old-fashioned lover was often a "man-of-letters"; but the modern lover is more apt to be a man of telephone calls, telegrams and postcards.

* * *

Some men are so cautious about what they put in a letter that only a woman's intuition, a clairvoyant or a finger-print expert could tell you who wrote it or what it meant.

* * *

When a man marries his trained nurse, his bachelor friends may believe that she has taken advantage of his weakness; but when he marries his stenographer, they scornfully suspect that he didn't put up a really good fight.

* * *

MODISH MITZI

Any Time After Twelve — By Jay V. Jay

This being the perfect end of a perfect day they think they must talk it over. Mitzi is trying out Polly's new lipstick, but will decide that it doesn't suit her gown though how that can be since the gown is of black trimmed with crystal beads, no one else will understand. Polly always prefers the bouffant dance frock and this evening is wearing one of sunset taffeta with a yoke and skirt border of silk net. Sequins and crystals make Adelaide's white gown glitter and emphasize the odd cut of the bodice, the bow knot and the many flounces on the skirt. Betty's dress has a skirt all of crinkled fringe and drips dew drops of sequins.

They are still talking it over with "Oh, he's a fierce dancer" and "Did you like her dress?" Mitzi is producing somebody's last letter as absolute proof of something somebody else said. Their pajamas—you might like to know—are of crepe de chine. The trousers are plain with lace cuffs or ruffles at the ankle. Betty likes the wide strap and the sandwich board shape of a pair in plain green. Mitzi finds the V-shaped neckline becoming. Polly likes tucks on hers and trimming of silk flower petals. Adelaide has tucks and tucks! All except Polly's show a preference for lace, wide lace and lots of lace, and this is very smart in all lingerie.

Wit

By Lucy Lowell.

SPARE a moment's sympathy to your witty friend—the one who sees the humor in everything, and "just can't help saying something funny no matter what happens."

Very dashing the friend looks to you, perhaps; very much the center of whatever sociability happens to be going on—very deferred to and admired by one and all.

But is he, or she, for the chances are that this particular friend is a woman?

Do folks circle around her with quick friendliness you would wish for yourself? Or do you notice something rather wary about them as if they were going in treacherous places and knew it and regretted that they could find no way around?

For that's the way they feel and it's the way we feel and everybody feels in the society of the person with the aggressive sense of humor: the one who gives her wit the right of way over kindliness, consideration and good manners.

That, indeed, is the danger of a sparkling wit—it pushes the one who owns it along too far. She finds it hard to confine her wise cracks to impersonal things; soon she finds herself slashing out right and left, caring little how uncomfortable she makes anyone, just so she draws a laugh.

If you've ever been at the mercy of a darting, caustic humor you will understand why it is that the person with uncontrolled wit has a great deal of deference, but few friends.

Chopped Baked Applesauce.

Peel, core and chop enough apples to make a quart and a half. Add one and one-half cups brown sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon and a tablespoon butter. Put in a buttered pan or dish and bake in a moderate oven until the apples are pink and translucent.

The Diary of a New Father

LETTER from Joan to the new father:

"Dearest: It is so cute to see the baby smile and laugh. He laughs only for your father, but he smiles for everybody when he is feeling right. He is sleeping now—I am at your folks for the day—he's just worn out, the poor little fellow. He has played so hard. Your Dad came home at noon to dress for his mid-week golf game, but he started playing with the baby and gave up the golf. He boxes with the baby—[illegible] with the tips of his fingers on [illegible] cheek, and the baby waves [illegible] arms and chuckles until he [illegible] exhausted.

"Don't forget to change [illegible] shirt often.

"Your Mother drove me [illegible] baby downtown this morning [illegible] buy the baby some shoes [illegible] guess whom we saw first [illegible] Arthur, the boy I used to [illegible] before I knew you! I showed [illegible] the baby and he about died [illegible]

"Your sister says she thinks [illegible] baby is funny looking. I don't [illegible] that kind of thing just [illegible] maybe she does.

"Be sure to pay the gas bill [illegible]

"We are having lovely weather [illegible] and I am having such a good time [illegible] seeing all the folks we have [illegible]

"I met a Myrtle somebody [illegible] other with Helen and Marion [illegible] you remember them?—on the street today. She said she must have dates with you. She is a cute little thing—terribly spoiled [illegible]

"DO NOT FORGET TO CHANGE YOUR SHIRT.

Getting Ready for School.

SOON after a child is born his parents plan to send him to school. Although they may not consciously do more than say, "We will send him to school when he is 4 years old," they have started to prepare him for school. Each experience the child undergoes changes him for better or worse, pitches him toward or away from some idea which is to appear to his inward eye some far off day. As school is one of first important experiences, preparation for it should be a bit more than unconscious.

But I am afraid of formal instruction for babies. I fear that the formal instruction of the over formalised schoolroom will be given the baby in diluted doses. That would be awful. Truly awful. If the infant is to be consciously taught so that he may make the better use of the school for which we all hope his instruction should be filtered through freedom and administered by an understanding mind.

Every experience is a lesson. That may be but the smile of approval for a fine effort, the feeling of success that follows a happy attempt. Formal instruction has no place in this field, I believe. A little child needs to prepare for number work, for instance. Shall the nurse or mother teach him then to count just as soon as he can talk? I say no. If he has a set of blocks, the little cylinders of the Montessori equipment are fine, he will learn the first step easily as he fits the little blocks into their proper places. Disregard the errors he makes and let him handle the blocks as he will.

One day he will discover that each has a place and triumphantly place the lot. Then he has set the foundation for counting. He will soon know big and little, more and less, long and short, and know two when he sees them. When he absorbs that idea, not when you teach it, please, but when he absorbs it, he will gladly learn to count rythmically. But by then he ought to be in kindergarten, outside the home.

Nor would I give a baby of 3 years formal lessons in reading. First I would allow him to gather words, make a collection of sounds and phrases and little stories, all his own. I would talk to him as much as I could—which means as long as he would talk back to me. I would tell him little stories and encourage him to tell them to me in return. I would read to him from a Mother Goose, one with fine pictures and big clear print so that by and by he would chant the stories, when he saw the pictures and "read" for himself. But for formal reading I would send him to school. He will be ready for it if he has mastered a goodly vocabulary and has a store of good stories.

Often we send our children to school ill prepared. Either we teach them nothing at all useful for school work or we attempt to do the work of the school before school times arrives. If we content ourselves with doing the necessary things, helping the child function his senses, his muscles and nerves; perfect his bodily co-ordinations; teach him to establish a mental poise by directing his emotional reactions, we have prepared him for school.

Such preparation is quite as essential as the physical preparations we make. Let's attend to both sides of the child and send him out evenly balanced.

CHUCKLING ONESELF INTO DISREPUTE

Do You Grin or Snicker at the Misfortune of Others, Thus Showing a Lack of Decent Human Sympathy?

By WINIFRED BLACK.

AND now they're analyzing the laugh.

Answer that question and answer it truthfully, and we'll know all we have to know about just how civilized you are.

WINIFRED BLACK

I know a woman who seems to be a kindly creature, but I never yet saw her listen to a story of another woman's unhappiness that she didn't laugh.

Since I noticed that trait in her I don't like that woman.

I know a man who never really laughs at all except when he hears how some man he knows has been cheated.

"What is she thinking of?" I thought. "Something very sweet and beautiful, or she wouldn't look so happy."

When she came out of the theater I met her and I asked her about it.

"Did you see that sallow brunette in that yellowish dress, she said. "I just thought I'd die laughing. Why, it made her skin look like saffron."

And the sallow brunette was an intimate friend of the woman who laughed.

Do you laugh at things that are cruel and things that are coarse—then you yourself are cruel and coarse, and there's no use trying to get away from the knowledge of the fact.

I know a fat little man with fat little hands and fat little feet and a fat round face, and when ever you see him smiling you know he's had a chance to say something unpleasant to somebody.

I heard him telling a little group of acquaintances the other day just how much money he gave his wife to spend for the house.

"And I'll tell the world she doesn't get a cent more," said the fat little man, and he rolled his fat little eyes and grinned his fat little grin. Everybody within sound of his voice wondered how on earth his nice, pleasant little wife endures him for even one minute.

And there is the terrible creature who likes to take a stupid bewildered friend with him to a party and make fun of the friend right to his face all the evening, just to make himself feel clever and knowing.

Yes, I think they're on the right track, the scientists who declare they can tell what you are as soon as they know what makes you laugh.

Secrets of Health and Success

The Long Skirt a Menace to Health

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.

Former President of the American Medical Association.

THROUGH trade and consular channels I learn that the mills of France engaged in the manufacture of dress goods have demanded of the arbiters of fashion that the mode be so changed as to increase the consumption of their products and thus add to the prosperity of their country.

There lies before me a fashion magazine in which occurs the statement that the edict has been issued from Paris that "women's skirts must now be lengthened until they reach the shoe tops."

In this magazine, an American publication, is an illustration of a tall goon. It is a longish and sloppy looking thing. In its construction, as we learn from the text that accompanies the picture, care has been taken "to keep the hip line snug." Likewise "sinuous," and to have a "revealing square neck line." The figure is posed to show a "trouser-like effect," revealing the shape of the hip and thigh when the leg is flexed.

I have not been in Paris for several months. I therefore have not been able to behold the cocottes and other representatives of the underworld who are systematically hired by the fashion mongers to introduce their modes on Montmartre and Montparnasse, where Americans go to "see what is new." I doubt very much, however, whether this new vogue has extended or will extend much beyond the demimondaine hired to make street-sweeping skirts appear as an accepted innovation.

The effort to bring back the long skirt was made several years ago, but it failed signally, because the women of the world have found the superior advantages of the short skirt.

It saved them from having their underclothing soiled and their bodies defiled by filthy street dust swept up from the pavements by the flopping long skirt.

So, they stuck to their freedom and their health—and the long skirt failed.

I am a friend of France, and I like to see her mills kept busy but not at the expense of the health and happiness of her fair women or those of America.

Of course there are other features of a long skirt problem that are equally objectionable.

Thus the long skirt is much heavier, especially when made of winter fabrics, and consequently tends to put an additional burden upon whatever part of the anatomy may be utilized to suspend it. This is very liable to be the hips and waist. When this occurs there will be a demand for the return of the old vicious and constricting corset, from the tyranny of which woman has fortunately emancipated herself during the last several years of the short skirt.

Ladies, reject the long skirt!

HOW TO BE A GOOD MOTHER-IN-LAW.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN blames his mother-in-law for his troubles, and reminds us again of the most controversial corollary to the proposition of married life. That the mother-in-law is a menace.

Some bureau of domestic relations is always issuing warnings against mothers-in-law as home-wreckers. A Rhode Island Judge recently said that some mothers-in-law should be put in jail. A French scientist, Dr. Gilbert Robin, finds that bad mothers-in-law are dominated by avarice, jealousy, the spirit of domination, and are incurable.

On the other hand, Charles H. Erbstein, Chicago divorce lawyer, says that out of 1772 divorce cases in which he has appeared as counsel only six could be blamed on mothers-in-law. "In my experience I have always found mothers-in-law eager and willing to smooth out the domestic differences of their children," writes Mr. Erbstein in his new book, "The Show-Up."

Being a good mother must be an easy job compared to being a good mother-in-law. The reason why we can offer advice on the subject is not because we've BEEN one, but because we've HAD one. For, [illegible] years we have watched [illegible] in what is supposed to be the most difficult of [illegible] mother-in-law [illegible] home shared with [illegible] son and son [illegible] as nearly as we have been able to discover and formulate them, are some good and sensible [illegible] rules for being a good [illegible]

When I saw how much time and work Rinso saved me every washday I decided to use it for all my other cleaning, too. Why, Rinso makes our water so sudsy that dishes, floors and windows are spotless in almost no time. And you ought to see how much whiter my clothes always turn out now. They don't have to be scrubbed to death any more—in fact they don't even have to be boiled. And I must say it saves the hands to wash and clean the safe Rinso way. I use Rinso for the tiles and bathtubs and sinks, too. There's nothing like it.

HOW TO BE A GOOD MOTHER-IN-LAW.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN blames his mother-in-law for his troubles, and reminds us again of the most controversial corollary to the proposition of married life: That the mother-in-law is a menace.

Some bureau of domestic relations is always issuing warnings against mothers-in-law as home-wreckers. A Rhode Island Judge recently said that some mothers-in-law should be put in jail. A French scientist, Dr. Gilbert Robin, finds that bad mothers-in-law are dominated by avarice, jealousy, the spirit of domination, and are incurable.

On the other hand, Charles E. Erbstein, Chicago divorce lawyer, says that out of 1772 divorce cases in which he has appeared as counsel only six could be blamed on mothers-in-law. "In my experience I have always found mothers-in-law eager and willing to smooth out the domestic differences of their children," writes Mr. Erbstein in his new book, "The Show-Up."

Being a good mother must be an easy job compared to being a good mother-in-law. The reason why we can offer advice on the subject is not because we've BEEN one, but because we've HAD one. For over 10 years we have watched her in what is supposed to be the most difficult of mother-in-law situations—a home shared with daughter-in-law and son.

Here, as nearly as we have been able to discover, and formulate them, are one good and sensible woman's working rules for being a good mother-in-law:

1. Never take sides in any discussion between husband and wife—let 'em fight it out on their own line, if it takes all summer.

2. Remember that your son is not perfect, even though he IS your son. If you will stop to think of it, there were moments, even before his marriage, when he disappointed YOU.

3. Give your daughter-in-law credit for such virtues as she may possess — generosity, self-denial, loyalty—and overlook such faults as impatience, a sharply critical tongue, a sad lack of interest in things domestic.

4. Don't be worried because she does and says things you wouldn't do and say—probably the same difference in habit and point of view exists between every generation of women and the next one.

5. Be nice to members of her family when you meet them.

6. Give her—and keep for yourself—as much privacy as possible; nothing on earth is so nerve-and-temper-wracking as family life that is "too thick."

7. Express your admiration of her when you can honestly do so, and keep your criticisms to yourself.

8. Start no arguments about religion, prohibition or money.

9. Go on the assumption that your daughter-in-law loves your son as much as you do—or why would she have married him?

10. Be a grand grandmother—and not only your daughter-in-law but the whole family will rise up and call you blessed!

BUBBLES.

A most luxurious car;
I'd take you to tropical islands
Where palms and cocoanuts are.
I'd purchase Parisian creations,
Your sweet little heart to stir—
If I had the money of Morgan,
Instead of twenty-five per!

HELP WANTED FOR HUNTER COLLEGE HIGH SCHOOL.

THE WOMAN OF IT: As one of "the privately endowed college women," I want to thank you for your plea for a new building for Hunter College. May I add that Hunter College has a secondary school, Hunter College High School, which has the highest scholastic standing of any secondary school in the city. In the New York Classical Club examination, held last Saturday, Hunter College High School carried off first, second, third and fourth places. Yet it is at present in session in two floors of a business building at Seventh avenue and Fifty-second street and in a public school, from which it will shortly be ousted. Does not Hunter College High School deserve a modern, suitable structure?

BEN AND THE LADIES.

While we celebrate Ben Franklin's birthday and his philosophy of thrift this week, women ought not to forget this great man's unusual appreciation of their sex. Says Phillips Russell, his most recent biographer: "Franklin had a pronounced feminine element in his nature and personality. . . . All his life he showed his undisguised pleasure in the society of women. . . . If any great man has ever understood women, Franklin did. . . . Franklin was ever concerned about women; married and unmarried, elderly spinsters, fruitful mothers, bereft widows and blossoming maids—he liked them all; and when he could made love to them all."

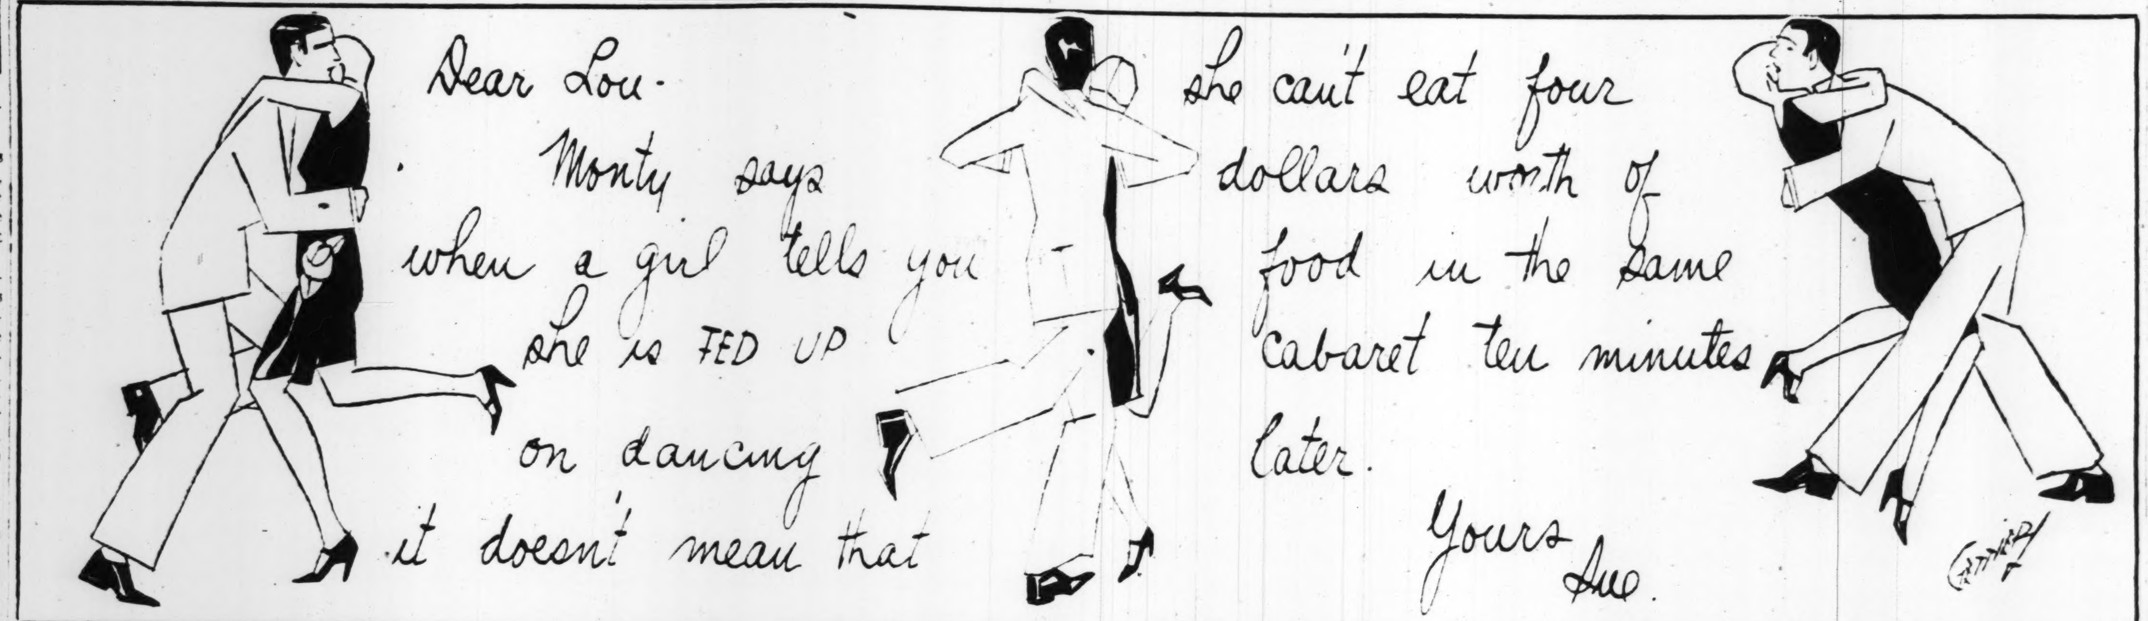

Mme. Brillon, the woman who knew him best, wrote of him and to him:

Children's Bedtime Story

Chatterer's Tongue Is Stilled.

—Mother West Wind.

PEOPLE who make a noise are bound to be seen. Somebody is surely going to hear and be curious and come to see what all the trouble is about and what all the fuss is about. Chatterer the Red Squirrel had forgotten this. You know, he was in a tantrum. You know a tantrum means flying into a great rage. There he sat on top of a certain old stump, or rather danced on top of a certain old stump, and shrieked all sorts of things because he was so angry.

Now Chatterers' voice can be heard a long distance, especially when it is still in the Green Forest. More than one pair of ears heard that voice and stopped to listen. Sammy Jay laughed and headed straight for that old stump. He dearly loves to see Chatterer in a temper. Blacky the Crow heard and he, too, started for that old stump. "There must be something interesting there," said Blacky to himself. "Chatterer is very much upset over something, and it may be worth knowing about." So he too headed toward the old stump.

But neither Sammy Jay nor Blacky ever did get there. To this day they don't know what it was all about. You see, both are too smart to let curiosity interfere with their watchfulness. So it was that when Sammy was about half way there he suddenly caught his breath, alighted in a thick hemlock tree, and a moment later turned and silently flew back, twice as fast he he had come.

And it happened that a moment or two later Blacky the Crow did precisely the same thing that his cousin Sammy Jay had done. Both flew in a hurry and both took the greatest care to make no sound whatever. You see, both had seen someone else who had heard the noisy tongue of Chatterer the Red Squirrel and was then headed in that direction.

That someone was Terror the Goshawk, that swift-winged killer from the North. He was hungry, for he had had no breakfast. A squirrel breakfast would suit him as well as anything he could think of. So the instant he heard Chatterer's voice he headed in that direction. He knew that Chatterer was in a fit of anger. He knew that he was having a tantrum, and he knew too that when a person is very busy being angry he usually has little thought or attention for anything else.

It was just so with Chatterer. If it had been possible for Terror the Goshawk to grin, he certainly would have grinned when he came in sight of Chatterer. Chatterer was dancing about and scolding and making a great rumpus. He was so busy about it that he wasn't paying any attention to anything else. Like a gray streak Terror shot forward. His great curved, needle-sharp claws were set and ready to seize Chatterer. What warned Chatterer even he does not know. But at the very last instant he broke off his scolding so short that it was just as if he had bitten off his own tongue; and at the very same instant he dodged over the edge of the old stump. With a swish Terror shot past, stopped himself with surprising suddenness, turned and came back. Chatterer dodged around the trunk. Two or three times Terror almost caught him, but each time Chatterer succeeded in dodging him. At last he was close to the entrance and darted in. He was safe.

Terror didn't hang around. He knew that that would be a waste of time. Like most of those who hunt, he is something of a philosopher. "I'll get him some other time," said Terror to himself, and shot away to look for a breakfast elsewhere.

As for Chatterer, he didn't come out of that old stump again until afternoon. And when he did come out he was strangely silent. His tongue was stilled for once.

The Invasion of Color in Our China.

COLOR has invaded our china to such an extent that it is time for the more conservative buyers to beware. China shops are filled with the colorful stuff and in desperation one chooses the least brilliant, only to unpack it at home and find that it kills all the other decorations.

It is hard to select just what is suitable for the conservative home table unless we consider well the china's use. Do you entertain frequently? Are your entertainments elaborate? Do you have much breakage of china ordinarily? Is your dining table well lighted by day to show color and by night to heighten color contrasts? Do you use doilies on a polished table or cover the table with a cloth? China looks very different over the polished table than when used over a snowy damask cloth. All these questions have a direct bearing on the buying.

The most conservative china is perhaps the creamy white Wedgwood. Some of this ware has the French blue border with raised white figures and flower garlands. Next perhaps is the creamy Copenhagen ware with its dainty blue decorations.

Many people have drawn away from sets and buy their china for the different courses instead. This is a wise plan where much entertaining is done. It is also a wise plan to use some of the pretty pottery for breakfast on a tray or in the alcove. This is also a saving of the better wares, for there is often more breakage during the washing up after the early meals of the day than after the dinner at night.

The very modest and careful housewife still sticks to the so-called "open stock" wares for when breakage occurs she can replenish without trouble. This is a vital consideration where expense is an object.

Milton Work's Bridge Pointers

THE pointer for today is:

Declarer should not hold up when the adversary on his right has no more cards of the suit to lead.

Occasionally the hold-up is useless because the adversary on the right has been exhausted on the first trick, but at times when the situation occurs, it is not recognized by an inexperienced declarer although it may be quite obvious. When a no-trump declarer in his two hands has eight cards of the suit originally led, regardless of how they are divided, and the third hand follows to the first trick, he has played his only card of the suit because the lead must have been made from four. To hold up under such circumstances would be utter folly; nothing could be gained by it, and it would be especially foolish if it might produce a disadvantageous lead of some other suit through the closed hand.

Suppose, for example, dummy (north) held Ten-x-x-x of a suit, closed hand (south) Ace-x-x-x, that west led a small card, and that east played the queen. There would be two reasons which would make a hold-up foolish. Reason No. 1: The adversary on the right (east) is already exhausted and all the benefit to be obtained from the hold-up has been gained already. Reason No. 2: The suit is still stopped, as dummy's Ten-x-x must capture the last trick. Under such conditions the hold-up would permit a lead through the closed hand which might be disadvantageous and might also cost a trick in the suit itself provided the adversary on the left did not have to continue leading it.

There is still another situation in which the question of whether to hold up or not is to be considered. It is illustrated by a hand which I give today and will discuss tomorrow. Suppose at a no trump contract declarer has the following holding:

North
S A-Q-J-7-2
H 8
D 10-8-7
C Q-10-7-3

West Leads Three of Hearts — East Plays Queen of Hts

South
S 8-4
H A-9-6
D A-Q-J-4-2
C A-K-J

Should south play the ace of hearts on trick 1, or should he hold up and play the six? Answer tomorrow.

Brogue

NEW YORK.—It makes all the difference in the world just now whether a woman has a brogue or wears a brogue. The latter is very smart both for golf or tennis or other sports. The tennis shoes worn at the southern resorts frequently substitute the heavy rubber or elk skin soles for rope soles, but the shoe design remains the same.

Beauty of Neck

By Lucrezia Bori

FORMAL dress is so necessary this season of the year with the opera and evening parties at their height that particular attention should be paid to the arms, neck and shoulders which were so negligently ignored during a Summer and Fall of sports wear and informal attire.

Evening dresses are so extremely decollete now that the neck and shoulders can have no concealed mysteries. The very fact that you can see the slope of your throat in your mirror quite as easily as you can see your face should keep the care of these parts always in your mind.

In the first place, I advise you to give your neck and shoulders a good cold cream cleansing once or twice a week. You bathe them when you take your daily bath, to be sure, but a little extra attention and cold cream will serve to supplement the desirable effects of the warm water and pure bath soap. Rub the cleansing cream well up towards the roots of the hair, at the back of your neck. Rub it well down into your shoulder blades. Now remove the cream with a soft old towel after it has stayed on your skin for a few minutes.

If your shoulders should be stout, massage will accomplish a beneficial result. If your shoulders are thin, a light massage with the palms of your hands, using a rotary movement and applying plenty of olive oil as you rub, will serve to fatten them.

For shoulders that are a trifle over-plump the massage should be deeper and more vigorous. Instead of using cream of any kind, an astringent lotion is advised.

If you go bathing in the surf at any of the Southern resorts, try to protect your neck and shoulders from the direct rays of the sun as much as possible. If your shoulders do become tanned and freckled try applying equal parts of lemon juice and distilled water. Keep up the applications about twice daily until the parts become more white and soft.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

THERE is so much of bliss abroad down winter's blustry ways, sometimes, the thoughtful must be awed by all this joy and praise, by all this glow of sunbeams bright, though now no robin sings, by all these branches clad in white, that sway like lifted wings. There is such wealth of happiness for man's unnoting eyes, though now no balmy winds caress glad flowers beneath blue skies! Such promise waits for men to find asleep there, far below the reach of chill and angry wind, secure beneath the snow, that it at last must force man's thought to see life's seasons brief, and how some beauty still is wrought in times of pain and grief. The winter of man's hope sometimes holds hidden promise fast till after chill and doubt, it climbs to greet the sun at last.

"SALLY STEPS OUT"

A Tale of Romance and Adventure
By ACHMED ABDULLAH
Dramatic — Thrilling — Appealing

CHAPTER 30.

"The Letter."

THE yacht party progressed as yacht parties will when there is too much money and too much liquor. Drunkenness winding up in flirtation and—to change the monotony—flirtation widing up in drunkenness.

Sally was not exactly disgusted. For she was not a hypocrite nor a congenital reformer. But she was bored with it all. She began to long for New York, for the ornate little flat in the Forties, for Janet. She tried to think of some excuse she might make to leave the yacht at the next port of call and return to the city.

She wondered what Janet and Sam were doing; how they were getting along.

She wondered where George was. Had he received her letter?

As a matter of fact Janet and Sam were just then a very happy couple. Sam had gone after the Astoria motion picture job with a vengeance and it looked as if he had at last found an outlet for his venturesome cinema spirit, as he developed a real gift for blood and thunder stories. They decided they would stay on at Flo's flat until Sally came back when they would turn the place over to her and take a room in an inexpensive hotel and save some money. For they were now set upon buying a place in the country.

"A little place," said Sam.

"Not too little," answered Janet severely, "because I intend to raise a family. A large one. I'm not going back to work. I'll tell you that flat!"

"Janet!"

"You must have responsibility," she said regarding him with tenderness and mock austerity. "Lots of it. Well, I shall see that you get it."

Sam had stopped for his luggage at the hotel where he and George had put up and had left his new address and the phone number in case George wanted to get in touch with him. And presently the hotel phoned him that a wire had come from George which they read over the phone. It was a very business-like wire and simply told Sam that he had better inform the publishers that he, Sam, was empowered to forward George's mail. "I want my clippings," said the telegram, "but I don't want to be bothered by them." By them Sam took him to mean the publishing firm.

So down he marched to the publishing house, where he knew everyone—he always knew everyone—and found some letters for George there, among them Sally's. He recognized her writing at once and went home to talk it over with Janet.

"Do send it at once," said Janet. "Perhaps something may come of it."

"Shall I write or wire him where she is?"

"No. Don't be so stupid, darling! That will get him all mad again. Better let them get reconciled first and then fight afterwards—that will be our method hereafter."

So Sam, bowing to his wife's judgment, forwarded the letter to George in care of Sadler at a Greenport postoffice box, and wrote to George himself, not a word about Sally, but simply to the effect that he and Janet had made up, and for good, and were divinely happy.

Janet had had a note from Sally, and a postcard or two, but had not written, for she did not know the yacht's itinerary.

Thus in due course of time George received a letter in a familiar handwriting and sat quite still on the beach with it opened in his brown fist, watching the motorboat that had brought it sheer off from the dock and dart away over the sparkling waters.

Down on the runway, Sadler was tinkering with the engine of the "ship." The gulls were making a great fuss, as usual; it was a heavenly day. George was tanned and hard and fit; he had loved getting back into flying togs again and feeling the wind on his face and the great bird under him respond to his guidance . . . for Sadler had given him a lesson or two and George flew the seaplane now like any expert. Most of all he loved fussing with the engine and getting himself as dirty as possible. And then washing it off in the bay and going on up to the shack to chew on an old pipe and write a little more on his novel. Those were days, lazy days, sun-steeped days. And now?

What would the letter say?

He opened the letter, the letter Sally had written straight from her heart, on an impulse too strong to be ignored, after buying that novel of his.

"George dear—I have your novel. I went and bought it at Brentanos. I haven't read it yet, but I've looked through it here and there and it seems even more wonderful to me than it was when you read it to me in manuscript.

"I looked at the dedication first. I was almost afraid to look. I was so sure you had forgotten your promise . . . and me . . . But you had not. There it was . . . in black and white. I am so happy.

"A girl in the revue Janet and I were in lent us her flat at the above address. I don't know yours. Where are you? Why have we been so foolish . . . you and I? Why do we always quarrel and bicker and misunderstand each other?

"I'm awfully proud of you, George. I want you to know it. I wish I could tell you so instead of writing it.

"I'll have to send this to the publishing firm, for I don't know your address, and I don't like to call up the publishers to find out where you are.

"Wherever you are, I am thinking of you. Your

"SALLY."

If George read that letter once he read it twenty times. Then he rose up suddenly to the horror of the circling gulls and did a curious thing. He executed a fantastic and amazing Charleston on the beach and sang to himself while he did it. Sadler, coming up from the hangar stopped, wiped oily hands on a piece of waste and remarked as George did not cease in his gyrations:

"I thought all the liquor I have on my island is for medicinal purposes only!"

"I haven't touched it. I assure you!"

Sadler eyed him with mock severity.

"You've been out alone on face of the waters lately," he remarked, "didn't run into any bootleggers coming from Montauk Point, did you?"

George laughed.

"Drugs, eh?"

"Sit down, you priceless ass—and listen. Can we take the ship and fly to New York—tomorrow, say?"

"Well, why not? What's on your mind?"

Sadler was silent for a little. Then he asked:

"Where is she now?"

"New York," said Wyatt, utterly unaware that at the moment he spoke Sally was lying in a deep wicker chair on the deck of the "Queen Bess," her eyes on the swell of blue water, while Larry Owen, sitting carelessly on the foot-rest of her chair, was exerting himself to be amusing and tender at one and the same time.

And Sally was distinctly unhappy; was wishing herself anywhere but on that yacht. A little distance from her Kitty Dunbar leaned on the rail beside Morrow, whom she was holding in a very flirtatious conversation. But Kitty's curious blue eyes were seeing, not Morrow's eager, animated face, nor the water, nor the distant green curves of the land, but the group of two in back of her—Sally, with her grave, slightly disdainful expression, and Larry Owen with his searching, desiring eyes upon Sally's face.

"Evidently," Wyatt continued, "she and Janet have been in some summer revue which has closed. Poor little Sally. I hate like the devil," he added, "to think of her—on the stage."

Sadler laughed gently.

Wyatt flushed a little under the clear brown of his tan.

"No. And haven't now. Except for Sally. You see—she wasn't cut out for that sort of thing. She'd hate it all. I know her. But if Janet's with her she'll be kept from a good deal of the unpleasant side of back-stage."

"Janet?"

"Janet Spellman. She was the first woman friend Sally made in New York . . . married Sam Spellman . . . you remember Sam? And left him shortly after . . . it was Sam who was to come on this trip with us. I wanted you to meet him again."

"By Jove, I'd forgotten all about the missing third in the party. Yes, I liked him that time we met. Why didn't he show up?"

"I don't know. I left him in bed at the hotel with a terrible headache. We'd been to a roadhouse the night before and run into Sally and Janet with—with a couple of men. We were with some girls that Sam had dug up somewhere. I never saw them before or since. Flamboyant little critters, but harmless as water color paint. We left the place and went on to another—where we found an all-night poker party in session—well, no wonder Sam had a headache . . . I had one too."

"It must have lasted a long time," suggested Sadler. "I fancy his hair's turned white with it by now."

Wyatt laughed. He was in a mood to laugh at almost anything.

"That red mop? No, what I imagine is that Sam has run into some of his old cronies and he is tearing around with them. I wish he wouldn't. I'd rather have him under my eyes. He's a good sort, but as irresponsible as they come."

"Well, what's the verdict? Are we going to New York?"

"Certainly . . . and as fast as we can get there."

"I'd like to tune the ship up a bit," said Sadler practically. "Something seems to be wrong. But we can work on her now, and she'll be ready in the morning . . . we'll beat the train."

Wyatt nodded. Sadler went on up to the house, and George sat down on the beach and stretched himself full length in the sand. The screaming of the gulls seemed to have a less melancholy note than usual, he thought, lying there, his eyes closed against the beat of the sun.

What a fool he had been! Going off on a tangent like that, thinking Sally cared for Roger Morrow, that she had forgotten him, George, that she no longer loved him! And what a fool he had been, too, to try and discourage her work! Why shouldn't she have a right to develop her talent, as much right as he had? And what a happy and full life they could have together, Sally with her painting, he with his writing. All the time he had been at work on his new novel he had wished he could draw—the delicate, rather fantastic little story seemed to call for illustrations. He was setting the climax at just such a place as this island upon which he was now lying. Of course the plot—that of castaways . . . was not so new, it was one of the oldest in the world, in fact. But he fancied he had given a new twist to it . . . and he was ruthlessly removing Sadler's Island from its position in Greater Peconic and putting it in a wild waste of waters, far from passing ships, Sally could get the feel of the story into her brush . . . she would love to draw the gulls, circling and screaming overhead, gray wings over bluest water . . . gulls flying with the storm, gulls drifting with the waves . . . gulls, the most graceful birds in the world, and in some odd way, the loneliest.

He must bring Sally to Sadler's Island.

Well, tomorrow he would see her, and he would not take no for his answer! She must marry him, and at once.

At Sadler's hail he went down to the hangar and discovered that there was something radically wrong with the seaplane. They worked on it until dark. There were no lights save lanterns available in the hangar, and they had to give up and postpone the task until morning.

"Will you take the train instead?" Sadler asked him.

He hesitated and finally said no. He had somehow set his boyishly romantic heart on flying to Sally—they could get the boat in shape and be in New York before evening of the next day.

Then they turned in, Sadler to a dreamless sleep, George to lie awake in the sweet cool darkness and listen to the cries of wakeful gulls and think of Sally—and happiness—tomorrow.

CHAPTER 31.

"THE TRAP."

THAT same night the "Queen Bess" arrived in the Thames and anchored off New London. Most of the party went ashore to dance at the Griswold; but Sally and one of the married couples stayed aboard. Sally did not feel like dancing and told Owen so. He seemed perfectly content. He returned to the boat after seeing the others safely started on their dancing.

"I couldn't bear to leave you alone. . . ."

"You shouldn't have come back for me," she said. "I was just going to bed."

Mr. and Mrs. Garsten were in the saloon. They had stayed on the "Queen Bess" because having made up a recent marital difference they were celebrating by holding a post-mortem over their quarrel—thus renewing the same quarrel.

Owen looked down at Sally as she sat curled up on the wide seat which ran around the stern.

"Stay up a little," he pleaded. "I want to talk to you."

"But——"

"Sally, Sally, can't you see the whole party was planned for you? So that I could get you to myself a little? Yet I've not been able to, until now. Now I have you all alone and I must tell you—and you must listen."

"Please, Mr. Owen!"

"I love you Sally!"

He drew her into his arms, kissed her hotly and repeatedly despite her struggles. Her struggles lent a piquance to the situation. What a little actress she was! he thought.

"Tonight," he whispered, "you'll leave your stateroom door unlocked—for me?"

Somehow she tore herself free. She was very pale and her breath came unevenly.

"Are you mad?"

"Yes—quite—about you."

She was in a cold rage.

"I'm a guest here—on your boat!" she said in a flat, even voice. "I had an idea—evidently a wrong idea—that you had at least a veneer of breeding. I shall leave this boat tomorrow morning and take the first train out of New London."

He did not believe her yet; thought her a new, and very clever, type of gold-digger. Still—he thought it best to play the game as she seemed to want it played. So he apologized, begged her to forgive him, added:

"Don't go! Forget what I said!"

She turned away and walked down the deck. He was thinking deeply. In the morning Kitty had told him that, the night before, she had seen Sally come from Morrow's room. Kitty had lied, hoping to prove to Owen that his pursuit of Sally was hopeless. But the lie had proved a boomerang. For Owen, believing it, had said to himself that, if Morrow had succeeded, there was no reason why he should fail. All right—let Sally play her amusing, piquant teasing little game . . . the end was certain . . . He leaned on the rail looking toward the lights of the town and made his plans. Then he went below and wrote a note and very late, after the Garstens had retired, he rang for Mrs. Garrish.

When the stewardess appeared, he handed her the note.

"Take this to Miss Dangerfield."

"Yes sir."

"Then come back here. There will be an answer."

The woman went to Sally's state room and knocked. Sally called "Who's there?" and on hearing the answer sprang from her bed and unlocked her door.

"There's an answer, Miss."

She read the note, frowning. Then she looked at the woman behind her. "Tell Mr. Owen . . . very well."

As Mrs. Garrish turned away she heard the door locked behind her.

The note was merely another plea for pardon. He begged her not to leave the boat. People would talk. It would put them both in a difficult situation. The boat was going on to New York after one day in the Thames. Couldn't she forgive him enough to stay on two days?

Sally had seen his point. People would talk. Morrow would be curious. Two days? She could keep him at a distance that long.

Mrs. Garrish took Sally's message back to Owen. He nodded and asked.

"Was—Miss Dangerfield's door locked when you knocked?"

Clever girl, thought Owen. Playing her little game for all it's worth . . . almost persuading a chap she's the genuine article—

All right! Two could play at being clever; and if she imagined she could fool him or trap him into marriage she had another guess coming.

"Picnic! Grand and glorious picnic!" He told his guests in the morning. "Let's go ashore and make a day of it."

They were bored with the yacht; were glad to spend a day ashore. Only Sally preferred to stay aboard, pleading a headache. At least—she said to herself—this way she would be alone for the rest of the day.

So he said courteously:

"I'm sorry. We'll all miss you."

The picnic party was off soon afterwards, and Sally was alone. For the crew, too, had gone ashore as well as the Japanese servants. One of them would be back later to prepare and serve her luncheon.

The book fell from her lap. She dozed off; awakened at the sound of a motor launch that came up to the side of the boat. A voice hailed her. She went to the rail and saw Owen, alone in the boat, holding on by the steps, and calling her.

"Come," he ordered, gaily, "headache or no headache. I have been sent to fetch you. If you don't . . . well I'll stay here with you, that's all."

Sally considered for a moment. After all, she would be safer with the rest of the party than alone on the "Queen Bess" with Larry Owen. She decided to go. She knew that he would stay if she did not. Although he spoke laughingly there was a gleam in his eyes which proved to her that it was no idle threat on his part.

"The rest? Oh, landed at a little deserted island . . . not very far away. It won't take long . . . about two hours."

It was about noon then and the boat was headed out of the Thames into the larger water. They ran on for a couple of hours and Sally was growing uneasy when Owen pointed.

"There . . . see?"

She looked and saw an island. As she did so a plane rose from the beach and swept out over the water.

"Some New York chap has a hangar on one end of the place," explained Owen. "Took it over lately. But we won't be near him. Our party's on the other end, around the side, at an old fort."

"Must have forgotten to unload these," he said easily and helped her over the rough places in the broken down dock.

Presently she stood on the sand and looked about her, at the gulls overhead, the sitting gulls thick on the beach, the baby gulls staggering about, unwieldy and amusing. Her spirits rose a little.

"What a perfectly charming place."

"Yes . . . there's a fort on it as I said, long since abandoned. But it makes a very good camping site . . . there are still some walls standing and even a roof in places . . . I have some cushions in the boat and blankets, by the way, for the girls."

He returned to the boat to get them. Sally stood still, looking around, drinking in the air, air so clear it seemed blue, like the sky—watching the sun sparkle along the little crests of small waves which broke gently with a sighing sound on the white beach. Water and sky and air and a little island, green in solitary patches with the tenacious growth of bayberry and scrub oak.

What solitude . . . what a strange place. Sally thought how happy she could be there with someone she loved . . . how happy she could be there . . . with George.

The plane they had seen was far away now. It was making a practice flight. It would circle around for a long time, testing out the engine before it would start on a journey to New York. Now she could see it dimly . . . it looked like a gull now, a great gray gull, free and floating, high, high, above the water, high as the clouds themselves.

Reporters that fail to acquire a wide and a thorough knowledge of history, politics, the social sciences, agriculture and similar subjects, also fail to rise above the rank of the cub reporter and usually find that they are continually out of work because their ignorance is so evident. Reporters that have the ability to use words develop into special writers of various kinds and then they must make a special study of the field they enter, whether it be politics, foreign affairs or dairy methods. Few newspapers accept new reporters now that are not journalism school graduates.

Salted Skins.

NEW YORK.—The fallen face is one of the disasters of modern feminine. A London beauty doctor has made fashionable a method to correct this by means of "face inflation." A composition largely composed of fine gold dust is inserted under the skin by hypodermic injection. This, it is claimed, restores the skin to youthful smoothness and gives a glowing color. Not much gold dust is used but the operation is said frequently to cost $5000 or more.

Bright Sports Costumes.

NEW YORK. — Bright checks lead the way of fashion on nearly every golf course playable at present. Blouses, skirts and sweaters employ the brighter shades of red, yellow, brown and green. The diced designs, the diamonds and the Greek key motifs are especially noticeable in the stockings and sweaters. Some of the sweaters are of fine green wool striped with tinsel.

JOHNSON'S SUCCESSOR.

GEORGE Wharton Pepper, it is said
May be the Junior body's head.
And try to turn the tables.
If so the Judge must watch his step,
As Brother Pepper has the pep
And knows his vegetables.

And there are many who opine
That Barrow, too, will wheel in line,
When Johnson's shoes need filling;
While others claim the choice will be
Attorney Henry Killilea,
Who ought to make a killing.

MELLON IN OIL IN MEXICO, BUT DID NOT BUY COWDRAY WELLS

HE DENIES ANY PART IN ITS MANAGEMENT

Says He Thinks Oil Has Been Unduly Emphasized as Influencing Administration's Policy.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Coolidge administration's opposition to the Mexican oil laws, which has become so violent as to threaten a breach between the United States and Mexico, appeared in a new and interesting light yesterday when it was learned that one of the largest American oil companies adversely affected by the laws is the Gulf Oil Corporation, of which Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and his family own the controlling interest.

When seen by the Post-Dispatch correspondent, Secretary Mellon confirmed the fact that the Gulf Oil Corporation was one of the American companies which has refused to comply with the regulations issued by the Mexican Government. At the same time, he denied the report that he had acquired control of the vast oil properties in Mexico formerly owned by Lord Cowdray of England. He also said that he had exercised no voice in the direction of the Gulf Oil Corporation since he became Secretary of the Treasury in 1921.

Nephew Runs the Corporation.

W. L. Mellon, nephew of the Secretary, is president of the Gulf Oil Corporation. It is a holding company owning many subsidiaries, operating in Mexico largely through the Mexican Gulf Oil Co., the Southern American Gulf Oil Co., and the Panama Gulf Oil Co., in which it owns all the capital stock.

In the past, the bulk of the oil production in Mexico has been controlled by what has been called the "Big Four," composed of the E. L. Doheny, the Harry Sinclair, the Mellon and the Standard Oil interests. In 1922, the latest year for which statistics are available, the largest producer was the Huasteca Co., a Doheny subsidiary. Mexican Gulf, the Mellon company, was second.

Asked yesterday if it were true that the Gulf had refused to comply with the Mexican regulations, Secretary Mellon said he believed that was true of all the large American companies.

Denies Activity in Company.

"However, let me make it plain," he said, "that I resigned as a director of the company when I came into this office and have had nothing to do with its direction since then. It is true that I am a large stockholder, but, so far as influencing its policy is concerned, I might as well have died when I became Secretary of the Treasury."

Mellon added that he did not believe the Mexican policy of the Coolidge administration, of which he is an influential member, has been controlled by consideration for the American oil interests in Mexico. He pointed out that American companies owned large mining and railroad properties in Mexico, and that he thought undue emphasis had been laid on oil.

In a speech in the Senate Tuesday, urging arbitration of the Mexican controversy, Senator Robinson (Dem.) of Arkansas, said:

"It has been stated, upon information which I consider reliable, that the very large British oil interests formerly owned by Lord Cowdray and his associates have passed from the ownership of Mr. Mellon, or what is known in American finance as the Mellon group."

A similar statement had been made in the Senate a few days earlier by Senator Heflin (Dem.) of Alabama.

Did Not Buy Out Cowdray.

In answer to question, Mellon told the correspondent this was not true. He said that neither he nor any of the companies in which he is interested had acquired the Cowdray interests, or any part of them, and he had no knowledge of how the report originated. He said he heard the Cowdry properties had been purchased by another British group.

"Have you any interest in it?" he was asked. "No, I'm not that rich," he replied with a deprecatory smile.
